MACDONALD OUTLINES ACCORD TO COMMONS AS GERMANS START

DISLIKES RUHR SANCTIONS

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The "Big Seven" of the Interallied Conference met this morning, and some of the committees continued work on the minor points remaining to be settled.

Pending the arrival of the German delegation tomorrow morning, however, the main interest of today lay in a speech made in the House of Commons by Premier MacDonald. In presenting a formal statement of the nature of the agreement reached, he took occasion to defend the bankers against the charges of dictation brought against them and to express the obligation of the conference to them for their advice and assistance.

The German delegates are expected here between 8 and 9 o'clock. Premier MacDonald will probably meet them; if not, he will be represented at the station by some official of the Government. If it is agreeable to the German delegation, there will be a plenary meeting of all the delegates to the conference at 10 Downing Street at midday, when the Prime Minister will deliver an address of welcome, and the documents drawn up at the conference in relation to the putting into operation of the Dawes plan will be officially handed to the Germans. These documents have, as a matter of fact, already been put in the hands of the German experts. The Germans will be invited to communicate their observations upon the points already agreed upon between the Allies, at a subsequent meeting, the time of which will be fixed tomorrow.

Although today was a bank holiday, there was a full attendance in the House of Commons when the Premier rose to make his statement respecting the Interallied Conference. He was evidently well pleased with the results thus far achieved, and, though many searching questions were put to him, he apparently succeeded in convincing the House that good work had been accomplished. At the end of the day it was predicted that, barring unexpected difficulties being raised by the German delegation, the conference would conclude its labors by the end of the week, and that the Dawes plan would have a fair trial.

MacDonald's Report to Commons.

"I am happy to inform the House that on Saturday an agreement was reached between the Allies on certain matters arising out of the experts' report. The documents embodying the agreements have been published in the press and are now being scrutinized by a committee of lawyers. It may be convenient if I indicate the substance of our agreement.

"The basis of the experts' report is the raising of a loan for Germany in order to put it on its feet economically and enable it to meet its obligations and reenter the economic system of Europe. On British and American markets confidence in the Reparation Commission as a judicial body for declaring default has been completely forfeited, and we were informed that so long as it could destroy the economy and credit of Germany by a declaration of default which, as a matter of fact, might not exist, the security for the loan would be of so little value that the loan would not be subscribed.

"It was not our business to arrange for this loan; that will be done in the ordinary way. But it was our duty to remove the obstacles which would have made the loan fall dead on the money market. I may take this opportunity of expressing my regret that it has been so often stated that the difficulties we encountered in this part of our work were created by the bankers and financiers. They confined themselves to advising as to the state of mind of the investing public and guided us against coming to agreements that would fail to produce the loan required. We are all much indebted to them for the information and help they gave us.

"The arrangement finally made was that a citizen of the United States shall be added to the Reparation Commission, chosen by unanimous vote of the commission, or, failing that, by the President of the International Court, as a full member of the commission when the question of default is under consideration. The allied Governments bind themselves to take no sanctions until default has been declared.

Plan for Transfer Committee.

"After all safeguards have been emplo provisions have been made for setting up a committee of six, equally representative of the German and allied Governments, with power to co0pt a neutral, if necessary, to arrange for deliveries in kind from a list of products settled by it in accordance with the provisions of the experts' report. This is to secure smooth delivery and to obviate disagreements.

"As regards steps to be taken to re-

'Imagining Malady' Is Real, Insists Belgian Physician

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—"Imaginary disease" was elevated from a position of mere ridicule to an object of solicitude by Dr. Henri Jean, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine of Liege, in a discourse read to his confrères in the scientific congress here.

According to the eminent medical authority most recent advances in medical science prove that the imaginary sick man is in reality sick, suffering from nervous instability, caused by the presence of too much potassium or calcium in the blood.

There are two nervous systems, according to Dr. Henri Jean. These are, so to speak, two electric currents, which must be of the same intensity. If this equilibrium exists a person is not aware that he has "nerves". On the other hand, if it is disturbed any number of things may result. This lack of equilibrium is caused, according to whether the victim is male or female, by too much potassium or calcium in the blood.

The cure for this real "imaginary malady" is not yet discovered, but, according to Dr. Henri Jean, the road is now wide open for this discovery.

MEXICANS IN PURSUIT OF EVANS SLAYERS

SAY ROBBERY WAS MOTIVE

Indignation Is Voiced in British Parliament and the London Newspapers.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—President Obregon has ordered inquiries by both civilian and military authorities into the murder by unknown assassins of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, a British subject, at her ranch near Texmelucan on Saturday night.

Assurances have also been given by the Minister of Foreign Relations, General Aaron Saenz, to the American Charge d'Affaires, Mr. Schoenfeld, that the murderers are being sought and will be punished on apprehension.

It is reported that the Mexican Government has information that may prove the case to have been inspired by politics. It is said that plans for the killing of Mrs. Evans had been afoot several months. The Government is making a quiet investigation along these lines, but the officials refuse to be quoted.

A telegram from the Governor of Puebla states that evidence shows the murderers were a group of Indians, dressed in white clothes, with large straw hats of the general style worn by Indian farmhands near Puebla.

This message further states that the fatal wound was in the stomach, while first reports said she was shot in the back.

The British Consul General, Mr. King, has an investigator on the ground. The American Consular Agent in Puebla, Mr. Jenkins, is investigating for the American Embassy.

Official Statement Is Issued.

The Secretary for Foreign Relations in a statement to the press this evening said:

"Regarding the death of Mrs. Evans, the Government of Mexico is intensely interested in making an active and minute investigation of the case, and by orders of President Obregon the Federal authorities, as well as the local authorities, are now making a complete investigation.

"The Government sincerely regrets the sad affair, which occurred outside the hacienda owned by Mrs. Evans at the time when the difficulties with Mrs. Evans had been cleared up and Mrs. Evans had been enjoying guarantees of her person and property.

"The circumstances of the crime and the traces that have been found show that the deed was for the purpose of robbery. From the fact that the name of Mrs. Evans has been connected with recent incidents of an international character, it has been suggested that the present case might also be connected

ALIENIST DECLARES LEOPOLD AND LOEB ARE DEVOID OF SOUL

Dr. Healy Says Tests Show 'Paranoid Personality—Parries Question of Insanity.

ANALYSIS IRKS LEOPOLD

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—Another expert witness for the defense took the stand today in the hearing before Judge John R. Caverly to determine the punishment for Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, the kidnappers and murderers of Robert Franks, and he stripped from the youths any vestige of soul, interpreted in terms of consideration for society, which was left by the first psychiatrist who testified Saturday.

"Leopold told me he could contemplate committing a murder with no more conscience than was necessary in selecting the sort of pie for dinner," said the witness, Dr. William Healy of Boston, Mass.

"Loeb told me they had considered kidnapping and slaying members of his own family and that he would delight in killing, for instance, Walter Bachrach of his counsel if he thought he would gain anything by it in the manner of publicity or pleasure of anticipation or execution of the plan.

"Leopold told me that he reveled in the fact that he had no ground for conscience," the mental pathologist went on. "He said that at an early age he began trying to kill affection, to break down any feeling for his family, and began to develop his selfish, egotistic superman idea."

The expert was testifying in furtherance of the "childish phantasy" conclusions as set forth by the defense's first alienist, Dr. William A. White of Washington, D. C., who advanced the idea of a merger of personalities as leading to the Franks murder.

Dr. Healy asserted "an incredible, absurd childish compact" bound the boys together from an early age and "had a bearing on the ultimate acts of the youths."

Testimony Kept From Public.

Judge Caverly refused to permit Dr. Healy to testify as to the conditions of the "childish compact" when the witness hesitated at speaking plainly in the presence of the women, who predominated as spectators in the courtroom. The attorneys and the Judge bent over the court reporters as Dr. Healy in a low voice put into the record an outline of the compact between the two boys.

"This is unfit for publication," the Judge asserted sternly, as he motioned away newspaper men, who crowded forward. "There will be nothing brought out here that is not fit for publication."

The boys for the most part were solemn today, smiling and whispering to each other only when the witness would make some pointed criticism of them or praise their intellectual attainments.

However, in an interview in the jail, Leopold said that he would prefer death on the gallows to having to sit and hear alienists analyze his character.

"What's a measly thing like hanging?" he demanded. "What's death, for that matter? Don't you like to go to sleep? That's all death is."

Dr. Healy took the witness stand at the opening of court. He first went into a detailed analysis of the personality of Leopold and then took up the mental make-up of Loeb. He devoted three hours to Leopold and was still analyzing Loeb when court adjourned.

Robert E. Crowe, State's attorney, who has contended from the first against the admissibility of expert testimony in mitigation or punishment, made only one effort today to have the hearing thrown into a trial by jury on an insanity plea. The move was checkmated by the defense and Dr. Healy's assertion that "insanity" was a legal term and had not been considered in his examination and report on the "mental disability" of the youths.

By T. R. YBARRA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—Secretary Hughes talked to Berlin representatives of the American press this morning at the American Embassy and to representatives of the German press half an hour later, and said nothing of a nature to commit himself on either occasion.

To the Americans he said:

"I think the Dawes plan will usher in an era of peace and prosperity. The rapid execution of the Dawes plan is vital to Europe. I think we have turned the corner—the wish may be father to the belief, but from what I have seen I really think we have turned the corner."

When pressed for something more he added:

"You will understand that at the present time the less I say the better."

Beyond that he would not go. The rest of the interview was taken up with Mr. Hughes's reminiscences of previous trips to Germany and other parts of Europe in the pre-war years, when he was in law practice.

Shortly after the American correspondents had departed the Germans were ushered in and to them Secretary Hughes said virtually what he had said to the Americans, adding a few kind words about Berlin.

One German courageously endeavored to break through Mr. Hughes's reserve by asking whether he thought the London compromise of the Ruhr evacuation would facilitate the carrying out of the Dawes report, but it was useless. Mr. Hughes merely referred the audacious reporter to what he had said about the Dawes plan ushering in an era of peace and prosperity. Whereupon the Germans also departed.

One newspaper—the reactionary Deutsche Zeitung—comments impatiently on the brevity of the interview accorded by Mr. Hughes and the "formal emptiness" of his remarks. It sarcastically observes that Americans, when they coined the phrase "Time is money" did not realize that it applied to others as well as themselves. Secretary Hughes, for instance, "after getting a small crowd of German journalists to the American Embassy in order to be received by him, granted them exactly three minutes of his time."

"Including the trip to the embassy, waiting there and the time allowed for the interview, declares this disgruntled newspaper, "the German press representatives were forced to waste between one hour and one hour and a half. Mr. Hughes had much more time for the Paris press representatives."

Tombstone Kills Boy at Play in Cemetery When Companions Pull It Over Upon Him

A boyish prank came to a sudden, tragic ending yesterday when a heavy gravestone which five Jamaica schoolboys were trying to uproot in St. Monica's Cemetery toppled and fell on Chester Obuteiswos, 14, of 47 Church Street, Jamaica, and pinned him to the earth.

The boy's companions ran screaming from the cemetery, which is at Prospect and Beaver Streets, and called Patrolman Patrick O'Hannon of the Jamaica Station.

With the assistance of several passers-by the patrolman succeeded in lifting the 200-pound monument from the boy, who was taken to Mary the Immaculate Hospital, where he died half an hour later of a fractured skull.

According to the incoherent story told to the policeman by the boy's playmates, among whom were two brothers of the injured lad, they had tired of baseball and swimming and had entered the cemetery seeking new amusement. A long rope was procured by one of the lads and fastened around a large monument. Exerting their full strength the boys tugged at the stone. Suddenly it fell, pinning Chester beneath it.

RAIDERS GIVE BACK DE FRITSCH LIQUOR

TREASURY ACTS PROMPTLY

On advice of Federal Attorney William Hayward, Prohibition Enforcement Director R. Q. Merrick yesterday returned to the home of Hugo Gilbert de Fritsch, 142 East Fifty-fourth Street, the $7,500 worth of liquors seized there in a raid by three agents last Friday afternoon. The raiding agents, Robert J. Owens, William Vogt and Frank Gallo, were assigned to the trucks that conveyed the liquors to the de Fritsch home.

Another development in the case was the reported receipt of an order from Washington to dismiss Agent Owens. It was stated that the Treasury Department found that the agent had sworn to statements that were not justified by the facts in applying to United States Commissioner Boyle for a search warrant. The question of prosecuting Owens on a charge of perjury will be decided by the Department of Justice.

Mr. de Fritsch, who has been at the races in Saratoga, will return to the city today to confer with his attorney, Charles H. Griffiths, 120 Broadway, on further steps to obtain redress from the Government. Mr. de Fritsch is a clubman and a real estate dealer. His wife is a niece of the wife of Chief Justice William Howard Taft of the United States Supreme Court.

The return of the liquor was in consequence of an ultimatum sent by Griffiths that unless the confiscated goods were back in the de Fritsch home by yesterday he would take the matter to Washington. He said last night that any further action on behalf of his client would be determined in their conference on the subject today.

Mr. de Fritsch pointed out that the affidavit on which Agent Owens obtained the search and seizure warrant from Federal Commissioner John N. Boyle described the premises to be raided as a restaurant opening late at night and running until late in the morning on the first two floors of a four-story brownstone building. Until changed, the address given in the paper was 142 West Fifty-fourth Street. Griffiths said it was significant that there was a four-story brownstone house at this address, whereas the three-story white-front home of Mr. de Fritsch did not approximate the description in the affidavit of the premises to be raided.

Admits Mistake Was Made.

Chief Merrick was inclined to excuse the raiding agents, though he acknowledged that a mistake had been made. He said that once the warrant was issued the agents were compelled to act upon it. He said that he believed the facts alleged in the Owens affidavit were told to Owens and received by him in good faith. He pointed out that prohibition headquarters had received numerous complaints of residences used as "speak easies," some of them in exclusive sections.

The Divisional Chief said that some of the blame in the case attached to Commissioner Boyle, who issued the warrant. Commissioner Boyle has been considerably wrought up by what he describes as a false statement in the affidavit sworn to by Owens.

Hugh McQuillan, Chief of the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau for this district, said yesterday that he had completed his investigation and had forwarded his report to Washington. He said he expected a recommendation for action. He declined to disclose the nature of this recommendation.

No information was forthcoming from Colonel Hayward's office as to his attitude of the Federal Attorney on the circumstances surrounding the raid.

Agent Dismissed From Service.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The Treasury Department today decided that Robert J. Owens, an agent of the Prohibition Unit, had exceeded his authority in making a raid on Friday afternoon at the home of Hugo Gilbert de Fritsch, in New York, and dropped Owens from the service. This action was taken after a report had been made to the Under Secretary of the Treasury by Hugh McQuillan, Chief of the Intelligence Unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau in the New York District.

The Treasury Department did not long leave the controversy in charge of minor officials, and the report from McQuillan was sent to the Under Secretary of the Treasury and not to Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes. Mr. Haynes said today that he had not received a copy of the report and did not know what was being done.

The Treasury Department, which has supervision of the Internal Revenue Bureau and the Prohibition Unit, decided that Agent Owens had sworn to statements that were not justified by the facts in applying for a search warrant. This decision was based upon the statements made in the McQuillan report, which held that there was no evidence of any sales of liquor, and also that the de Fritsch house was in fact a residence and had been used for that purpose.

It was said at the Treasury Department that decision in regard to bringing action against Agent Owens for perjury would be left with the Department of Justice. Colonel William Hayward, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, it was said, was fully acquainted with the details of the case. The Treasury Department probably will take no further action.

EDITOR SAYS HE TOLD FALLON TO CONFESS

JUDGE INVOLVED IN CLASH

Through two sessions of a dramatic day, in which the tense nerves of witnesses, counsel and even the Court frequently gave evidence of irritation, William J. Fallon, the attorney accused of jury bribing, opened his defense yesterday before Federal Judge McClintic.

His bitterest battle was with Victor Watson, assistant publisher of The New York American, whom he cross-examined. Through a barrage of sustained objections Fallon tried to establish that the Hearst paper was behind the prosecution and had maintained important witnesses in hotels, besides giving them money. At one point in a stormy interchange between Fallon, Assistant Federal Attorney William J. Millard, Judge McClintic and the witness the Court told Fallon that he stood with his back against the wall. Later the Judge withdrew the remark.

Fallon sought to prove that if he had agreed to furnish evidence against ex-Sheriff Thomas F. Foley the accusations against himself would be dropped. He produced a witness who quoted Ernest Eidlitz, Fallon's former confidential man and a Government witness who fled for a time to Canada, as saying that Fallon had been done an injustice and that the telling of the truth would help Fallon.

Watson's Advice to Fallon.

The Government, on the other hand, presented testimony, through Watson, relating to a visit of Fallon to Watson's apartment during which, according to the witness, Watson advised Fallon to tell the truth, plead guilty and accept temporary disbarment and begin anew in the community. In narrating this conversation, Watson charged that Arnold Rothstein, the gambler, had threatened to shoot him. He said Fallon refused to "squeal" because Fallon said he felt that if he did so several persons would go to jail. Fallon asserted his purpose in visiting Watson was to obtain information.

In the course of the day there was introduced a letter purporting to have been written by Eidlitz to Watson just before Eidlitz fled to Canada, complaining that the American had not been paying Eidlitz sufficiently and warning Watson against being "double-crossed" by Federal District Attorney William Hayward. The letter also contained references to the birth certificates of a moving-picture actress.

The crowd that tried to force entrance into the courtroom was so great that six Deputy Marshals had to battle against the tide just before the afternoon session opened. It was only after a violent struggle that order was restored.

Publisher Paid Fuller Lawyer.

Questioned at length as to the whereabouts of the Eidlitz letter, Watson, who had been called to the stand by Fallon as the first witness offered by the defense, said that he did not know where it was, but thought it likely it had been destroyed when he was clearing his desk preparatory to going to Washington during the oil investigation. The examination of Watson by Fallon, a cross-examination in character, though not technically so, was as follows:

Q.—Mr. Watson, did you employ Mr. Carl Whitney or his firm to represent Fuller and McGee? A.—I did.

Q.—How much did you pay? A.—They wanted $10,000 and I pointed out that this was purely a matter of public service. I agreed to pay $5,000. The actual retainer was by Fuller and McGee. They had offered to help get money back for the creditors if I would retain an attorney for them.

Q.—Now, did you send a telegram to Fuller and McGee while they were in Ludlow Street Jail? A.—I did.

Q.—Now, in that telegram did you tell them that you could help them? A.—I don't recollect what I said in the telegram.

Q.—Did you, Mr. Watson, have a discussion with either Fuller or McGee about which one you would retain, ex-Judge Robert S. Johnstone or ex-Governor Whitman? A.—I am not sure. It is quite possible.

Q.—Now, then, what is your recollection at this time, that you did discuss with them about retaining Judge Johnstone to make an application to Judge Nott to relieve them of serving their sentences? A.—Absolutely not.

Q.—Did you discuss with them retaining ex-Judge Johnstone? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you discuss with them what he was to be retained for? A.—Yes, sir, and I have answered you in court before this and you are just trying to trick me now.

Q.—I am not trying to trick you. A.—Yes, you are.

Fallon Accuses Hearst Paper.

Our defense here, so that there can be no misunderstanding about it, is that The New York American, and we will show why later on, had an animosity against Fallon and

TWO OF OUR FLIERS READY FOR NEXT HOP; WADE OUT OF RACE

Smith and Nelson Expect to Make 300-Mile Jaunt Around Iceland Today.

ICE OFF GREENLAND COAST

Route May Have to Be Changed, but Smith Is Confident They Will Find a Way.

THIRD PLANE IS ABANDONED

Richmond Drops It, but Trawler Takes It in Tow—Wade Says He Did His Best.

HOEFN HORNAFJORD, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson, the United States Army's world fliers, are ready, if the present favorable weather conditions continue, to jump off within twenty-four hours for their 300-mile jaunt around the southern coast of Iceland and thence northward to the harbor of Reykjavik. The two planes, which are riding at their buoys inside the natural breakwater here, received a full examination today and were found to be in prime condition for a continuation of the flight.

Today Lieutenants Smith and Nelson, who were successful in making their way through fog and rain from the Orkney Islands to Iceland, expressed sincere regret over the mishap to their comrade flier, Lieutenant Leigh Wade, who was forced down yesterday by engine trouble as he was endeavoring to negotiate the route from Scotland and whose plane was wrecked as an attempt was being made to hoist it on board the cruiser Richmond.

During the day messages were received here from Wade which indicated a possibility that his plane might be repaired so that he could continue his flight. Late in the afternoon, however, advices from the Richmond indicated that the plane was so badly damaged that it was unlikely that it could be repaired.

Today the sky was slightly overcast, but the sea, which on Sunday was kicking up, making even small boat navigation from the cruiser Raleigh to the shore difficult, flattened out, and this evening the indications were that the aviators would have good weather for their Reykjavik jump.

Iceland's brief Summer is nearing its close, but the local weather prophets say there still is plenty of time for hops across the sea to Greenland if favorable opportunities are seized. The American airmen are anxious to complete their journey, so it is not likely they will miss any good chance to get going again.

Today was more or less one of rest for the airmen, as virtually all necessary work on the planes was done before they left them at their buoys yesterday.

Lieutenant Smith does not care to predict the possible effect of the fliers being held up by the Greenland ice, but he is at least considering the alternative of a direct flight from Reyjavik, on the west coast of Iceland, to Ivigtut, on the west coast of Greenland, with a possible halt at sea for refueling if conditions are favorable.

"We will find some way of making it, in any event," he said tonight.

The flight along the Iceland coast from here to Reykjavik is not considered particularly difficult, as the coast line is comparatively smooth, although there are rugged promontories, while the charts show a number of sheltered harbors where the aviators can find safe moorings if forced to descend.

Ice Reported Off Angmagsalik.

THORSHAVN, Faroe Island, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—A radio dispatch received here today from Reykjavik, Iceland, reported bad ice conditions off Angmagsalik, the first scheduled landing place of the American Army fliers in Greenland. The report said an ice-field extended for thirty miles outside the harbor of Angmagsalik, and that the Danish Government steamer Gertrud Rask, having supplies on board for the fliers, had been driving through the ice for four days and had made only fifteen miles.

The belief was expressed here today that a change might be made in the plans for the flight because of the ice conditions.

Wade Tells His Experience.

ABOARD U. S. S. RICHMOND, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—The Boston, the airplane piloted by Lieutenant Leigh Wade, was abandoned early this morning.

EXPECT DEADLOCK AT LEAST

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Endorsement by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor of La Follette and Wheeler will result in the election of the third party ticket, according to leaders of the movement here. They asserted today that the granger element of the West, speaking through the Farmer-Labor Party groups, will join with the organized workers in the cities in a fight for progressive candidates. They insist that the farmers are on the eve of breaking their ties with the Republicans, and that labor, as represented by the Federation, will swing away from Democracy.

These groups, the La Follette leaders argued, operating under a well-organized political machine, will give the third party ticket more than a fighting chance. They predict that if La Follette does not win, the election will be deadlocked, and the choice of a President will devolve upon the House, and possibly upon the Senate through the failure of the House to elect.

William L. Johnston, Chairman of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, made this statement relative to the Federation's endorsement of La Follette and Wheeler:

"I am very much pleased with the position taken by the American Federation of Labor. I cannot see how labor organized or unorganized, could lend itself to the support of the candidates of either the Democratic or the Republican Party. The Federation endorsement will give impetus to the movement among the people for the La Follette-Wheeler ticket. It will bring into line many who were in a hesitant frame of mind. Now that the Federation has spoken organized labor will swing into line behind the organized opposition to the two old parties.

"This movement looks better and more promising as it progresses. We are out to win and I am convinced, judging from developments in this three-cornered fight for the Presidency, that we are going to win. A combination of organized labor with organized farmers is bound to prove irresistible."

Declaring that "Wall Street is ready to spend millions of dollars" in support of the old party candidates for the Presidency, Chairman Johnston has sent an appeal for funds to organized labor. Announcement was made that every one who contributes $1 or more will receive a "handsome bronze emblem of La Follette and Wheeler, designed by one of America's greatest sculptors, which the contributors will be proud to wear."

"We are not seeking large contributions in this campaign," wrote Mr. Johnston in a circular letter forwarded to local lodges and divisions of organized labor. "This is the people's movement and they should finance it."

Each lodge and division was urged to appoint a committee of three "five wires" to canvass the membership "so as to give every one an opportunity to take part in this great movement by contributing $1 or more." Mr. Johnston continued:

"Every penny thus contributed will be economically expended for the campaign; accounts will be carefully audited and all funds fully accounted for. Try to make your local organization 100 per cent. for the Progressive ticket. We hope that this work will be pushed vigorously because the success of the entire campaign depends on prompt action."

In this letter Mr. Johnston referred to Senator Wheeler, the Vice Presidential candidate, as "the man who drove Attorney General Daugherty out of office." He said that in the nomination of La Follette and Wheeler organized labor, for the first time in the history of the United States, has an

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Aug. 4.—In Montana, home State of Senator Wheeler, selected by Senator La Follette as the latter's running mate in the Presidential campaign, the La Follette Progressive Party will endeavor to have the name of Governor Bryan of Nebraska put on the ballot as candidate for Vice President, it was said here today.

The announcement was telegraphed to John M. Nelson, campaign manager for La Follette in Chicago. Circulation of petitions naming Senator La Follette as candidate for President and Governor Bryan for second place will be begun, it was said.

Hugh M. Jones, Vice President of a political organization here known as "The La Follette Progressive Party in Montana," said tonight that the action was a "protest against the appointment of Dewey Dorman as Western manager for the La Follette forces."

Supporters of La Follette here said that the discord started when Sam Teegarden, mentioned by La Follette supporters as a probable candidate for United States Senator on the "La Follette Progressive Party of Montana" ticket, asserted that Dorman [illegible] to Montana at the urge of Senator [illegible] to aid the candidacy of Senator T. J. Walsh."

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 4.—John M. Nelson, national campaign manager for Senator La Follette, denied tonight that the national La Follette forces were behind the move to make Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska their Vice Presidential candidate in Montana in preference to Senator Wheeler.

"The Bryan movement in Montana is probably the work of some local organization which has nothing to do with the national La Follette campaign," said Mr. Nelson. "I have received no telegram or other information in regard to the move to put Governor Bryan on the ticket."

The situation in Senator Wheeler's home State had been muddled for some time "by people who have nothing to do with our work," Mr. Nelson declared. He said that Phillip La Follette, son of the Wisconsin Senator, had been sent to Montana to straighten out the affairs there.

SMITH WILL NOT RUN BUT WILL AID DAVIS; HYLAN STILL WAITING

CONFERS WITH NOMINEE

"We Are in Entire Accord as to Plan to Be Laid Before War Board," He Asserts.

MAYOR ISSUES STATEMENT

Hostile to Davis's Candidacy, He Withholds Indorsement Until He Sees Acceptance Speech.

Governor Smith will not run for re-election; but will do all in his power to help the Democratic national ticket by speaking throughout the country wherever the nominee and the Democratic National Committee desire.

This was learned from an authoritative source yesterday following a meeting between John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President, and Governor Smith at luncheon at the Murray Hill Hotel. It was the first conference between the two men since Mr. Davis's return from Maine.

The question of the Governor's candidacy was not discussed at the conference. Mr. Davis was told by the Governor shortly after the Democratic National Convention that he did not wish to run again, and apparently had been informed in advance of yesterday's meeting that there had been no change in the Governor's position.

Mr. Davis has said frequently since his nomination that he had no wish or intention of interfering in purely State matters and has said all along that Governor Smith's decision concerning his candidacy for re-election rested solely with the Governor himself.

Davis Pleased by Visit.

Mr. Davis seemed pleased over Governor Smith's visit. He was asked if he expected Governor Smith to work for his election with "his coat and vest off."

"I haven't the slightest doubt of it," he replied.

Governor Smith returned early in the morning from a cruise on William H. Todd's yacht Saramo and was called upon by Thomas J. Spellacy, the Democratic Eastern campaign manager, who invited him to have lunch with Mr. Davis. The Governor arrived at the Murray Hill about 2 o'clock and was with Mr. Davis for a little more than an hour.

After finishing luncheon and before completing their talk Mr. Davis and Governor Smith yielded to the importunities of photographers and went out on a balcony of the hotel, in response to a request of a motion picture camera man. Governor Smith gestured with considerable fervor, which led to a remark from a newspaper reporter that the Governor was quite an actor.

"Hollywood lost a star when the Governor kept on with politics," commented Mr. Davis with a smile.

On leaving the conference with Mr. Davis, Governor Smith was halted by a group of twenty newspaper reporters.

"What's the meaning of this gathering?" the Governor asked.

Agreed on War Plan, He Says.

"We discussed the entire situation in New York and the East," the Governor said, "and we are in entire accord as to the plan that should be laid before the War Board and the Board of Geographical Survey."

The Governor refused to discuss his candidacy. "After Smith, who?" he was asked, on the assumption that he would not run for re-election.

"The convention will decide," he replied.

The names of a number of aspirants for the Democratic nomination for Governor, including Mayor Hylan, Lieutenant Governor George R. Lunn, Attorney General Carl Sherman of Buffalo and State Senator James J. Walker, were mentioned, but the Governor refused to discuss them.

"I would not want to say anything on that now because I am the leader of the party in this State," the Governor said, with humorous reference to his claim to the leadership put forward in his speech before the Democratic National Convention after the nomination of Mr. Davis.

The practical certainty that the Governor will not be a candidate for renomination has left the field wide open, in the opinion of most Democratic leaders, and has lessened somewhat the possibility of a bitter fight between the friends of Mayor Hylan and the Governor.

Tammany friends of the Governor are not certain whether Mayor Hylan meant seriously his expression of willingness to be a candidate or whether it was merely a move, inspired by the Mayor's friendship for William Randolph Hearst, to help the candidacy of Lieutenant Governor Lunn, which has been commented upon favorably by the Hearst newspapers.

Statements Issued By Hylan.

They were not helped to solve the mystery of the Mayor's position by a statement issued by the Mayor at City Hall during the day in reply to a question as to whether he was going to support Mr. Davis.

The Mayor said he was "marking time and waiting," presumably for Mr. Davis's acceptance speech, before deciding. In words of decidedly hostile tone, he referred to Mr. Davis's connection as attorney for the New York Telephone Company in its action for higher rates, and said that Democrats opposed to the nomination of Mr. Davis said during the convention that his election would mean making the White House a subsidiary department of J. P. Morgan & Co. and painting the Capitol with the English colors.

The Mayor also took an indirect fling at Governor Smith by saying that he had been criticised for "not rushing into print with pictures of my coat off for Mr. Davis," but that his friends must remember that he was not "a 100 per cent. politician."

The Mayor's statement follows:

"It may be that there are some progressive voters in New York waiting to hear what I have to say about the Democratic ticket, but I don't know any more than they do. We're all listening and waiting.

"How can I honestly say that I accept or reject Mr. Davis and Mr. Bryan in advance of the solemn pledge they personally have yet to give to the American electorate?

"Mr. Davis would have just as much right to denounce me and reject my support because of my fighting against 10-cent carfares, high telephone rates and high gas rates in New York as I would have to repudiate him as a corporation agent because in his private capacity as an attorney at law he fought for higher telephone rates for his clientele.

Realizes He Is Being Criticised.

"It would be un-American to say that a lawyer could never be called to the judiciary or elected a public prosecutor if he had ever held a brief for a criminal, but Mr. Davis was handed a platform that was built by men who did not have him in mind as a candidate, and his own declaration of principles is the only thing that counts.

"I realize that I am being criticised by some Democrats, some unthinking—some anxious to gain personal advantage—because I have not rushed into print with pictures of my coat off for Mr. Davis, but my friends must remember that I am not a regular 100 per cent. politician.

"During the convention in New York I heard, publicly and privately, from the accredited representatives of nearly all the other candidates for the Presidential nomination—all dyed-in-the-wool Democrats—many extraordinary objections against Mr. Davis's nomination. Even though they were exaggerated, they made quite an impression on me because they were the arguments of Democrats of national as well as local reputation.

"One candidate's manager seriously urged in many places that Mr. Davis's election meant making the White House a subordinate department of J. P. Morgan & Co.; others would have the delegates believe that Mr. Davis's first job would be to have the English colors painted all over the Capitol in Washington, and so on. All these and many other objections were urged against Mr. Davis with the earnestness and fervor that the tongue of man can express. These gentlemen, agents and principals, are all on the 'band wagon' now. I admit I am bewildered. If they were right then, they must be wrong now and their prattle about 'regularity' sounds just as insincere as their pre-nomination denunciations of Mr. Davis.

"It might not be amiss for me to remind some of my Democratic critics that the late Charles F. Murphy, leader of the Democratic Party in this State, never questioned my loyalty to the Democratic Party.

"Like a lot of other American citizens, I am listening and waiting."

Silent on Hylan's Statement.

Both Mr. Davis and Governor Smith declined to comment upon Mayor Hylan's statement. Among other Democratic leaders it was taken as extremely hostile to Mr. Davis and as part of the game which Mayor Hylan and Mr. Hearst are playing. It was seen that the Mayor had left a loophole so that he could support Mr. Davis after publication of the latter's acceptance speech by saying that it was satisfactory, and it was assumed that the Mayor might do something of that sort eventually if he determined to go through with his candidacy for Governor.

Some of the leading members of Tammany were said to be willing to let the Mayor leave the gubernatorial nomination in the hope that, win or lose, it would get him out of the way for the Mayoralty nomination next year. In any event, it was said, the Mayor's candidacy would command a considerable support in New York City with Governor Smith out of the way.

Mr. Davis, in addition to his talk with Governor Smith, had a busy day at his headquarters in the Murray Hill Hotel. He conferred with Clem L. Shaver, Democratic National Chairman, who returned from Washington in the morning. Callers included Carl Vrooman of Illinois, former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture; Charles R. Crane, former Minister to China; William W. Pattangall, Democratic candidate for Governor of Maine, and Andrew J. Peters, former Mayor of Boston. Both Mr. Pattangall and Mr. Peters called on Mr. Davis during his vacation in Maine.

No Speaking Dates Made.

Despite reports to the contrary, Mr. Davis said no arrangements had been made for his speaking trip and that he had no engagements after his Clarksburg speech.

Mr. Davis probably will begin his speaking campaign immediately after Labor Day, which is the time that Governor Smith will take the stump. The length of the nominee's trip still remains to be determined and there has been no definite decision as to whether he will go to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Davis went to his home in Locust Valley last night with Frank L. Polk and Mr. and Mrs. F. Miller Gallagher, Mrs. Gallagher being a sister of Mrs. Davis. Unless something unforeseen develops to require his presence in New York, he will remain at his home today and will not come to New York again until Wednesday.

On Thursday Mr. Davis will attend the basket picnic of the Dutchess County Democratic organization at Hyde Park, N. Y. He will leave here Wednesday night and will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at their country home at Hyde Park. Mr. Davis will make no speech, except for a brief expression of thanks. The principal speech will be made by Governor Smith, who will come down from Albany.

Mr. Davis will leave for Clarksburg Friday night for the notification ceremonies on Monday. He will leave Clarksburg soon after his speech on Monday night, and will make his personal headquarters at his home in Locust Valley until the beginning of his speaking campaign.

Pell to Attend Picnic.

Herbert C. Pell, Democratic State Chairman, said that the meeting of the Democratic State Committee at noon Thursday at the National Democratic Club would not interfere with his attendance at the Dutchess County picnic, as he and a number of other members would leave for Hyde Park immediately after the meeting. Mr. Pell said the meeting would decide whether the State convention would be held at Syracuse or Utica and that he was waiting for a report on the hotel accommodations in Utica.

A delegation of the National League of Young Democrats, headed by Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan of the Court of Special Sessions, will call on Mr. Davis on his next visit to New York. Others on the committee will be Cleveland E. Dodge, William H. Edwards, Joseph M. Goldstein, Dr. Jonathan C. Day and John H. Marchmont. Arrangements for a meeting with Mr. Davis were made with Mr. Shaver by Mr. Goldstein and Mr. Marchmont. They also obtained official permission to organize Davis First Voters' Clubs throughout the country and a Davis College Men's League.

Langley's Majority Is Put at 13,000.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 4.—Senator A. O. Stanley, Democrat, and Fred M. Sackett, Republican, of Louisville, were nominated as Senatorial candidates in Saturday's Kentucky primary by majorities of about 20,000 and 30,000 each. Representative John W. Langley of Pikeville, under conviction in Federal court of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act, from which he has appealed, led for the nomination in the Tenth District by about three to one, and may have a majority of 13,000.

McCooey Back From Vacation.

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, returned yesterday from a vacation at Bethlehem, N. H., and resumed his duties as clerk of the Surrogate's Court. Mr. McCooey would not discuss politics. He said he had gone away for a rest and had devoted his time to golf and fishing and knew little of local political developments during his absence.

LABOR TO CAMPAIGN FOR THIRD TICKET

Federation Announces It Will Call on Unions for Funds and Speakers.

TO CENTRE ON CONGRESS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4. Senator La Follette telegraphed today to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, meeting here at the Hotel Ambassador, his acceptance of labor's endorsement.

Curiosity here as to how the Wisconsin Senator would take the "personal and non-partisan" aspect of the endorsement was dissipated by the wording of his telegram.

Quoting an extract from the report of the committee which declares labor "not partisan to any political party or group," Senator La Follette's telegram cites it as "a creed of citizenship which, if accepted and acted upon by the great body of the common citizens, would rapidly make the Government of our country what it was intended to be—the people's own instrument of service."

Other events of the day were a statement by Samuel Gompers in which he said it was "no fantastic thing to look for the success of Senator La Follette in the coming election," and a statement by Matthew Woll, member of the council, in which he said the Campaign Committee of the federation would cooperate with La Follette's Campaign Committee but not accept control by any organization or committee.

La Follette Thanks Gompers.

"Washington, D. C., Aug. 4, 1924.

"Hon. Samuel Gompers,

"President American Federation of Labor,

"Ambassador Hotel,

"Atlantic City, N. J.

"I desire to express my deep appreciation for the action taken by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in endorsing the independent candidacy of Senator Wheeler and myself. In taking this step after deliberate judgment the American Federation of Labor for the Progressive ticket cannot be overestimated. Your Executive Committee in stating the American Federation's political purpose says:

"'Organized labor owes allegiance to no political party or group. It is not partisan to any political party or group. It is partisan to principles, the principles of freedom, justice and democracy.'

"It seems to me that in this brief paragraph you have set forth a creed of citizenship which, if accepted and acted upon by the great body of common citizens, would rapidly make the Government of our country what it was intended to be—the people's own instrument of service. I have in my public record attested my accord with the aspirations of American wage-earners as represented by the American Federation of Labor. I welcome this endorsement, to break the combined power of selfish interests upon government is the paramount issue of this campaign, and with the support of organized labor, the farmers, business men, professional men and all other men and women whose sole interest in government is that of good citizenship, I feel confident we shall win.

"ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE."

Attacks Old Parties.

President Gompers attacks the two major parties in his statement, and says labor is going to do its best to elect La Follette and Wheeler. The statement follows:

"Our Executive Council has approved the candidacies of Senator La Follette and Senator Wheeler and every resource at our command will be used in the effort to bring about their election. We have acted in strict accordance with our long-established policy of non-partisan political action. We have never endorsed a political party or a political organization, and we stand by that refusal in the present instance. We have made it clear that between three candidacies for the Presidency we find one distinctly preferable to the other two; and the same thing applies to the platforms.

"We have protested against certain grave injustices and inequalities year after year. The platform upon which Senator La Follette and Senator Wheeler are candidates pledges definite action to correct those injustices, and we propose to do what we can to make possible the correction of those economic injustices through their success at the polls.

"It is no fantastic thing to look for the success of Senator La Follette in the coming election. America is seething with protest against the machinations of big business, the betrayal of public trust and the lack of patriotic, constructive statesmanship in the two major parties. From these we have on the one hand a frank championship of reaction, and on the other a cunning evasiveness which probably deceives not even the blindest partisans.

"Our report will immediately be broadcast to the entire labor movement. In fact, that already is in process of being done. Our system of non-partisan committees will be in action at once throughout the country. We are going to do our best to elect La Follette and Wheeler. We believe the conscience of America is aroused to the need of a new deal in our national Government and a new morality in public life generally.

To Broaden Fight.

"Of equal importance to us is the Congressional campaign. While the action taken here is in strict conformity with past policy, it does measurably broaden our field of action and we shall take full advantage of that fact. We are authorized to make known generally the records of members of Congress and to give these records the widest publicity. Heretofore we have sent these records into each individual district. It will be our business now to apprise the whole country as to the attitude of all candidates for Congress, so that national attention may be centred on the Congressional contest as a whole.

"I want to emphasize the fact that our support of Senator La Follette and Senator Wheeler does not in any way or to any degree identify us with or commit us to doctrines advocated by any other group that may be supporting the same candidates. These candidates have the support of minority groups, in themselves of no great importance, with whose doctrines we not only do not agree, but with which we are and have been in the sharpest kind of disagreement. We shall continue to oppose those doctrines at all times.

"We are in this fight, not to quibble with those who may help the cause, but to win a great victory for humanity, for democracy, for the great masses of the people of our country. Something far beyond the ordinary political issue is at stake. There is at stake the great and all-transcending issue of right against wrong, and we are for the right with all of the vigor which our great movement possesses.

"Now that our report has been adopted, it may not be amiss to say that its general lines were agreed upon by the Executive Committee of the National Non-Partisan Campaign Committee at a meeting held at Brighton Beach on the day after the Democratic Convention adjourned, and informally we were certain of what our course would be to be some days before the actual day it was possible to name before us the Democratic and Republican platforms, to be exact. I say that so that it may be known that we have arrived at our position out of the logic of events and the records of men and parties, and not out of a series of unfounded disagreements between ourselves. That, I think, should be made clear beyond any possibility of misunderstanding."

To Call on Unions.

After the morning session of the council, Matthew Woll, who has been acting as spokesman for President Gompers, said the question of getting to work to translate the endorsement into effective campaigning had been taken up.

"The Non-Partisan Campaign Committee has been authorised by the council to provide ways and means for putting the endorsement into effect," said Mr. Woll. "That means we will issue a call over the country for all our affiliated internationals and locals to aid.

"We shall begin the collecting of funds. Although we do not expect to raise millions, like other factors in the campaign, we expect to have enough to provide for the publication and distribution of campaign literature. One of our principal contributions will be that of volunteer speakers."

Mr. Woll was asked whether an assessment could be put on labor men for the purposes of the campaign.

"While I am not familiar with every constitution there is, you will find that the process of levying assessments is so strictly limited and safeguarded in the constitutions of central federated organizations that as a general reply I can say labor men cannot and will not be assessed for the purposes of the campaign. They are free to make voluntary contributions and these we will receive."

There was handed out following the afternoon session a statement from Mr. Woll which, it was announced, would serve as a summary of what he had said in the morning. This statement said in part:

"The American Federation of Labor National Non-Partisan Political Campaign Committee fully expects that there will be a coordination of effort between that organization and that national committee having Senator La Follette's campaign directly in charge. Those having like aims will naturally make every effort to harmonize their activities for the success of the national campaign.

"In the Congressional campaign, as has been clearly set forth in the report adopted, the American Federation of Labor, through its Campaign Committee, will assume a leadership. It is now possible to state that there is no intention anywhere evident to question that leadership. It will be accepted throughout the labor movement and we are confident that the qualifications of the American Federation of Labor to assume that leadership—which has always assumed—will be thoroughly understood by all important factors in the campaign.

"Labor has gone into this campaign to secure victory for the national ticket and victories in the Congressional campaigns. There are tremendous issues around which to units and we are confident that there will be not only no difficulty in securing smooth operation of campaign machinery, but that there will be enthusiastic cooperation and coordination throughout."

Various pronouncements on the subject of Congressional endorsements have somewhat paralleled those following the council meetings as to what would actually be done. The best information obtainable is that if the council takes the question up at all in its present meeting it will merely be in the form of attacking or praising certain conspicuous members of the Senate and House, and that no complete handling of the question will be undertaken until the present meeting is over and the executive heads of the Federation are back at their main office in Washington, where they will be in a better position to examine records, obtain information and tabulate the results.

WON'T ASK TRAINMEN TO BACK LA FOLLETTE

Brotherhood Chief Declares Labor Records of Davis and Coolidge Are Just as Good.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 4.—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen has endorsed no candidate for the Presidency and probably will not do so, William G. Lee, President of the organization, declared in an address here today. All three candidates have records favorable to the Brotherhood, he said. Mr. Lee is here in connection with the meeting this week of the Virginia Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, which is being held in Portsmouth.

"This organization has joined with no other labor groups in endorsing the candidacy of any one man," said Mr. Lee, "and there is little likelihood that it will. It has been reported that Senator La Follette's record has been found 100 per cent. for labor, and I can tell you that the record of John W. Davis also is 100 per cent. for labor. I have it right here in my pocket."

Referring to President Coolidge, the Brotherhood chief said the Republican candidate's record both in Massachusetts and since he had been in the White House has been entirely satisfactory to the trainmen's organization.

"We never have been a closed-shop proposition and we are not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor," he added.

Referring to Government ownership, Mr. Lee said his organization was not for Government ownership, but for Government regulation.

"We know," he declared, "that our organization and other railroad organizations have sometimes appeared to be unfair in demanding legislation, but I have said to our men they are right when they seek protective measures for the safety of themselves and the public."

UNMOVED BY FEDERATION.

Philadelphia Labor Leaders Divided as Before on La Follette.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Several men prominent in Philadelphia labor circles today expressed widely divergent views regarding the action of the council of the American Federation of Labor in endorsing La Follette and Wheeler for President and Vice President.

Some of the leaders declared they would support the third ticket, and would urge the organizations with which they were affiliated to do the same. As many others, however, said endorsement of these two men was out of the question and the choice must fall between Coolidge and Davis.

In the case of all groups the same Presidential leanings are shown as they did before the council took any action.

One of the men who declared support of the third party was out of the question was William J. Tracy, former President of the Philadelphia Building Trades Council and Chief of the State Bureau of Labor Mediation, who recently has been appointed a Federal labor conciliator. In the opinion of Mr. Tracy, the Federal Council's action will have absolutely no effect on the way Philadelphia labor's votes are cast.

No local bodies have yet met to decide whether they shall accept the Federal Council's action, but the Central Labor Union is due to meet Sunday, when it will pass on the question.

SENT THREAT TO COOLIDGE.

Special to The New York Times.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Aug. 4.—Louis Nelson of Bay County was held by the Federal Commissioner today under $5,000 bond to await the action of the Federal Grand Jury for sending President Coolidge a threatening letter through the mails.

Special Agent Snyadnax, who handled the case, said the Nelson letter was in a class by itself, and the language used denouncing the President for not signing the Bonus bill was the worst that ever came to his attention.

General Strike in Orizaba, Mexico.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Aug. 4.—A general strike is in effect in the City of Orizaba, paralyzing all business and public services. No buses or cars are running, the bakeries are closed and the hotels are without help. Only private automobiles are permitted on the streets. Negotiations between the employers and strikers have begun at Jalapa through the mediation of the Governor.

BUTLER HERE, SEES COOLIDGE 'WALK-IN'

CAMPAIGN ON, HE ASSERTS

Doubts That Labor as a Body Will Aid La Follette—Finds No Defense Day Reaction.

The third party movement will not sweep the Northwest, the section of the country in which it has been thought to be strongest, William M. Butler, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, said yesterday on his return from a two weeks' series of conferences with Western party leaders at Chicago and those of the New England States. He reported a strong swing to President Coolidge by farmers of the Northwest.

"I do not think there is going to be any La Follette sweep in the Northwest," Mr. Butler said. "I don't get it. I was out there for a week or ten days and I did not get any such impression."

Mr. Butler was asked if the rising price of wheat had not brought about a change of sentiment in the agricultural States and had caused many of the farmers to return to the Republican Party. He replied that he thought this had a great deal to do with the change in sentiment.

He was asked if he recalled a similar situation in the campaign of 1896, when it looked at first as though William J. Bryan might be elected, there was an increase in the price of agricultural products and McKinley "walked in."

Expect to "Walk In" This Year.

"We expect to walk in this year," he replied. "There has been a marked change out there and the farmers are looking toward the future with a hopeful attitude."

Asked what he though would be the effect of the American Federation of Labor's endorsement of La Follette and Wheeler, he replied:

"That question was asked me this morning. I have not got it into my mind that there was any direct endorsement of La Follette by the Federation, but believe that, whatever the endorsement might have been, the labor people will continue to separate and individually choose the candidate each will favor, as they always have done."

Mr. Butler arrived from Washington late Sunday night and went to the Hotel Biltmore. He was at the National Committee's headquarters, at 6 West Forty-sixth Street, early, and conferred with former Representative Ogden L. Mills, Hicks, in charge of the Eastern division, and Charles D. Hilles and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, members of the Republican National Committee from New York. Announcement was made of the appointment of Miss Helen Varick Boswell as assistant head of the Speakers' Bureau.

"For all practical purposes I regard the campaign as already opened, although it will not begin formally until after President Coolidge has been notified of his nomination on Aug. 14 and General Dawes on Aug. 19.

Plan to Use Radio Generously.

"There has been no change in the understanding that President Coolidge will remain in the White House and continue to perform his duties as President during the campaign. We expect to use the radio generously and probably President Coolidge will do so, but no definite arrangements for broadcasting have yet been made.

"It was my good fortune to meet a large number of people from all parts of the country during the Coolidge pre-convention campaign, a campaign which resulted in the unanimous nomination of President Coolidge. In retracing my steps I find the same signs and omens in evidence, and on this I am basing my feeling of confidence. There is an air to Coolidge as a place on the band wagon, which is encouraging, to say the least, for places on such a vehicle are not generally sought unless the traveling is good.

"The campaign at present may not be quite as spectacular as that of our opponents, but I cannot say that causes me any regret. From the beginning there has been a general harmony as to our candidates and our platform principles which has allowed us, I might say, a little more time for the ordinary mechanics which a campaign requires.

"I should like to comment on the significance of the great number of messages by wire and by letter which I am receiving from all sections of the country attesting confidence in the character and record of President Coolidge."

Sees No Defense Day Reaction.

"I have conferred with State Committeemen and party leaders in nearly all of the Western States and they express universal sentiments complimentary to the achievements of the Republican Party and President Coolidge. Not only have all reports been of an optimistic character, particularly from the agricultural West, but they have been duplicated in New York and the East."

Mr. Butler said he had been unable to discover any political reaction from the War Department's plans for the observance of Defense Day, to which Governor Bryan of Nebraska has taken exception. Mr. Butler would not comment on the political situation in Maine, where a contest over the Gubernatorial nomination by the Republicans has caused some uneasiness over the result of the State election Sept. 8.

"The National Committee has always sent large numbers of speakers into Maine and probably will do so this year," said he.

Republican leaders in Maine, it is said, are already seeking to minimize any material reduction in the usual Republican majority in Presidential years, by saying that State issues are dominant there, and that whatever the result in September an old-time Republican majority is assured at the November election. There is no State, the Republican leaders say, in which President Coolidge enjoys a greater popularity.

Denial was made by Mr. Butler that J. Mercer Vernon, arrested in Chicago early Sunday for alleged violation of the Volstead act, was his secretary.

"I know nothing of the matter beyond what I have read in the newspapers," Mr. Butler said. "Vernon is a clerk employed at the Republican National Headquarters in Chicago."

WADSWORTH REPORTS TO COOLIDGE ON STATE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Senator Wadsworth of New York had a long talk today with President Coolidge in which he analyzed the political situation in New York. He said afterward that he had gone through many sections of the State and found that the people had the utmost confidence in the President.

"I am confident that President Coolidge will carry New York," he said. "The Republicans in New York are better organized than in many years. The Democrats are demoralized and the Democratic voters are indifferent.

"In addition to general dissatisfaction, the Democrats will lose heavily to the La Follette party. Coolidge, judged by present conditions, will carry New York by a big majority, and we have an excellent chance of electing a Governor and other State officers."

Senator Wadsworth will participate extensively in the campaign. While he will devote much attention to New York, he plans to go into Western States, where the Republicans will make a strong drive, now that conditions there have improved.

Louis W. Fehr Assembly Nominee.

The Republican organization of the Seventeenth Assembly District at a meeting last night at the Liberty Republican Club, 69 West 135th Street, designated Louis W. Fehr as candidate for the Assembly. Mr. Fehr was formerly secretary of the Park Board. He is a graduate of Cornell University and of Fordham Law School.

JAPANESE COMES HERE IN INTEREST OF LEAGUE

T. Okuma Promoting Closer Bond Between Advocates in His Country and America.

To establish a still closer bond between the League of Nations advocates of Japan and those of America, T. Okuma, Secretary of the League of Nations Association of Japan, began yesterday conferences with promulgators of the League here. He will spend a week in meeting League sponsors, and on Aug. 16 will sail to attend the Fifth Assembly of the League at Geneva. He hopes also to see a closer bond established between League advocates of Japan and those of the rest of the world.

Mr. Okuma, who already has visited the League organizations at Washington and Williamstown, Mass., said yesterday that he had found a sincere desire among League sponsors in the United States to cooperate with the organization he is representing.

The organization, according to Mr. Okuma, is one of the most dynamic pro-League institutions of his native land. Formed four years ago in Tokio, it now has 2,300 active members, among them some of Japan's foremost statesmen. The association boasts an associate membership of 50,000. It is headed by Prince Tokugawa, a member of the Washington armament conference, which also was attended by another prominent member of the association, Viscount Shibusawa.

The association is "selling" the League idea in Japan through lectures in the universities, public meetings and appropriate motion pictures and music.

GUESTS ARE SELECTED FOR DAWES CEREMONY

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The official invitation list for the notification ceremonies for Charles G. Dawes, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, was completed today.

Besides the members of the committee on notification of the Vice President and all members of the National Committee, the list is understood to include the State Chairmen of all States and Republican members of the Senate and House "with certain exceptions."

Senator La Follette, Presidential candidate of the independent group, and Representative Nelson and Browne of Wisconsin, two of his lieutenants in the national campaign, are understood to be chief among the exceptions.

Senators Johnson and Shipstead of Minnesota, Farmer-Laborites, will not be included in the official list, it is understood.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS FOR WOMAN CANDIDATE

WESTPORT, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Miss Alice Paul, Vice President of the National Woman's Party, here to arrange for the party's "women for Congress" conference to take place Aug. 15, 16, 17, said tonight that the party had been asked by Democratic State headquarters "to cooperate" in nominating a woman from one New York Congressional District.

"The Democrats have promised to support such a nominee," said Miss Paul. "The district will be determined at our coming conference. We have heard nothing from the Republican Party."

3D PARTY BACKERS IN UNITED MEETING

Various Factions Behind La Follette Here Lay Out Plans Following Labor Endorsement.

HAVE SEPARATE QUARTERS

Thomas Issues Statement Concerning Situation—Fight Against Klan on Program.

The local prime movers in the campaign to place Senator La Follette in the White House got to work in earnest last night.

Representatives of all the groups which had united with the Committee of Forty-eight and the Socialist Party in support of the Wisconsin candidate held their first joint conference at the former's headquarters, 15 East Fortieth Street.

The meeting lasted till well after midnight, and details of what was being accomplished were not available. Various spokesmen disclosed to outsiders during the session, however, that a full and complete State and city program was being formulated. Plans were proposed to circulate the petitions for signatures on an elaborate scale, even to organizing an automobile brigade that would search out remote communities.

The conference came at the end of a busy day for the La Follette chieftains. Gilbert E. Roe, attorney, of 55 Liberty Street, and former law partner of Senator La Follette, opened permanent local campaign headquarters for the La Follette-Wheeler organization at 25 West Forty-third Street.

Factions Draw Social Line.

A certain social line was drawn between this group and the following of Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate for Governor. Inasmuch as the La Follette-Wheeler organization endorsed only Congressional candidates in the Fall election, and not members of State tickets, it was decided not to house both working forces in the same suites. The Socialists announced they would accordingly find quarters elsewhere.

Mr. Thomas himself issued a statement to clarify this distinction, which said:

"To set at rest unfounded rumors, I desire to state with all emphasis that no single group is trying to run the whole La Follette campaign, nationally or in this State. Still less are any of the elements seeking unfair advantage over any other group in the Progressive ranks. We are all cooperating enthusiastically in the campaign to elect La Follette and Wheeler. The Socialists are pushing their own State ticket in the interests of a future labor party movement.

"It is the general policy of the Progressive National Committee not to extend its endorsement to State tickets. It has enough to do in Federal matters.

"In accordance with this policy, the New York State Conference for Progressive Political Action is, by its call, limited to the choice of an electoral ticket. Congressional tickets will be arranged by the districts concerned. The groups in the Progressive movement will follow their own judgment in State elections. We expect various ones of them to endorse the ticket of which I am the head.

To Fight Against Klan.

"In view of the facts I have outlined we do not expect there will be general endorsement by the State Conference for Progressive Political Action for any State ticket.

"Meanwhile, we shall urge an intensive campaign against Ku Kluxism and all other attempts to divide the workers by appeals to racial or religious bigotry and for the intelligent, public control of those great economic interests necessary to common life for us all. We fight for better houses, better schools, a better living and a better life for the farmers and workers."

Senator La Follette sent a message expressing his appreciation of the 100 supporters here who pledged their aid to him in a telegram of congratulation when his candidacy was first announced. It was made public by Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation, Chairman of the Committee of One Hundred, as the supporters called themselves.

"They have no corporate connections or rich friends. They are bitterly opposed by the forces of greed and predatory wealth. Their opponents who controlled and bossed the conventions of both old parties also control the newspapers, the magazines and the radio. In order to carry out this fight to victory we must send speakers over the country and print millions of pieces of literature."

opportunity to vote for men who are wholeheartedly in accord with the great principles upon which the labor movement is founded."

Continuing, he said:

"The Democratic and Republican Parties, on the other hand, not only treated with contempt every measure of interest to the workers which representatives of organized labor presented to their national conventions, but have nominated Presidential candidates who openly proclaim their allegiance to big business and their hostility to the labor movement. Wall Street is ready to spend millions of dollars in support of its two candidates, Coolidge and Davis, because it knows that whichever one is elected will be subservient to the interests of special privilege."

Mr. Johnston described Senators La Follette and Wheeler as "men of limited means," and added:

"They have no corporate connections or rich friends. They are bitterly opposed by the forces of greed and predatory wealth. Their opponents who controlled and bossed the conventions of both old parties also control the newspapers, the magazines and the radio. In order to carry out this fight to victory we must send speakers over the country and print millions of pieces of literature."

HINGES ON GETTING LOAN

Day and Night Session Bring Treaty Nearer—Premier MacDonald Optimistic.

LONDON (Tuesday), Aug. 5.—The plenary session of the Anglo-Russian conference, held yesterday at the Foreign Office, was the first since May 27. The conference began at 11 o'clock in the morning, and after a short adjournment for dinner lasted until long after midnight, the determination apparently being to reach an agreement if possible and end the long negotiations over the proposed treaty.

Nothing has been given out officially on the subject, but it is understood that the Government will probably make an announcement in Parliament today, telling what progress, if any, has been made. The chief Russian delegate, Rakovski, returned to London from Moscow on Saturday with final instructions and these included a fresh offer, showing a desire by the Soviet authorities to settle matters.

Up to a week or two ago considerable progress had been made in drafting the commercial treaty.

Outside the conference negotiations with its bondholders of pre-war debts were in progress. These debts are estimated to total about £200,000,000. It is understood that the final offer by the Soviet took the form of recognition of liability for 50 per cent. with the payment of 25 per cent. down or 50 per cent. over a period of fifty years.

As regards compensation for property nationalized or destroyed the Soviet was prepared to make lump sum payments or grant the equivalent in concessions to those who had not been actively engaged in helping the enemies of the Soviet.

But both recognition of pre-war debts and of post-war compensation depended on the success of the Soviet in raising a loan in London. London financiers refused to consider this unless the Government guaranteed the loan. Several financiers had an interview with the Prime Minister, but he was unable to convince them that the proposed security was adequate.

Rakovsky's new offer is said to be in effect that if a loan of £20,000,000 or £30,000,000 is forthcoming, the Soviet will pay the interest and sinking fund in advance for a number of years. This it will pay out of the £10,000,000 to £15,000,000, now lying in the Bank of England, to the credit of the old Czarist Government. This amount is to be taken over by the Soviet when it assumes the liabilities of the former Russian Government.

It was stated before the conference adjourned for dinner that an agreement on a formula on the recognition of debts had been reached and that the main obstacles to the draft of the treaty had thus been removed. In fact, some parts of the treaty are believed to have been drafted and the Prime Minister is quoted as saying in private conversation yesterday that a favorable result seemed to be at hand.

While it is not said here that the British creditors are claimants will be unanimously satisfied, it is asserted that they will be willing to accept what is offered.

M'DONALD OUTLINES ACCORD TO COMMONS

store the fiscal and economic unity of Germany, an elaborate series of sections was agreed to, setting forth the steps that the German Government would have to take with the approval of the Reparation Commission, and also those which the allied Governments, or some of them, would have to take, especially the removal of all vetoes on fiscal and economic legislation passed by Germany, the restoration of full powers to German administrators regarding customs, commerce and the railways which have been taken away as part of the sanctions undertaken since Jan. 11, 1923. The same as regards economic control of private properties. Dates have been fixed for this, full operation being fixed not later than Oct. 10 next.

"This document includes technical details relating to transition periods and also an amnesty and declaration of no molestation for acts done by individuals in consequence of events since Jan. 11, 1923. This applies to both sides.

Machinery for Safeguards.

"It was essential to provide, so far as foresight would allow of it, some machinery by which the interpretation of the experts' report and of the agreement we were building up should not be left to individual Government or mere majorities of interested representatives. The conference had, therefore, to agree upon what in the nature of the case had to be a somewhat elaborate and intricate system of arbitration and safeguards, the chief points of which are:

"1. In declaring default the Reparation Commission must be unanimous or, failing this, an appeal can be brought before a body of three appointed unanimously by the commission, or, failing that, by the President of the International Court.

"2. In taking sanctions the Governments agree that they must act as trustees for all the interests created by the experts' report, and especially do no damage to the security of the loan.

"3. A disputed interpretation of the experts' report and the London agreement shall be referred to the Committee of Jurists.

"4. If the Transfer Committee be equally divided in the question of the bad faith of Germany the point shall be decided by the arbitration of a committee of economic experts.

"5. Disputes between the Transfer Committee and the German Government shall be referred, on the motion of either party, to an arbitrator announced by agreement or by the President of the International Court.

"As each Government has some doubts as regards one detail or another of the experts' plan, any Government may have referred any defect which it has experienced to the Reparation Commission, which shall forthwith refer it to a committee consisting of the Agent General for Reparation Payments, the trustees for the railway and industrial bonds and the railway bank and controller revenues commissioners; and arbitration is again provided for if the German Government or the Reparation Commission do not agree on the report presented to them.

"These safeguards have been taken to secure all parties against decisions which will be regarded as partial and unjust.

"The effect of the agreement, all of the allied Governments hope, will be to create a new spirit of cooperation on both sides, so that some points that may have still been left open, owing to the impossibility of settling them in the present state of the public mind, may become negotiable by a change in that mind.

Three Agreements to Be Executed.

"It was agreed that we had reached a point when it was necessary to pursue the discussions with representatives of the German Government, and we hope to constitute the conference tomorrow morning with these representatives present. In the end it is proposed at present that three agreements will be executed.

"A.—An agreement between the German Government and the Reparation Commission in regard to matters within the competence of the Reparation Commission.

"B.—An agreement between the allied Governments and the German Government regarding matters which require to be settled by direct agreement between these Governments.

"C.—An agreement between the allied Governments themselves regulating matters of interallied concern.

"I cannot conclude this report without expressing my great obligation to and admiration of the Premiers and leading delegates and members of the expert committees, who in a spirit of loyal accommodation have worked so hard to bring these agreements about."

When Governments May Act Alone.

In reply to a question whether provision had been made for possible differences of opinion among the allied Governments as to the kind of penalty, if any, that should be imposed in case of default being declared, Mr. MacDonald said:

"As to the action the Government may take in regard to sanctions, that matter remains where it is at the present moment."

Mr. Lloyd George asked: "Where is it?"

"At the present moment," Mr. MacDonald replied, "it is here: When the Governments meet and disagree, then it is possible for the Governments to pursue their own policy. That is how it was left by the Treaty of Versailles. I am not responsible for that. Obviously, that is a very unsatisfactory position. We have got to deal with points as they arise, and there is this to be said. I think that, if the honorable members will turn over in their minds the question as to how the machinery will work, if we could get the state of unanimity necessary before default is declared, that is the key to the whole situation. Up to now that has been impossible. Now that we have secured that, a further matter remains. It is one of those questions which I am profoundly convinced can be settled if we would once settle down to a state of cooperation, a state of confidence in each other.

"At any rate, the honorable members may rest assured that the question of the Governments taking sanctions is not likely to arise in a hurry. The Governments will continue to work away at that as best they can after the London conference has come to an end."

The Prime Minister then replied to the question whether the German loan would be guaranteed by the British Government. He said:

"We have nothing whatever to do with the loan. As I have said in my reply, we were not negotiating the loan; we were negotiating a political agreement which in its provisions would, in the opinion of those who would be responsible for asking the public to subscribe to the loan, provide good enough security for the would-be creditors. As soon as we finish this work the bankers and financial houses in New York, London, Paris and elsewhere must set about setting up the loan. All we could do was to satisfy them that the machinery that was created to make a declaration of default would be so satisfactory that a declaration of default could not naturally or humanly be made unless it was perfectly plain that default had taken place."

In reply to another question Mr. MacDonald said that the loan would be floated not under the auspices of the Government and not with the responsibility of the Government.

Then Mr. Lloyd George raised the point whether Mr. MacDonald agreed that France was right in taking separate action under the Treaty of Versailles without the assent of all the other Allies. Mr. MacDonald replied that he had always agreed with the British view that independent action was not sanctioned by the treaty.

MacDonald Yielded to Pressure.

"Since I have been in office," he continued, "I have gone through the whole matter again, and I am more confirmed now than ever in the view that the position of the British Government was right. I ought to give the House assurance on this matter when the statements I have made are in final form. At the present moment these are in the form of resolutions drafted by committees. Some of them were drafted in the early hours of the morning and under very great pressure. I declined to put my signature to those. With the substance I agreed on some points after a great amount of pressure. But a bargain is a bargain, and we cannot have everything our own way in this matter."

Mr. MacDonald under further pressure from Mr. Lloyd George, who was seeking to create the impression that the Prime Minister had implicitly acquiesced in the Franco-Belgian action in the Ruhr, emphatically repudiated any acceptance of the French point of view. What he hoped, he said, was that as the outcome of the conference there would grow up a successful system of arbitration. He would like to apply the same idea to the interpretation of the Versailles Treaty, so that all disputed points in that treaty should be referred, say, to the Court of International Justice at The Hague.

"But," he said, "I am rather afraid that in the present state of public opinion, not in this country, but elsewhere such an agreement would be impossible. I hope that at the end of six months we may be in a position to arrive at an agreement on that point; but at the moment it will have to be left over."

Expects Statement From Bankers Soon.

"What about the bankers and the loan?" Mr. Lloyd George asked next.

Mr. MacDonald replied:

"The bankers are aware of these agreements. I have had conversations with the bankers since they have had the agreements in front of them. I hope the House will pardon me if I do not go further than that, because, quite obviously, before the bankers can definitely say whether they are going to float this loan they must consult the German representatives, and it has been impossible for them to do that. After all, as the House will remember, especially those who have studied the Dawes report, the State that is responsible really in the end is not France, is not us, but Germany, and until the creditors find out the mind of Germany it is impossible for those who are advising people to put money into the loan to say whether the security is a good or bad one. But certainly I can assure the House of this result of the consultation with the bankers which I had last night and in the early hours of this morning: That I thing before the London conference adjourns we shall have a definite statement from the bankers upon the matter."

After further questions from and answers to various members, the Prime Minister concluded his statement by saying, in reply to Mr. Lloyd George, that the whole business of the London conference was the Dawes report, and that should any questions be raised as to interference under the Dawes plan with the scale of distribution settled at the Spa conference it would have to be the subject of a separate conference.

All Depends on Berlin, Herriot Says.

LONDON, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—The ultimate success of the interallied conference now depends upon the attitude of the Germans, according to Premier Herriot of France. In a statement made to the Associated Press today he said:

"If the German delegates are wise we shall have a good peace, not only for Europe but for the entire world. Everything now depends upon a proper understanding by Germany of the part she is to play. The Allies have reached a complete agreement.

"In the attainment of the happy results we have achieved France has not made a bargain, but has merely proposed a thesis of justice founded upon full recognition of the principle of arbitration, which is the basis of the London agreement."

The French Premier paid tribute to the helpful cooperation of Frank B. Kellogg, the American Ambassador, and the other American participants in the consultations. James A. Logan and Owen D. Young, in bringing about the agreement. He expressed also his gratitude to President Coolidge for the friendly interest of the American Chief Executive.

"We have reached a complete agreement, and America has been very helpful," he added. "It is only necessary now for Germany to understand her duty."

German opposition to the program for launching the Dawes plan is not expected to be directed, in the main, against the actual agreements arrived at in the Downing Street conference room in the last three weeks, but rather against an issue which has been kept entirely outside of the conference—that of military evacuation of the Ruhr.

According to a high American authority, there are but two points in the program to which the Germans can raise even a technical objection. One is the extension of deliveries in kind of coke, dyes and coal beyond the Versailles Treaty date of 1930. The other is arbitration of the question whether financial manoeuvres are taking place in Germany to defeat the functioning of the Dawes plan.

On technical grounds both of these objections would have to be considered, according to the American expert who is considered to have the greatest knowledge of the Dawes plan. Extension of deliveries in kind beyond 1930 were contemplated neither in the treaty nor in the Dawes plan. Under the new régime, however, such deliveries are to be paid for by the funds of the Agent-General and not by Germany, as heretofore, so that the German objections could hardly be justified, according to the American authorities.

Similarly technical objections could be raised on the other point, but this would be an admission that financial manoeuvres to frustrate the provisions of the Dawes plan were going to take place in Germany.

Despite the absence of moral grounds for objection to the work of the interallied conference, the Americans believe these two points will be raised by Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, unless an agreement is reached between the Allies and Germany on the question of military evacuation of the Ruhr. If a satisfactory settlement is forthcoming on this issue, the belief prevails that the Germans will not mention other technical issues.

The German delegation will arrive in London tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock and will be quartered in one of London's finest hotels as the guests of the British Government. The documents which the conference has drawn up will be formally presented to the Germans at noon tomorrow for their consideration, after which the conferees will adjourn, to reassemble again in plenary session on Wednesday, when the Germans will be requested to state their views on the program which the conference has adopted for inaugurating the new reparations era.

GERMAN DELEGATION STARTS FOR LONDON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The German delegation to the London conference started this morning from the Friedrichstrasse station. It is headed by Chancellor Marx and Dr. Stresemann, the Foreign Minister. The German delegates are traveling on a special section following the regular express train for the Hook of Holland, from which they will be ferried across the North Sea to Harwich and thence taken by rail to London.

After the exciting succession of days during which, so to speak, the Germans kept their bags packed in readiness for the eagerly expected invitation to London, there is a tendency in Berlin now to sit tight and wait for what may happen when MacDonald and Herriot at last meet Marx and Stresemann on the battlefield of the Dawes report.

What particularly worries the Germans just now is the question of the evacuation of the Ruhr. Most of them are firm in the belief that without such evacuation the Dawes report will have no effect. Hence they are greatly disappointed to learn that the statesmen deliberating in London have not declared unequivocally that the triumphant march of Dawes to regenerate Europe presupposes the departure of the French and Belgans, bag and baggage, from every Ruhr town occupied by them. But even on this sore point the Berlin press and the man in the street are aware of ... today. Their ... waiting to see what London does to Marx and Stresemann, or they to it.

One thing, however, seems certain, namely, that if Marx and Stresemann return from London to announce that the French will remain much longer in the Ruhr, they will have a bad quarter of an hour in the Reichstag when they reappear before that turbulent body.

BERLIN, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—The delegation which started for the London conference this morning is composed of Chancellor Marx, Dr. Stresemann, the Foreign Minister; Dr. Luther, the Finance Minister, and Herr von Schubert, Foreign Office Commissioner. Accompanying the plenipotentiaries were representatives of Prussia and Bavaria and a number of experts.

HERRIOT GAINS AT HOME.

Parliament Will Probably Approve London Settlement as It Stands.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—It is believed here that if Premier Herriot can bring home a report of Germany's full acceptance of the accord reached in London by the Allies for putting the Dawes plan into execution, the agreement will be approved by the French Parliament. This does not mean that he will win without a fight, for the Nationalists continue their hostility; but it is apparent that the Premier has made gains among Frenchmen of moderate views, who sincerely wish to give the Dawes plan a fair trial if that can be done without binding France not to take independent measures if five or ten years from now Germany again becomes strong enough to defy her, and if in such a case the other Allies refuse to act.

The situation here as indicated in the press is that, while the strictly political journals of the Left declare that Herriot has made miraculous progress, and the strictly political papers of the Right declare that he is selling out France, the middle ground of opinion has swung toward him.

There is a strong feeling in all quarters here against debating with the Germans on equal terms, and even the moderates will probably be found bitterly opposing any procedure which allows Germany to tell the Allies what she sees fit to do and what she does not.

However, the prospect of the Allies facing Germany with a united front has calmed much opposition to Herriot's compromises. The French expect that front to hold solid in this week's negotiations.

Although the French are prepared to make concessions to put the Dawes plan into operation they do not hold the same opinion of this plan as many observers in England and the United States. This difference of view is to be explained by the deep-seated French distrust of the Germans. Frenchmen do not believe that the whole reparation will be solved when Germany signs the London protocol which allows the Dawes plan to begin functioning. They say that it merely offers Germany a newer and easier way to pay, but that it is worth nothing unless Germany tries to pay. They contend that France will get little out of the plan for four or five years, whereas Germany will get a great deal, and therefore they are intent on protecting themselves against possible developments when the time comes for Germany really to pay something.

Both French Chambers are now adjourned for the vacation season, subject to the call of their Presidents. They will almost certainly be called to pass upon the London settlement, the fate of which will probably depend on the extent of the changes made after the debates with the Germans.

GERMAN BONDS ADVANCE HERE

Prussian 3½s Rise From $1,500 to $3,000 Per Million Marks.

German bonds had a violent rise yesterday in the New York market, based on speculative buying which came entirely from abroad, and the New York houses which handle these securities—at present not listed on any of the exchanges—changed their quotations from moment to moment to keep up with the buying orders which flooded them all day. The Prussian 3½s, a consolidated and non-callable loan, which last Monday sold at $1,500 per million marks, yesterday sold at $3,000, and the German 5s, also a consolidated loan, which sold at $40 to the million last Friday, were quoted at $90 to $100 to the million yesterday.

It was believed by the dealers here, who were somewhat bewildered by the buying orders which came over the cables, that German speculators and some others on the Continent were taking a chance that those bonds would be "scaled down" in the reparations settlement and would not lose their entire value. There was some intimation by the dealers, although they could not positively identify it, that some of the buying was for Government account.

The outstanding feature of the speculative flare-up of these bonds was that the inquiry came entirely from abroad, and American holders who had taken an interest in them appeared more willing to sell than to buy. The head of one of the largest houses in Wall Street which handles these securities said yesterday that, although his firm handled them to the amount of many million marks, there was not a single buying order which did not come from Germany or the Continent. It was intimated that the Prussian Government might be interested in buying the bonds at their present depreciated values, as measured in paper marks.

There is no accurate market for the German issues in New York. More than a year ago they were removed from the New York Curb list after the decline in marks which rendered the bonds almost valueless. Since that time the only dealings have been "over the counter" and from house to house. The dealers themselves have maintained the market.

The low point touched by the 3½s, according to the dealers, was 420 per million marks. The 5s sold down to $3 per million.

ROME, Aug. 4.—On the eve of the arrival of the German delegates in London both the press and public opinion have had to revise the gloomy forecasts which they have consistently made since its convocation as to the outcome of the Interallied Conference. It is freely conceded tonight that the conference has obtained results far in excess of general expectation, and that the longest step toward pacification and a return to settled conditions since the signing of the Treaty of Versailles has been taken.

A great share of the credit for this success is given to the decisive, though unofficial, influence of the United States, which is considered largely to have swayed the decisions of the conference.

GENEVA, Aug. 4.—The League of Nations Opium Commission convened its sixth session today to consider a program for the international conference at Geneva in November. A sub-committee has been preparing this program.

Great Britain and the United States favor the definite limitation of opium production, while France and Holland prefer a system of rigid control.

BRITISH SCIENTIST MISSING IN CANADA

LAST SEEN AT QUEBEC BRIDGE

No News of Him at Hotels or Booking Offices After Systematic Search by Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4.—Sir George Greenhill, 76 years old, an English mathematician, who came to Canada to attend the convention of the British Association for the Advancement of Science which is being held in Toronto this week, has been missing since yesterday morning.

Sir George was a member of the party which left Quebec for Montreal on the Canadian National Railways special train, which stopped so that the party could examine the Quebec Bridge.

He mixed freely with delegates during the journey and was seen when the train stopped at the St. Lawrence River span, but not after the party reached Montreal.

For the greater part of Sunday little uneasiness was felt, for Sir George Greenhill was believed to have a number of old acquaintances in Montreal, and it was thought that he might have separated from the party with the intention of going ahead to Toronto alone.

Today, however, systematic search at city hotels was made without success. Wires sent to Toronto failed to show that Sir George had gone on ahead and there was no news at the local booking offices and railroad stations.

Sir George Greenhill was formerly Professor of Mathematics in the Artillery College, Woolwich. He is a member of the Athenæum Club and was made a Knight in 1908. Among his various publications are:

"Differential and Integral Calculus With Applications," 1895; "Applications of the Elliptic Function," 1892; "Hydrostatics," 1894; "Notes on Dynamics," 1908; "Report 19, Theory of a Stream Line With Application to an Airplane," 1910, 1916; "Dynamics of Mechanical Flight," 1912; "Report 140, Gyroscopic Theory," 1914.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON (Tuesday), Aug. 5.—The painting depicting Lady Astor taking her seat in the House of Commons is to be removed from the grand staircase of the House of Commons, according to several of this morning's papers. It will be taken away during the coming recess.

Authorities of the House of Commons have been reluctant to give any order for its removal, as it was hung by sanction of the late First Commissioner of Works. It is now believed, however, that in view of the general feeling among the Members of the House of Commons, it will be removed at the donor's request.

ROGER CASEMENT SERVICE.

Irish Societies Here Hold a Memorial Meeting.

A memorial service for Sir Roger Casement, who was put to death as a spy by the British on Aug. 1, 1916, was held last night at Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street.

All the Irish societies were represented. Fean Conway, Chairman, said that a copy of the minutes of the meeting would be called to newspapers in Great Britain, Ireland and Continental Europe. Together with the minutes will be forwarded a protest against "the cruelties practiced by Great Britain in Ireland."

M. Herbert Rogers was another speaker, and Professor Thomas E. Hannon led the singing of Irish hymns and songs. According to Mr. Conway, Aug. 3 will be set aside hereafter as Casement memorial day.

KILL GIRL'S ASSAILANT.

Officers Besiege Fugitive in a House at Norco, La.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 4.—John Tripolini, who shot and probably fatally wounded a 15-year-old girl yesterday near Norco, St. Charles Parish, thirty miles up the Mississippi River from New Orleans, was discovered early today barricaded in a house and was shot and killed by officers after they had laid siege to the place.

Colonel Guy Molone, Superintendent of the New Orleans Police Department, and one of his men who had gone to the scene at the request of Sheriff Vial of St. Charles Parish, armed with teargas bombs, fired more than 500 times with rifles into Tripolini's refuge.

Tripolini's victim, whose name was not given in reports received here, was a neighbor with whom he had become infatuated, the police say.

MEXICANS PURSUE THE EVANS SLAYERS

with the discussion of the agrarian question relative to the haciendas owned by Mrs. Evans, but the Government of Mexico has confidence that the investigation now under way will show that no connection with this question exists and that the present lamentable affair is due to the ordinary crime of robbery.

"The Mexican Government, notwithstanding this, states that those responsible for this crime will be punished with all energy and that it will proceed at once with due diligence to clear up the situation, since Mexico is the most interested party.

"The Mexican Government has received from the American Embassy, using its offices for British subjects, requests for information as to this case and has been answered as above. We will continue informing the embassy as to the development of the case and results of the investigation."

Foreign colonies here are apprehensive over the possibilities of a diplomatic crisis growing out of the murder of Mrs. Evans, who, though an American woman by birth, was the widow of a British subject and thus acquired her husband's nationality.

The death of Mrs. Evans was not unexpected as continuous friction between her and her agrarian neighbors during the past year had shown that the lone woman was in continual danger, despite assurances of the Government that she would be protected.

Mrs. Evans displayed great bravery in sticking to her farm in spite of many threats that she would be killed. For some months an American youth, George Camp, lived at the farm, assisting the widow in her fight, and as signs of trouble had disappeared recently, he returned to Mexico City, leaving Mrs. Evans alone except for a German electrician who was acting as paymaster at the farm.

Report Rebels Responsible.

Authorities from the small town of Tianguismanalco assisted in carrying the body of Mrs. Evans to the City Hall after the tragedy, later transferring it to the home of a Spanish subject, Luciano Rodrigues, owner of the largest store in town.

The hacienda of San Pedro Coxtocan, owned by Mrs. Evans, which had been the scene of struggles with agrarians, who demanded part of it for public lands, has been abandoned by the farm workers, who fear the same fate as Mrs. Evans.

A report of the tragedy received at the American Embassy here, differs from first accounts of the killing. According to this information Mrs. Evans was killed by mounted men, said to be part of the Rural Guards under the command of General Lucas Gonzales. The Embassy report also stated that Mrs. Evans was roped by a lasso by one guard and dragged behind his horse for nearly a mile.

El Sol this afternoon states that the death of Mrs. Evans was decided upon in a hotel in San Antonio by rebel leaders, who are seeking to provoke difficulties between England, the United States and Mexico. El Sol states that the news of the murder was known in the rebel groups interested in having the crime committed almost before it was known here.

Estate Passes to Americans.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—While the body of Mrs. Evans was on the way to Mexico City today for burial beside that of Mr. Evans in the British cemetery here, a detachment of Federal troops and mounted police from Puebla scoured the territory in the vicinity of the Evans hacienda, San Pedro Coxtocan, for the band of unknown men who slew her and seriously wounded her farm manager, John Strauss, as they were driving along the road to the ranch, and escaped with a sum of money they were carrying from Texmelucan for the ranch workers.

Additional special dispatches from Puebla and Texmelucan confirm the first reports of the tragedy, which were brought to Mexico City early Sunday morning by a Spanish merchant of Texmelucan, Luciano Rodrigues. Rodrigues, who brought Mrs. Evans's body to Texmelucan from the hamlet of Portezuelas at the hacienda where she was ambushed, drove his automobile across the country to Mexico City for the purpose of informing the British and United States diplomatic officials of the crime.

With the death of Mrs. Evans her estate passes to her brothers and sisters, all of whom are American citizens, while the dispute over the land division under the agrarian legislation comes under the direct jurisdiction of the American Embassy, which previously was acting in that matter owing to the fact that it took over British affairs in Mexico because of the departure last June of Mr. Cummins.

The United States Embassy has already taken steps necessary to assure the possession of the hacienda for Mrs. Evans's heirs, while the apartment which she maintained in Mexico City has been sealed for the purpose of safeguarding important documents which were kept there by the slain woman, which are said to have considerable bearing on the long fight which she waged against the expropriation of her estate.

Indignation in Britain.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The murder of Mrs. Evans has caused a big sensation here, and as soon as the news of it reached London questions were put to the Prime Minister in the House of Commons, asking what action he proposed to take.

He answered that all he could say was that Mrs. Evans was murdered on Aug. 2 by unknown assassins when traveling back from Mexico City to her farm. He was waiting for fuller details from the American Chargé d'Affaires at Mexico City, who was taking the matter up with the Mexican authorities and had promised to report to him.

Sir W. Davidson asked whether Mr. MacDonald would say what action the Government proposed to take with regard to the murder of this British subject, which they had ample notice was likely to take place.

Mr. Hannan asked:

"Has the right honorable gentlemen sent a message to the American Chargé d'Affaires to communicate to Mexico City? Is a British subject to be murdered like this?"

Cheers greeted this, and Unionist cries of "And you don't care about it," and Ministerial replies of "Yes, we do."

Mr. MacDonald replied:

"Surely that is quite unnecessary. I only saw this telegram, which I have just read to the House, this afternoon, but I am informed that steps were taken at once to get information from Mexico City. We are awaiting full details, which have been promised. That means that the details are coming, that they are being collected and that full information will be in our hands. Until that information is in our hands I can make no further statement."

Another member asked if a definite claim would be made against the Mexican Government. Mr. MacDonald replied:

"As soon as I get information the House may depend upon my acting upon it. I cannot say what will be done until I get the information."

The indignation expressed in the House of Commons over the crime is reflected in newspaper editorials, which recall Mr. Cummins's spirited defense of Mrs. Evans and how on June 3 he described the situation as most critical. It is added that a month later Mr. MacDonald had heard that she was "in no immediate danger," and that her trouble about harvesting her crops was "being dealt with."

"That was on July 7," says The London Times. "On Aug. 2 she was dead."

The Times adds that although there is no evidence at present to show who the murderers are, "presumably the project of dispatching Sir Thomas Hohler to Mexico, with the intention of giving recognition to the Government of President Obregon, will be dropped until ample satisfaction has been made for this cruel murder of a British lady, guilty of no offence but a brave and resolute defence of her legal rights. Thousands of our countrymen and countrywomen are obliged to live in half-civilized communities for the conduct of trade, on which our existence depends. Interest as well as justice forbids that we should allow their property or their lives to be taken with impunity."

The Daily News declares that Mrs. Evans was the "victim of cruelty and greed." It reminds its readers that when questioned in Parliament Mr. MacDonald said the "whole story is an exceedingly romantic one," and adds:

"It cannot now be so described, for it is no longer a romance, but a tragedy. As such it calls for very stern and immediate redress."

American Charge Acts for British.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—In response to a request from the Charge d'Affaires of the American Embassy in Mexico City H. F. A. Schoenfeld, the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs has assured the American officials that immediate steps will be taken to apprehend the murderers of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, the British subject who was shot dead in the vicinity of Texmelucan, State of Puebla, Saturday evening.

The British Consulate has sent a member of its staff, Mr. Holcombe, to occupy Mrs. Evans's property temporarily.

Last Letter to Her Sister.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—For several weeks before Mrs. Rosalie Evans was shot and killed she had been forced to live in an embattled state, despite assurances from the American Ambassador, Charles B. Warren, that she would be protected and that she had nothing to fear, said a letter received from Mrs. Evans by her sister, Mrs. W. J. Pettus here. Mrs. Pettus is the wife of the commanding officer at the Marine Hospital here.

The letter, written July 27, said she had been forced to stay in town because of threats of the Mexican agrarians and that George Camp, Texas World War veteran, who was at the head of her little force of loyal field workers holding the hacienda, had found it necessary to leave on the Thursday before the letter was written.

INDICT THREE MEN IN GAS BOMB PLOT

CHARGE ATTACK ON SENATE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 4.—The Grand Jury for Providence County returned indictments tonight against William C. Pelkey, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, William Murray, alias "Toots" Murray, of Boston, and John T. Toomey of Johnston, R. I., charging them with conspiracy to assault Lieutenant Governor Toupin and the Rhode Island Senate with a bromine gas bomb on the morning of June 19, during a filibuster conducted by Democrats.

The indictments, containing four counts, charge that the defendants not only attempted assault on the Lieutenant Governor, but also conspired to obstruct him in the execution of his office and to disrupt the session of the Senate.

Following the report of the jury, after it had been in session for almost eight hours, Judge Hahn on the motion of Attorney General Carpenter, who preferred the charges, ordered capiases to issue for the defendants. Their pleas will be heard next Friday and their cases tried on Oct. 6, the opening day of the Fall term of the Superior Court.

The indictments are the result of affidavits obtained last month from Thomas Lally of Brooklyn and Matthew McGovern of Boston at New York by Governor Flynn and Attorney General Carpenter. Lally and McGovern were hired by the Republicans to act as guards both during Senate sessions and at the Rutland (Mass.) retreat of the self-exiled Republican Senators.

In his affidavit Lally accuses Murray of actually placing the gas bomb, which sickened several Republican Senators and one or two Democrats when its fumes penetrated the chamber. The Lieutenant Governor was not affected.

After the incident the Republican Senators, constituting a majority, left the State and later, after assembling at Rutland, declared their intention not to return until they were guaranteed "fair treatment" at the hands of Lieutenant Governor Toupin who, they said, violated all the rules of parliamentary law as presiding officer.

Lally's affidavit charged Toomey and Pelkey with instigating the placing of the bomb by Murray. He deposed that he had been approached first by Toomey and asked to place near the Lieutenant Governor a package which Toomey carried in his pocket. After his refusal, Lally states, Toomey called Murray and later Lally saw Murray drop something near the Lieutenant Governor's rostrum and step on it.

Both Lally's and McGovern's affidavits declare that Thomas J. McGauley, Republican Reading Clerk of the House, said to them on different occasions in Providence and Rutland that he had been requested by Pelkey to see that the bomb was placed, but that he had refused.

FIRE AT ROCKAWAY BEACH.

Four-Alarm Blaze Destroys a Shop and Four Dwelling Places.

Fire destroyed a baker's shop, a furnished room house and three small dwellings last night at Rockaway between Beach 105th and Beach 106th Streets, Seaside. A man who jumped through a window and cut his foot was the only person injured. Four alarms were turned in, bringing apparatus from Jamaica.

The extent of the damage was not estimated.

ANOTHER WOMAN GAINS SUMMIT OF MT. ROBSON

Special to The New York Times.

JASPER, Alberta, Aug. 4.—Another successful ascent of Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies (13,068 feet above sea level), has been made, and again a woman took part in the climb. She was Miss Helen Buck of New York. The other members of the party were the Rev. D. R. Sharpe of Nelson, B. C., Watcheler of Regina and Alfred Streich, one of the Swiss guides employed at Jasper Park Lodge by the Canadian National Railways. This party reached the base camp on Saturday afternoon after its successful climb.

A second party, which included Dr. Cora Best of Minneapolis, Mrs. Audrey Shipman of Ann Arbor, Mich., Miss Mary Davis of Weston, Mass., and Ivan Miller of Vancouver, B. C., had planned to attempt Robson Sunday but was turned back by unfavorable weather conditions.

ROB BANK, KILL POLICEMAN.

Detroit Bandits Shoot Guard Down and Flee With Currency.

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—Bandits held up and robbed the Charlevoix Avenue branch of the Continental Bank today and during the affair shot and killed Patrolman George Ashworth. They escaped with some currency.

According to employes of the bank, the robbers drew up in a touring car, three of them entering the door and a fourth remaining in the automobile. As they went in they saw two patrolmen, who had been stationed there following a holdup about a month ago, and immediately opened fire. Ashworth dropped to the floor, shot through the head. The bandits then forced other employes to hold up their hands while they scooped up what currency they could find and dashed out and away in the car.

Bank officers closed the institution following the holdup and refused to divulge the amount of currency taken. Police estimated it at $3,400.

Police tonight were seeking Fred Parmentire, who escaped ten days ago from the prisoners' ward of the receiving hospital, on the theory that he may have been one of the robbers. Several hours after the hold-up, the automobile used by the bandits, two shotguns, a cap and two blood-stained straw hats, one pierced by a bullet, were found.

NEWLYWED COUPLE BEATEN.

Found in Kitchen of Home When Police Answer "Murder" Call.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 4.—County police were sent to Little Ferry tonight when word reached here that a "murder" had been committed in a house on Heckel Street. They found Michael Kles, 48 years old, and his wife Kathie, 45, on the kitchen floor. Both had been seriously injured. The husband had several scalp lacerations, a possible fracture of the skull and a bullet wound in his left leg, while the woman was badly cut about the head. The husband was taken to Hackensack Hospital and the woman was treated by a surgeon at home.

Kles and his wife were arrested, together with Mr. Kles's son-in-law, August Geng. Each was held under $500 bail, the husband and the wife on a disorderly conduct charge and Geng as a material witness. The Kleses were married two weeks ago.

Withdraws Assault Charge.

A charge of assault preferred by Karl Decker, of the Morning Telegraph, against Clayland T. Morgan, 31 years old, of the Seventy-First Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, and Benjamin L. Middern, 29 years old, an artist, of the Hotel Des Artistes, was dismissed by Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham in the West Side Court yesterday. Decker told the Magistrate that the defendants were friends of his and that he had no desire to press the complaint.

FRANKS SLAYERS ARE DEVOID OF SOUL

balanced in mental life," but resisted State's Attorney Crowe's effort to have him admit that Leopold was "insane."

It was another effort by the State's Attorney to have the hearing for punishment of Leopold and Richard Loeb turned into a jury trial on a plea of legal insanity.

"Doesn't what you have said mean you think he is insane?" asked Mr. Crowe.

"I did not use the term sane or insane and do not think in those terms," replied Dr. Healy.

There was a visible relaxation of interested persons after the defense got past that danger signal of "possible jury trial."

Dr. Healy's testimony, as was that of Dr. White, was chiefly a contrasting of the emotional and intellectual lives of Leopold and Loeb, with the indicated purpose of swaying the Court's judgment toward mitigation in fixing punishment because the undeveloped emotional sides of their personalities had overshadowed their powerful intellects and had made them incapable of resisting the putting into action of crime as built up in their childish phantasies.

Says Both Built "Phantasy Lives."

"It was very clear from a study of the boys, separated, that each had peculiarities in his mental life, that each arrived at peculiarities by a different route, and each supplemented the other's already abnormal needs in a most unique way," testified Dr. Healy. "Their compact, their quarrels and their deeds all went to show a most strange and pathological relation."

Leopold is of high nervous instability and shows evidence of pathology of glands of internal secretion, Dr. Healy declared.

"My judgment is that there seems to be some steady impairment of Leopold's judgment concerning himself, particularly his relationship to life," continued the specialist. "His day-dreaming or phantasies are very important, not because we are not all subject to them, but because his early life day-dreaming was so abnormal and has been carried along so abnormally. He had established a pathological personality when he met Loeb."

As to Loeb, Dr. Healy remarked that his ready acceptance of jail life, jail clothing and discipline of incarceration was indicative of his "living out his phantasy life," in which he had builded himself up as the world's greatest criminal and, behind jail bars, the object of morbid curiosity.

Intellectual attainments of the youths Dr. Healy referred to as exceptional, particularly those of Leopold. He read into the record various lengthy tests given Leopold and Loeb. Leopold also invariably achieved perfect marks, while in Loeb's case, his marks in some instances graded as failures.

Dr. Healy will resume on the witness stand tomorrow morning with an indicated thirty minutes more of direct testimony. Mr. Crowe said his cross-examination probably would require an hour.

Leopold High, Loeb Low in Tests.

Testifying as to various mental tests he had given the boys, and upon insistence by Mr. Crowe, Dr. Healy read voluminously into the record a report of the various questions and steps of the tests. Dr. Healy said that one test, usually requiring five minutes for the most intelligent persons, had been answered perfectly by Leopold in 3 minutes 15 seconds, the quickest he ever had heard of it being solved in.

"I found him a calm and well-built fellow," Dr. Healy said regarding Loeb. The doctor said that while Loeb measured up very high intellectually, he fell down in a number of tests for an 18-year-old youth.

"On the Monroe silent reading test he failed," said the witness, "and raised a score of the twelfth grade."

Leopold and Loeb nodded and whispered together, and Loeb merely glanced about when Dr. Healy told how he had fallen down on various tests.

As Dr. Healy testified to his high intellect Leopold blushed and smiled widely, while Loeb, lips parted slightly, sat interested but unsmiling. "A most remarkably short time," was repeated over and over as Dr. Healy testified as to the rapidity with which Leopold's mind's reactions had permitted solving the various tests.

Dr. Healy testified that in a word reaction test in which he suggested one word and Leopold mentioned the word that one brought into his mind, Leopold's mind functioned slowly when "chisel" and "trouble" were mentioned. A chisel was the instrument of death in the Franks murder.

Leopold scored only 56 out of a possible 100 in a picture cut-out test, "just average for a 12-year-old child," said Dr. Healy, "very poorly indeed, much to my surprise."

Dr. Healy brought in some cut-out tests, resembling jig-saw puzzles, asked for by the State. He told Judge Caverly that "many a shrewd country boy has done much better than Leopold with that."

Feels Like Napoleon at St. Helena.

"Throughout the tests Leopold showed himself self-centred and egotistic beyond any normal stage," the witness testified. "Concerning his personality, one finds him very energetic, physically and mentally; very enthusiastic and forceful about anything he initiates, and for years has been very rebellious against social and religious obligations."

Concerning Loeb, Dr. Healy declared, "there were any number of minor thefts he committed for the purpose of apparently getting a thrill. In the matter of their association I have the boys' stories told separately about an incredibly absurd childish compact which bound them and which bears out in Leopold's case particularly the idea of his mental condition.

"Loeb says the association gave him the opportunity of getting some one to carry out his criminalistic imaginations. In the case of Leopold, the direct cause of his criminalistic acts was this particular childish compact."

"It is particularly clear that Leopold is enjoying immensely the part he is playing," said the doctor. "It is much like a drama, and he thought the best way was to play the whole thing out, whatever the ending.

"He says he is a superman, and on the basis of the philosophy of Nietzsche. In jail he feels similar to Napoleon on St. Helena.

"Leopold's main concern seems to be as he says, whether the reporters say the right things about him. I saw no evidence of what one might expect of a normal emotional life in jail or related to his discussion of the crime."

Dr. Healy touched on the "slayerking" phantasy brought out previously by Dr. White and his testimony closely paralleled that of the Washington psychiatrist.

Says Both Would Murder Again.

Dr. Healy testified that both boys had told him they would again go through with the Franks murder if their associations and the conditions were the same. He said Loeb told him he "found nothing to deter him," and that Leopold had said he would commit the crime again "if it gave him pleasure."

"Leopold ridicules our type of work as far as society is concerned," testified Dr. Healy. "He says he does not lack a balance, nor have a mental disorder. He says his only difference from others is in his superiority. My idea of this is that his ideas show defective judgment, no normal attitude, and that he is not headed consistently toward alleged superiority."

The witness then cited the following expressions of Leopold:

"I revel in the fact I had no ground for conscience.

"I was trying to kill affection, to break down any feeling I had for my family.

"He doubted the existence of conscience," said Dr. Healy, "of things learned at his mother's knees. He said he could by experiment completely down it. He developed the superman idea."

The witness proceeded with an analysis of Leopold's character from early childhood, closely paralleling the testimony of Dr. White. He said a profound disorder of judgment was indicated by a boy of his marked attainments being "ready to go on with these utterly pernicious activities."

"I asked him what hardships he had in the world," the witness continued, "and he said he hadn't any, that he was not permitted to have any."

"He thought of himself as a complete individual, who might experiment with ideas of right and wrong, of God," said Dr. Healy. "You remember he told authorities conscience was drilled into him until eight years and then he proceeded to drill it out.

CRAIG SUBPOENAS 56 HIRSHFIELD MEN

ACT CALLED "PICAYUNISH"

Controller Is Accused of Holding Up Legitimate Claims and Crippling City Department.

Controller Charles L. Craig started out yesterday to demonstrate to Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield that investigations and skirmishes with subpoenas as weapons were games at which two could play.

When the power of subpoena, snatched from him by a State Legislature, was restored, by grace of the Municipal Assembly and Mayor Hylan, a few days ago, Commissioner Hirshfield declared that he expected to "go after" Controller Craig right at the point where he had left off when his loss of the subpoena power had left him weaponless, as there were certain matters in the Finance Department concerning which he desired to question Mr. Craig and some of its subordinates.

Instead of waiting for Mr. Hirshfield to make good this threat, the Controller yesterday assumed the offensive and turned the legal weapon of the subpoena upon the office of Commissioner Hirshfield himself. Fifty-six investigators who are enrolled under Commissioner Hirshfield in the Department of Accounts and Investigation were summoned by the Controller for investigation concerning sundry and divers items contained in their respective expense accounts, to an aggregate of $625. The appearance of the men so served will cover a period of a week. As the auditor of claims against the city, Controller Craig also holds the coveted power of subpoena.

When Commissioner Hirshfield heard what the Controller had done he was indignant. "It is picayunish," he said. "He had allowed these claims for the last seven years, and he is now holding up the legitimate contingent expenses of the employes of my office, which consist of nothing more than carfares and telephone charges, such as are provided for under the budget of my department. Craig took this action after he had learned that he was about to be served with mandamus papers compelling him to show cause why he should not pay these legitimate claims. By his action, the taxpayers should know, he is crippling the activities of my office staff for an entire week and tying up part of his own office, at a loss greater than the small claim he is attempting to dispute. His motive in investigating the account is merely his attempt to justify his right to hold up the expense claims of my office staff."

PLAN POLITICAL GOLF GAME.

Democratic and Republican Leaders Would Meet on Green.

If plans now being perfected go through leading Democrats will meet leading Republicans in the near future and play eighteen holes of golf for the glory of their respective parties. Peter J. McCoy, Chairman of the Golf Committee of the National Republican Club, is working out the arrangements with Eugene Sullivan, Chairman of the Democratic Club's Golf Committee.

Mr. McCoy said the plans call for foursomes to follow each other at five-minute intervals, and to begin at nine o'clock on the morning of the day chosen. It is expected that there will be about seventy-five entries and as there is to be no age or weight limit the number may reach a hundred.

While there is still much planning to do, Mr. McCoy and Mr. Sullivan hope to have Governor Smith and another Democratic Governor play against two Republican Governors; to have United States Senators divided in the same way, and then to have the other contestants, possibly Mayors and the like, consist of equally famous and well-known representatives of the two old parties.

2 MEN PICKED UP AT SEA.

Swimming Around a Burning Motor Boat When Discovered.

Two men were found swimming around a burning motor boat about eight miles off Long Beach shortly after Sunday midnight and were rescued by the Coast Guard Cutter Seneca, under command of Captain Edmund Blake. The Seneca sighted the flames from a distance of three miles. The men were transferred to the Coast Guard Cutter Wissahickon and were to have been brought to the Custom House yesterday for questioning as to the reason for their presence that far from shore. It was said at the office of Assistant Customs Solicitor Edward J. Barnes, however, that the men had been released as there was no evidence of rum running and no admission on their part of having had contraband in the boat.

The men described themselves as Andrew Mosenor and John Edward, both of Freeport, and the motorboat which sank was listed in the Customs records as the property of Grover Walsh of Freeport. Both men had life belts on when picked up and were almost exhausted.

A NEW CITY MAGISTRATE.

Louis B. Brodsky, an Attorney, Named by Mayor Hylan.

Louis B. Brodsky, an attorney at 299 Broadway, has been appointed a City Magistrate by Mayor Hylan. The new Magistrate will be installed today by Chief City Magistrate McAdoo at the Essex Market Court, to which he has been assigned. Although the appointment was made on Aug. 1, the Mayor made no official announcement of it.

Brodsky is not a member of Tammany Hall, but a Democrat. Since his admission to the bar in 1901 he has practiced in all of the courts. He is a graduate of the Law School of New York University, a member of the New York County Lawyers Association, a director of the Israel Zion Hospital and a member of the Jewish Educational Society and other organizations. Mr. Brodsky, who lives at 228 West Seventy-eighth Street, said his appointment was a surprise to him and followed his being summoned to the City Hall by the Mayor.

MANY HERE FROM SWEDEN.

Immigrants Coming In Under the Law Recently Passed.

The Swedish-American liner Drottningholm arrived yesterday from Gothenburg with 268 quota passengers in the second class and 225 in the third, the first of the new quota immigrants to arrive from Sweden. On her way here she stopped at Halifax to land 119 immigrants bound for the Scandinavian colonies in Western Canada, each of whom received a bounty of $15 from the Dominion Government to help pay expenses. Two-thirds of the immigrants who arrived here were men and boys.

Among the cabin passengers were Dr. and Mrs. Herman Olson of Pittsburgh, who returned from a three months' visit in Denmark, Norway and Sweden. Mrs. Olson said she was surprised to see women in Copenhagen smoking big cigars as they walked through the park. In Sweden, she said, the women smoked cigarettes.

UPSHAW IS PRAISED BY DAVIS AND M'ADOO

The Upshaw National Committee gave a reception last night at the home of Mrs. Frances Howlett-Wright, 285 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, in honor of William D. Upshaw, Representative in Congress from Georgia. Mr. Upshaw was a silent listener to speeches of felicitation, and later he left for Chautauqua, N. Y., where he will speak at the fiftieth anniversary of the Chautauqua.

Phineas V. Stephens, President of the American Industries Engineering Company, 5 Beekman Street, presided. He is Chairman of the committee.

Mr. Stephens read letters praising Mr. Upshaw and his service in Congress from William G. McAdoo and from John W. Davis. Both thanked Mr. Upshaw for the manner in which he withdrew as a candidate for Vice President when another Southerner was nominated for the Presidency.

"Mr. Upshaw is a splendid man and Democrat and his statement as to why he withdrew does his credit," wrote Mr. McAdoo in his letter to Mr. Stephens.

The committee adopted a resolution urging the Fifth District, Georgia, to return Mr. Upshaw to Congress unanimously when his present term expires. This was offered by Mrs. Ida Richards Compton of Washington, D. C., President of the Women's Upshaw Committee of One Hundred in Washington.

900 Scranton Miners Strike.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 4.—More than 900 employes of the Greenwood colliery of the Hudson Coal Company went on strike today. Failure of the company to meet union officers on pending grievances and the refusal of forty workers to pay the assessment of 25 cents a month to aid idle miners were responsible for the walkout.

ADOPTS NEW TAXI RATE.

Luxor Fare Now 15 Cents for First Quarter Mile, 5 Cents Thereafter.

The Luxor Cab Company has decided to adopt a rate of 15 cents for the first quarter mile and 5 cents for each quarter of a mile thereafter. It was announced yesterday by Jerome L. Davis, the general manager, who said that meters registering that rate had been ordered and would be installed as fast as they were received from the manufacturers.

This decision marks the abandonment of the rate of 20 cents for the first mile by the Luxor organization, and those taxicabs will now endeavor to protect themselves against the losses that are said to have occurred as a result of attempting to carry passengers for 10 cents for each of the first two half miles. The rate of 20 cents a mile, after the first mile, will still be maintained. Mr. Davis said there was a strong sentiment for the change among the drivers and that he did not believe the public would be at all critical.

Julius Becker, formerly Vice President of the Mogul Checker Cab Company, said that the United States Cab Corporation would continue to operate at 20 cents a mile, the meters registering 10 cents for each half mile.

SEAPLANE RACE PLANS.

Lieut. Rittenhouse to Head Team of the American Navy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Lieutenant David Rittenhouse, winner in the 1923 international seaplane races, will head the American Navy team in this year's contests at Bay Shore Park, Baltimore, Oct. 24 and 25, the Navy Department announced today. Other members of the team will include Lieutenant A. W. Gorton, also a participant in 1923; Lieutenants H. A. Ofstie and C. F. Cuddihy.

Seven laps around a 3-mile triangular course will constitute the race. All the planes, it is expected, will be visible to spectators throughout a major portion of the contest. Navy submarine chasers with radio equipment will be stationed at the turning point and by use of loud speakers on shore plan to keep spectators informed of the progress.

MORROW PRESENTS BIG BANKERS' CASE

METHOD OF SELLING BONDS

LEAGUE'S RECORD IS TOLD

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 4.—Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co. presented the case of the international banker to the Institute of Politics today in an address on "The Nature, Personnel and Organization of International Finance." The banker spoke at the open conference on "International Finance in the Commercial Policies of Nations," under the leadership of W. S. Culbertson, Vice Chairman of the Tariff Commission, and was heard by virtually all the 225 members of the institute.

Mr. Morrow's speech attracted the greatest interest of any event in the institute to date, in view of the basic importance of the proposed $200,000,000 international loan to Germany as the foundation of the Dawes plan for the reconstruction of Europe and for permanent peace and prosperity throughout the world. His own position and the presence of J. P. Morgan and Thomas W. Lamont in Great Britain during the London conference added to the interest.

The address made a favorable impression on its hearers, including economists, educators, business men and political and military experts, some of whom, however, asked Mr. Morrow questions, indicating their antagonism to some aspects of international banking.

It was felt after the conference that Mr. Morrow had dispelled many of the notions resulting from widespread attacks on international bankers. He left the impression of the latter international brokers as an indispensable factor in modern civilization, performing functions without which the world today could not exist.

The effect of such a presentation of the international bankers' case upon a gathering like the Institute of Politics was regarded as important, for its members, it is believed, will have considerable influence on public opinion when they return to their universities and offices with first-hand knowledge of the subject. The full text of Mr. Morrow's address cannot be made public, as he came here on the understanding that only those parts which he authorized should be made public.

In that part of his speech which he permitted to be reported, Mr. Morrow urged an intelligent appreciation of the situation existing among the people of Europe. He pointed out that Americans frequently base their opinions of European affairs upon stories of disturbances, clashes and struggles which appear in the press because they are news, while they do not see or hear of the growing of wheat or the other advances toward a return to normal conditions.

As to the assertion often heard on this side of the Atlantic, that Americans can do nothing for Europe until she stops fighting, Mr. Morrow pointed out that the history of Europe was not so much different from that of the United States, after all. He referred to the Civil War, saying it had taken this country four years of warfare to settle a question which had been settled without recourse to arms in Europe some years before the Civil War.

Describes International Loans.

Coming to the relation between international banking and conditions now existing in the world, Mr. Morrow described the methods of flotation and distribution of international loans. He emphasized the statement that the really important factor to be considered in international loans was not the big banking houses that underwrite the loans, but the actual investor, large or small, who exchanges his savings for the promise of a foreign Government.

"Who is the investor who buys foreign bonds?" Mr. Morrow continued. "It is not an easy question to answer. When a foreign loan is offered to American investors the managing house in New York City enlists the cooperation of 500 or perhaps 1,000 investment bankers scattered all over the United States. It is the function of the local investment banker to find the man with savings and to show that man that it is to his interest to trade off his savings for the promise of a foreign Government.

"The managing house in New York, of course, rarely meets the ultimate buyer of the bonds. The managing house makes its sales in large part through the 500 or 1,000 investment houses located throughout the Union. These houses have developed their own local clientele of investors. That clientele is necessarily constantly growing and changing, dependent upon the character and the ability and the record for successful judgment that the investment house has established.

"Now, it is not an easy thing—in fact, it is a somewhat impertinent thing—to request the local investment houses for information concerning the exact persons who constitute their own clientele.

"Statistics appearing on the printed page are always impressive. When one attempts to gather a few simple statistics, however, as to those matters of which he is supposed to be in a peculiar position to have knowledge, he realizes how many qualifications must be read into any given group of statistics.

How Austrian Bonds Were Sold.

"In order that I might be able to give you a little of that personal picture of who this actual investor in foreign bonds is, I have obtained from three houses, located in different parts of the country and of different size, some analysis of the actual sales of bonds which they have made of recent issues.

"I will take, first, the sale of the $25,000,000 Austrian 7s, sold in June, 1923.

"House A, with offices in the East and the Central West, made 140 sales each of $5,000 and under; sixteen sales each in an amount between $5,000 and $10,000, and ten sales each above $10,000. By this house there were 166 sales in all, averaging $3,300.

"House B, located in the Northwest, made forty sales from $100 to $500; eighty-four sales at $1,000; thirty-seven sales from $1,500 to $2,500; twenty-six sales from $3,000 to $5,000, and two sales in larger amounts, making a total of 189 sales averaging $1,475.

House C, a New England organization, made forty-three sales in amounts from $100 to $2,500, and eleven sales in larger amounts, making a total of fifty-four sales averaging $2,200 to each person.

"These same three houses assisted in placing the $150,000,000 Japanese 6½ per cent. bonds, sold in February of this year.

"House A made 984 sales in amounts up to $5,000; 149 sales in amounts from $5,000 to $10,000, and seventy-five sales over $10,000, a total of 1,206 sales with an average of about $3,750.

"House B made forty sales of $100 each, twenty-three sales of $200 each, ninety-eight sales around $500, 165 sales of $1,000, seventy sales from $1,100 to $2,500, fifty-five sales from $3,000 to $5,000, six sales from $5,000 to $10,000 and five sales from $11,000 to $20,000. In all a total of 480 sales with an average amount of $1,575.

"House C made sixty-four sales in amounts from $100 to $2,500 and nine sales in larger amounts. In all seventy-three sales for an average of $1,700.

"The foregoing statistics do not necessarily picture the record of the whole loan. However, the three houses chosen, as I have said, are representative. Together, through their clients, they provided in amount 6 per cent. of the money loaned by America to Austria and 3½ per cent. of the money loaned by America to Japan. Through the three houses 400 people participated in the Austrian loan, the average investment of those 400 people being $2,350. Through the three houses 1,741 people participated in the Japanese loan, the average investment of those 1,741 people being $3,100.

Number of Bond Takers.

"I am not sure that those of you who are engaged in making up statistics will permit me to draw conclusions from too few samples. I think, however, that it might be fair to assume that the $25,000,000 of Austrian bonds were taken in this country by 11,000 people, and that the $150,000,000 Japanese bonds were taken by 48,000 pepople.

"Now, the important thing to note is that the 11,000 people in America who loaned $25,000,000 to Austria and the 48,000 people in America who loaned the $150,000,000 to Japan are the people who have saved money. The investment in these loans represents the savings of the plain, old-fashioned man who spends less than he produces and thus creates the fund without which all the plans for the reconstruction of the world will come to naught. He may be rich or he may be poor. He may be a banker, or a merchant, or a stenographer, or a school teacher, but he must be a saver, for it will be true in the future, as it has been in the past, that there is only one way for the capital fund to increase, and that is by the accumulation of saving.

"Now, why did these people lend money to Austria or Japan? I think you will agree with me that the best way to judge the motives of other people is to examine your own. The man in the Middle West who responded to an invitation from the investment banker in his city to buy an Austrian bond would probably put in the very forefront of his reasons for making the investment that he had confidence in the banker's offering of the investment.

"I think the investor might also have desired to secure the 7 per cent. interest on the bond which he was able to buy at 90. Do not think that I am trying to exclude sentiment from the investment of money. I think it very probable in the instance of the Austrian loan that more than one investor throughout this country was stirred by the thought of participating in the wonderful experiment in self-help and international cooperation which had been brought about by the financial section of the League of Nations under the able leadership of Sir Arthur Salter.

Japan's Loan on Pacific Coast.

"I do not want to bother you with further statistics, but it may interest you to know that approximately $3,750,000 of the Japanese loan was taken on the Pacific Coast. Why did these people surrender their savings in return for the promise of the Japanese nation, situated on the other side of the earth, and under a contract which made it the duty, not of the present people in Japan but of their successors in the Japanese nation, to pay back the principal on the date of maturity? I think for the same type of reasons that I have tried to indicate in the case of Austria.

"The thing that makes the credit of a great nation is very intangible, but it added materially to the success of the Japanese loan that that intensely patriotic people have always been so jealous of their national credit. In 1905 the Japanese Government borrowed £60,000,000 in the London and New York market. These loans, by their terms, matured in 1925. By 1923 the Japanese Government had retired £25,000,000 and had accumulated in cash, in British Treasury bills and in United States Treasury certificates, sufficient funds to retire at maturity the remaining portion of the debt.

Says Bankers Must Hold Confidence.

"I have already said that one of the strong factors inducing people to invest money is their confidence in the bankers who offer the investment. Those of you who invest your own savings must know that this is true, and, if it be true, it of course throws a very heavy responsibility upon the banker.

"The banker is human. He may make mistakes. But one thing he cannot do; he cannot offer to his clients an investment that he does not believe to be good. He may do what he pleases with his own money. He may contribute his money to charities if he so desires. When he is offering to others an investment, however, he must believe that the interest and principal are secure. Nor is this enough. When a banker lends his influence to directing savings into an investment he must believe not only that the investor is properly secured, but also that the investment is a constructive one."

At the end of his address Mr. Morrow was "heckled" in a polite way by six of his auditors—Rear Admiral W. L. Rodgers, retired, former Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Navy General Board; Major Gen. William Crozier, retired, former President of the Army War College; Victor Rosewater, former Chairman of the Republican National Committee; Yoshitaro Yamaga of the Japanese Embassy, Professor Edward P. Warner of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Rev. William Channing Brown, a Unitarian minister of Boston.

The questions and answers were of a controversial nature, and, under the agreement with Mr. Morrow, were not made public.

In his introduction of Mr. Morrow Mr. Culbertson said:

"It cannot be emphasized too strongly that international bankers have the opportunities and responsibilities of statesmen. The American Government also has an obligation to the people of the United States to define a constructive democratic policy toward the export of capital."

Sir James Salter Optimistic.

Views fully as optimistic as those of Mr. Morrow were expressed tonight by Sir James Arthur Salter of Geneva, director of the economic and finance section of the League of Nations, who was Chairman of the committee responsible for the financial rehabilitation of Austria under the League of Nations. Speaking on "Economic Recovery in the World," Sir James asserted that the settlement of the German reparation problem would afford a basis of certainty upon which statesmen and traders could work with confidence, and would permit the economic life of the world to attain a new equilibrium.

"I firmly believe," he said, "that for several years the economic recovery of Europe, disguised by the fall and fluctuation of exchange, and retarded by the central problem of reparations, has been steadily progressing."

The audience displayed special interest because of Sir James's connection with the League, in his summary of what already had been accomplished in the reconstruction of Europe, both through the League and outside of it.

"The League has taken two of the countries of Europe whose conditions were most desperate—Austria and Hungary—and has secured for them a definite basis of financial stability and economic development," he said, "Austria's currency, until the Autumn of 1922 almost the least stable outside of Russia, has since then been the most stable of all, as stable as the dollar itself. In place of an impoverished dependence upon the charity of other countries, she has reached a stable and self-supporting prosperity. Hungary is well on the same road.

"In both cases financial reconstruction has been attended by political security. Peace and political security have been established in a central and crucial region of Europe. In place of a morass of depreciation, impoverishment, disorganization and political insecurity, we have established an island of order and stability and assured peace.

"Within a smaller range and a different form the League is now assisting Greece in its most serious economic problem, the settlement of its million refugees in productive employment.

Other League Accomplishments.

"To take minor cases a stable currency is Danzig in place of the demoralized mark; an economically successful administration of the Saar basin; the resumption of production and the termination of disorder in Upper Silesia (after the allied Governments had for many months failed through other channels) have all been achieved through the League. In many respects, they add these previous models assisted the experts in the preparation of their scheme for Germany.

"In addition to work in specific countries, the League has assisted the resumption of international trade by negotiations designed to simplify passport and customs formalities and to facilitate international transport."

"Poland has built a strong and prosperous economic life in spite of all the disturbance of its disorganized exchange, and is now making a notable, and so far successful, attempt to obtain stability even in its finances. Even in Russia there seems now a slow building up from a lower economic level. Czechoslovakia has restored her finances and established an apparent stability. The north of Europe is generally sound.

"Even in Germany the durability and toughness of her economic life in the midst of apparently crushing difficulties have certainly exceeded the economists' anticipations. That disorganization in the Ruhr did not cause greater havoc in countries so intimately connected with it as Holland, Czechoslovakia and Switzerland, shows how strongly rooted and stable the economic life of these countries had become.

"The essential economic strength of France, and the limits which this strength enables her to set to her financial troubles when she cares to make the effort, are now well recognized. The economic position of Italy has obviously become more stable.

"In Great Britain—dependent above all on external trade, and therefore above all injured by impediments in international traffic—the position and the prospects are at least better than they have been for years."

Points to Causes of Trouble.

The present economic trouble with the world, Sir James said, was not Bolshevism, the shortage of mercantile shipment, the shortage of raw materials, lack of enough production to support a reasonable standard of life, or inadequacy of railroads, as various diagnosticians had held, but "a misdirection of effort, a maladjustment of supply and demand, a sense of insecurity, diminishing savings, disorganization of the system of credit and a restriction of the range of international commerce—that is what is wrong, and practically the whole of what is wrong."

Discussing fluctuations in exchanges, Sir James said the remedy was "in some cases the continuance of such international efforts as are being made in Austria and Hungary; in others the successful completion of national efforts, and, above all, the removal—let us hope now in sight by the adoption of the Dawes report—of the great element of uncertainty in the financial estimates of some of the main countries of Europe as unsettled reparation obligation."

Sir James said he thought most of the published reports in America during the last few years had been "much too pessimistic," the tendency to take currency variations as an index of economic development often resulting in misleading conclusions.

"I believe definitely," he added, "that Europe is progressing and not falling back, and that, given peace and confidence in peace, the progress will continue."

Young Sees Europe Getting Normal.

Another optimistic statement on the present economic situation of Europe was made by Allyn Abbott Young, Professor of Economics at Harvard, at the round table he heads on "the financial rehabilitation of Europe."

Leaving out Russia and Germany, he said, the present economic condition of Europe was close to 90 per cent. of normal.

"In the state of foreign trade, agriculture, industrial production, the budget, debts, currency, and in every possible way, Professor Young said, "Europe is better off than she was a year ago, and was better off a year ago than the year before that."

The chief difficulties of Europe, he said, were financial. Want of credit and lack of ability to purchase necessary goods, he went on, were what affected it seriously.

"The financial disarrangements which the war has left," he added, "are by all odds the most serious in present and permanent effects of all the economic heritages of the war."

Europe's financial problems, Professor Young continued, fell into three classes—budget, currency and foreign debts, including reparations. Discussing American policy with respect to these problems, he said:

"We may be able to refrain from active political participation in Europe, but whether we do or not, in view of the responsibilities put upon Americans by the Dawes plan, we cannot avoid participating in the rehabilitation of Europe in an economic way. The possibility of European stability rests in part upon our monetary policy."

Finds Europe Not as Bad as Painted.

Aside from the financial problems, Professor Young said, the position of Europe was not nearly as bad as certain writers had represented it. Referring to statements by J. M. Keynes, Frank A. Vanderlip and Dr. Moulton during the last five years that Europe had been approaching a precipice, he said that either the rate of approach had been very slow or the precipice had been receding.

"Vital statistics are a good index of the adequacy of the material resources upon which human life is supported," he said. "Since the war the excess of births over deaths in Europe has been about what it was before the war. In Germany, Hungary, Russia, Italy and Bulgaria the excess of births over deaths has been greater, on a comparative scale, than in the United States. In Germany, despite malnutrition, the infantile death rate (the proportion of children who die within a year) has been about 15 per cent., as against 15 per cent. before the war."

The destruction of accumulated wealth during the war was hardly more important than the retarding of the formation of new capital, the professor said. With respect to "working capital," such as stocks of goods, Europe was even now the better part of a year behind. To repair such losses called necessarily for some lowering of the real standard of living in Europe, but for nothing like enforced impoverishment.

"The loss of established market connections has hurt Europe's export industries," he continued, "but this loss is more than offset by the advantages given by her debtor position. Foreign debts burden a country, but stimulate its export industries."

Sidney Bradshaw Fay, Professor of European History at Smith College, opened his round table conference on "political factors in Europe today" with a discussion of responsibility for the war. He said that all Germany hoped for a revision of Article 231 of the treaty of Versailles laying the responsibility upon her and her allies, and that Germany, while she had sincerely accepted the Dawes report and honestly intended to put it in operation, probably after a few years "will seek a revision of the reparations obligation, both on the ground of the injustice of Article 231 and the difficulty of transferring payments across the frontier out of Germany, even as limited in the Dawes report."

The fear that Germany might later seek a revision, he added, "explains the persistency with which at the London conference France seeks to retain the possibility of independent action in case of future German default."

International Disputes Discussed.

At the round table conference on "the conflict of laws and international trade," Arthur K. Kuhn of New York discussed disputes arising between traders of various countries as "one of the most fruitful sources of international disputes and even war."

Before the World War, Mr. Kuhn said, the tendency in all countries was to give foreign traders equal treatment, but there was now a tendency to favor natives and tax foreigners heavily.

Mr. Kuhn urged the settlement of such disputes by negotiation between boards of trade of the various countries by means of standard forms of contract. He said this would be in the interest of friendly international feeling.

As an example of a dispute which should be settled in this way, he mentioned the trade with South America, which before the war was chiefly with England and Germany but was now largely with the United States. He said there had been disagreement between American merchants and South American buyers because of the difference between American methods of packing, shipping and credit and European methods.

"The South American buyers," Mr. Kuhn went on, "are advocating a system of trade by which they would have the right to inspect the goods they buy as they arrive in the South American ports, with the power to reject them if they are not as ordered. This is opposed by the American exporters, who claim their goods must be accepted as shipped."

Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan-American Union, at his round table on "Inter-American relations," the elements of a constructive Pan-American policy, said he believed the United States was entering an era of better feeling with Latin America because of growing conviction there of the sincerity of purpose of this country.

With a little thought and for the sake of our host, if no other, we should try to make social occasions enjoyable all around the table.

In this particular instance, as is almost always the case, the person this refers to had personal experiences she could easily have talked about to the delight of the people generally.

PARIS OPENINGS BY CABLE GREAT SUCCESS

News received same day as openings, and the fashions then shown on mannequins at Wanamakers.

This is the first time New Yorkers at home have ever been able to attend the fashion openings of the great couturiers abroad. Not literally attend, of course, but the direct cable from Paris gives word pictures of the new fashions at the same clock hour as they are being presented by the famous Parisian couturiers.

This has been made possible by the installation in the Gray Fashion Salons of a Western Union direct cable station, connecting the Wanamaker House of Paris with John Wanamaker, New York.

Fashion Tendencies Illustrated

In addition to the "word pictures," we are presenting fashions and materials that will illustrate the TREND of the new mode. Yes, trend, as science has not yet perfected a long-distance detail photography that spans the ocean. For instance, yesterday, when news was received that kasha was being shown, that skirts were 14 inches from the ground and, in many cases, flaring in front, that crepe degrade was being used for evening, we immediately presented these details in frocks, gowns, coats, suits and wraps for both Miss 14 to 20 and women. We are introducing this new kind of fashion service so that you may be guided immediately in the selection of your Autumn wardrobe.

WRECKED AGAIN, MACLAREN QUITS

British World Flier Has Climax of Bad Luck at Nikolski on Siberian Island.

NO REPAIRS FOR AIRPLANE

CORDOVA, Alaska, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—Major A. Stuart MacLaren, leader of the British round-the-world flight which started at Calshot, England, March 25, announced in a wireless message received here today that the venture had been abandoned at Nikolski, Komanderski Islands, Siberia.

Major MacLaren said that to abandon the flight was necessary because no spare parts were obtainable to repair damages to the airplane used by the expedition. The machine fell near Nikolski Saturday, as it was about to complete a flight from Petropavlovsk. The message said:

"Wings, floats and tail smashed and as no spares available necessary abandon flight. Hull and engine salvaged and taken aboard by Thiepval."

The message said that the Thiepval, a trawler in the Canadian fisheries service, reached Nikolski Saturday evening, having hurried from Petropavlovsk after the airplane departed from there Thursday. The airplane went to West Kamchatka, whence a flight was made Saturday to Nikolski.

All of the days mentioned in this account are according to the American week, although Petropavlovsk, West Kamchatka and Nikolski, all Russian territory, are west of the international date line.

A later message from Major MacLaren said:

"Owing to thick fog was forced to descend near the Komandorski Islands. Machine so seriously damaged that we were forced to abandon the flight and will return by way of Vancouver, B. C., aboard the Thiepval."

Bad Luck Pursued MacLaren.

Major MacLaren had completed about 11,100 miles of his 30,000-mile round-the-world air voyage and surmounted a disheartening series of hardships and mishaps, when luck finally deserted him for good and all in the bleak reaches of Bering Sea.

The Kommander, or Komandorski, Islands, where the British flier and his comrades were reported down for the last time, is a Russian possession lying in about latitude 55 degrees north and longitude 167 degrees east. The group, comprising two rocky headlands known as Bering and Copper Islands, are regarded by geologists as a westerly continuation of the Aleutian Islands, aiming like an arrowhead at the centre of the Kamchatka Peninsula.

Major MacLaren accordingly quits the race at a point some 1,000 miles due north of Tokio, a leg of his journey on which he had been in almost continuous difficulty. The British aviator flew from Shanghai, China, to Kagoshima, Japan, on July 5. The following day his fuel ran out and he dropped down on Susami, where he was refueled from a Japanese naval plane and then safely made his next objective, Kashimote, twenty-five miles ahead, on July 6. Twenty-four hours later he arrived at Kasumigaura, the Japanese naval base near Tokio.

After a few days in which to overhaul his badly wracked plane, Major MacLaren began the first stretch of his journey across the Pacific, heading for Minato. He reached Minato July 13, but only after being forced once to return to Kasumigaura and to land twice en route because of heavy fogs, which made flying dangerous.

Reported Lost on Flight North.

The next day he pressed on to Yetorufu Island, in the Kuriles, setting his pontoons down cleanly upon the quiet waters of Toshimoye Lake. Weather-bound for a time, he struck out for Paramashiru, Kurile Islands, and was reported missing for several days, while Japanese destroyers started search. He was finally sighted by a merchantman, who reported his location. After leaving Yetorufu, a dense fog had forced him down at Uruppu, an adjoining island, which the destroyers had overlooked because of its proximity to his starting point. He remained there two more days because of a cold contracted by his mechanician, who had become ill in Shanghai and rejoined him in Tokio. He finally reached Paramashiru Island July 22.

Exasperated by these constant breaks in the schedule he had set himself, Major MacLaren waited only for daylight until he put Paramashiru behind him, and was off for Kamchatka, landing at Petropaviovsk the next day. There he met Lieut. Col. L. E. Broome of the British Air Service, his "advance man" throughout the attempt to girdle the globe, who was aboard the steamer Thiepval of the Canadian fisheries patrol. Lieut. Col. Broome was to fly with MacLaren to Nikolski, the next stop scheduled after Petropaviovsk and the spot, it proved, where the gallant expedition ended.

Starting his long flight March 25 from Calshot Airdome, Southampton, England, Major MacLaren got a few days jump in an admitted race with the American world fliers. Planning to make Lyons, France, his first stop, he was forced to land at Havre, after narrowly missing a cliff in the fog. Four days later he lost the first day on his schedule when he had to repair a broken float. His engine weakened on the next jump and he came down at Corfu Island on the way to Athens, where a new engine was sent to him from London.

He made good time, however, until he reached India where, on April 26, he was forced down at Parku, 172 miles from Ajmer Rajputna, again a victim of engine trouble. He hove to until new parts arrived from Karachi. He lost another day on the way to Allahabad, which he sighted May 14—water in his petrol supply. At Calcutta on May 16 he waited while a new low compression engine was installed. Five days later he crashed in the harbor at Akyab, Burma, and the flight seemed off.

American's Speed Him Spare Plane.

At the suggestion of the rival American fliers racing down from the north, the destroyer, John Paul Jones, at Hakodate, Japan, took aboard a new spare plane belonging to Major MacLaren and sped for Hongkong, where the new machine was transferred to the destroyer Preston and relayed to Akyab. The distance from Hakodate to Akyab was about 1,500 miles.

"Hats off to the Stars and Stripes for real sportsmanship," Major MacLaren cabled to the American Naval Attaché at Tokio, and members of the Royal Air Force more than returned the courtesy when Lieutenants Smith, Nelson and Wade passed through India.

With the new plane, Major MacLaren reached Rangoon June 25 after a stiff flight marred by two forced landings, one at Gwa, another in the Delta. Cutting across the Bay of Bengal, he passed the American world cruisers, the two parties dipping wings in salute. Touching at Hongkong July 2, the British airman then aped on to Shanghai, via Foochow.

In the light of the untimely ending of Major MacLaren's flight, fliers here recalled a German comment which appeared while he was laid up at Akyab. These experts believed MacLaren's crash in monsoon weather in Burma indicated that it was impossible for a wooden plane to fly from the Arctic to the Equator without undergoing such chances as to make the machine unflightworthy. It was asked if MacLaren's collapse was not due to the weakening effect of desert heat, salt water and cold climates in too quick succession.

The MacLaren flight has sometimes been referred to as "meagrely financed and hastily planned." The London Times contrasted the "thoroughness" of the American preparations with "the all too scanty Government assistance accorded to Squadron Leader MacLaren who, so far, has received more help when in need from the United States Navy and the Japanese Navy and the Canadian Government than he has received from his own countrymen."

Major MacLaren was accompanied by W. N. Plenberleith, pilot, and Engineer Sergeant Andrews, mechanician.

PAYS OUR FLIERS TRIBUTE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—A fine tribute to the American world fliers and American naval officers for the help they gave to Major MacLaren is paid by Lieut. Col. L. E. Broome, who in a letter from Tokio to The London Times, writes as follows:

"I hope this letter will reach you before the American round-the-world flight alights on English soil, for I have a pleasant tale to tell.

"One Sunday morning, May 25 of this year, to be exact, I was having breakfast in the bedroom of the leader of the flight, Lieutenant Smith, in the Imperial Hotel in Tokio. This was arranged so that we could be free from interruption and talk flying shop, and swap experiences to our hearts' content, for Lieutenant Smith and the stout lads with him had just flown across the Pacific Ocean for the first time in history, and I had preceded him over the same route by a few weeks in a rusty, fussy little trawler, laying Major MacLaren's dumps.

"I found a merry, towsleheaded party running in and out of the bedroom in various stages of dishabille and getting into their uniforms in readiness for the day's arrangements, for Japan was pouring out the splendid hospitality of the East and was delighting in doing them honor for their great feat. We ordered grape fruit, ham and eggs and coffee, and settled down to recount our several adventures since we all had met on Langley flying field in Virginia the previous February.

"These splendid lads—for I, alas, am twice as old and have a son older than the youngest of them—had just plucked the fair laural to wear forevermore on those rumpled heads of theirs, and had only a few short days before written their names on the same scroll as Vitus Bering, that stouthearted Dane over whose cold grave among the sand dunes of the Komanderskis they had flown. Does one need much imagination to picture his scurvy, racked bones stirring uneasily as the three great airplanes roared above the time-obliterated trenches where he and eighteen of his dead crew wait and wait? I think not.

"Well, we laughed and chatted and the hour for the first of their engagements for the day drew near, when there came a knock at the door and I was handed a telegram:

"'MacLaren crashed at Akyab. Burma plane completely wrecked, continuance of British flight doubtful.'

"Without a word, I handed it to Smith. He read it and passed it on to the others. Being but human, how could I help thinking first of my own bitter disappointment? Then I thought of MacLaren at Akyab, his beautiful machine a wreck, and how he must be thinking of the great delay in getting the airplane that I was leading on to the trawler in Hakodate Harbor that very day as a spare for our Pacific flight.

"That and a thousand other thoughts were tumbling over each other, when Smith said:

"'We'll get that machine to MacLaren somehow. Come up to Commander Abbot's bedroom and talk it over.'

"We found Commander Abbot of the United States Navy in his pajamas, and within five minutes these gallant sportsmen had roughed out the practicable plans, how Abbot would rush one of his destroyers to Hakodate and load and carry the huge cases as far as Nagasaki, where his boat, so to speak, ended, meanwhile wirelessing his Admiral for permission to take in the farthar dash, all the way to Akyab if necessary.

"I left them then to get off a cable to our Commander-in-Chief of the China Station, asking if he could assist. Within a few hours an answer came from Admiral Washington, commanding the American Asiatic Fleet, offering to transport our machine all the 5,000 miles to Akyab at full speed. As hours were precious and no answer had arrived from our Commander-in-Chief, I gladly accepted Admiral Washington's offer on Major MacLaren's behalf, and that same evening the United States destroyer John Paul Jones left for Hakodate at twenty-five knots.

"Two days later I was informed that our Commander-in-Chief regretted that he had no vessel available.

"I rag at once cabled to MacLaren the good news and got a cable in reply of just two words, 'Well done.' It was addressed to me, whereas it should have been addressed to our great-hearted fellow-aviators—not our rivals or opponents, but our very gallant friends.

"I also cabled the firm of Vickers, who had built our plane, and they answered:

"'Please tender to American naval authorities our thanks for very kind action.'

"I called on the American Ambassador in Japan and cabled to Admiral Washington, but the spoken or the written word cannot convey the gratitude due for what will always remain a wonderful memory—instantaneous help and sympathy in our ill luck, the first prompt and practical, and the second as tender as it was welcome. So I can only repeat and hand on MacLaren's message, 'Well done!'"

GERBAULT PLANS NEW TRIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Alain Gerbault, whose cruise from Europe to New York alone in his little yacht Firecrest made a stirring story last year, will sail Saturday on the steamship France for New York. There he intends to pass two months putting the Firecrest into shape for the voyage he plans to make from New York to Australia.

"My voyage," he said today, "will begin in October. Before that there is a lot of work to be done, for I intend to be on the sea for far longer than it took me to cross the Atlantic. From New York I will sail to the Bermudas, then to Panama and through the Spanish Main, in the track of the old discoverers and pirates.

"Once in the Pacific, which I do not hope to reach before next year, I shall start for Australia."

M. Gerbault thinks that after reaching Australia he may decide to complete the circumnavigation of the globe. He has not yet decided whether he will take a companion on his long voyage.

Mexico Orders Frenchman Expelled.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—The Mexican Government has ordered the immediate expulsion of Alois Bonis Bawer, a Frenchman, charged with helping the rebels in the State of Vera Cruz. He is the owner of several large properties in Vera Cruz, among them one of the largest sugar plantations in the State.

TWO OF OUR FLIERS READY FOR NEXT HOP

wrecked plane was given over when the machine, which had been gradually filling while being towed in a heavy sea, capsized. Seeing the hopelessness of attempting further to save it, the officers cut it adrift. The Richmond then turned about and made for Reykjavik.

Lieutenant Wade, on the Richmond, was naturally chagrined over the ill fate that had brought his plane to grief and stopped his participation in the flight when it was so near a conclusion, but he took the disappointment well. Describing his experiences, Lieutenant Wade said:

"It was the first time we had had trouble with the oil pump and our second forced landing in the 10,000-mile flight. The first was on the Japanese coast, where we came down for water.

"On yesterday's flight, when the trouble came we signaled Lieutenant Smith by waving that we were forced down, also that the engine was out of commission, requesting him to advise the patrol. We expected to remain in the water until the Richmond arrived. We saw a merchant vessel at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, but could not attract its attention. An hour later the trawler which rescued us was sighted. We had to signal her with pistol and rifle before she noticed us."

Lieutenant Wade said that he and Ogden were afraid at first to eat the sandwiches and drink the water, not knowing how long it would be before they were rescued. They were confident all along, however, that they would sight a vessel and eventually reach land, and they kept the plane constantly before the wind. They suffered from the cold and from the tossing of the wrecked craft by the waves, but did not at any time consider their position critical. Their main anxiety was to save the plane and continue the flight after repairs had been made.

"It was a tough break after the five months' flight," said Wade, "as when the four planes left America the army hoped all four would return. But it's all in the game. We did our best."

The Richmond, which is steaming for Reykjavik, expects to arrive there tomorrow morning. Wade and Ogden will remain on board her for the rest of the trip to Boston by sea along the route of the Transatlantic flight.

The Richmond, which had been making four knots an hour towing the wrecked plane, was within five miles of the lighthouse on Sudoroe Island, in the Faroes, when she was obliged to abandon the machine.

Trawler Tows Wrecked Plane.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—The wrecked airplane which had been piloted by Lieutenant Wade and was abandoned this morning by the cruiser Richmond is being taken to the Faroe Islands by the trawler Rugby to ascertain whether it may be possible to repair it in time to continue the flight, it is understood here.

If it is possible to repair the craft despite the serious damage to the plane's wings and pontoons, the cruiser Raleigh will bring the machine to Reykjavik, where repairs will be made and whence, if possible, Lieutenant Wade will continue his flight.

ON BOARD U. S. DESTROYER BARRY, INDIAN HARBOR, Labrador, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—When the American round-the-world fliers take off from Greenland on the final North Atlantic lap of their globe-encircling flight, five United States naval vessels will be patrolling the flight lane underneath them.

The special squadron, sent northward to prepare the way for the fliers and to aid them on their jump to the North American Continent, dropped anchor Saturday under perfect weather conditions, the day being the first brightened by sunshine in many weeks.

Commander Russell Wilson, in charge of the squadron, assigned the Barry to Cape Farewell, on the southern tip of Greenland, the Lawrence to remain off Indian Harbor, and the McFarland, Copeland and Charles Ausburne to patrol the 240-mile lane in between. The vessels will sail for their posts as soon as the fliers get under way, keeping in radio contact with Indian Harbor and the Milwaukee, which has on board Captain Alfred H. Thiessen, Army Signal officer, who is coordinating meteorological observations between the patrolling stations and the Dominion Government headquarters at Ottawa.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Major Gen. Patrick of the Army Air Service received today a message from Lieutenant Lowell Smith, commanding the round-the-world flight, telling of the forced landing at sea by Lieutenant Wade. The message, dated Hornafjord, Iceland, Aug. 4, says:

"Wade forced down between Faroe Islands and Orkney Islands with motor trouble. He made a nice landing in a heavy swell. There was oil on the side of his plane and in the water. He signaled motor gone and send help. We dropped a note on Sudoro Island for the Richmond and also the Billingsley. Both ships going to search. Word just received Wade picked up by fishing boat longitude 5 degrees 25 minutes, latitude 60 degrees 40 minutes. They have him in tow. We left Kirkwall 9:25, landed Hornafjord 3:45. Rain and poor visibility from Faroe Islands. Future plans depend upon Wade."

No announcement was made today as to what the Air Service intends to do about Lieutenant Wade's mishap. There was a strong feeling in army and other official circles that Lieutenant Wade should be allowed to finish the trip since he has progressed successfully thus far, and it was suggested that he should remain in Iceland until another airplane could be sent him.

LOCATELLI AT BROUGH ON AMERICANS' HEELS

He Hopes to Catch Up With Our Fliers Before Naval Craft Have Gone.

BROUGH, England, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—Lieutenant Locatelli Italian ace, who is making a flight to the polar regions along the route followed by the American world fliers, in preparation for a projected air expedition to the North Pole next year, completed his hop over the North Sea from Rotterdam today without mishap, arriving here this evening.

The aviator brought his machine gracefully to the surface of the river Humber and took up a mooring almost in the same location midstream from where the Americans took off last Wednesday. He and his companions were in fine health and spirits and reported smooth flying all the way. A small knot of townspeople gathered at the river and cheered Locatelli when he landed. Later the airman went to the Brough Aviation Club.

Locatelli's airplane is in good condition and he said he would probably hop off for Kirkwall on Wednesday morning, if possible. On this leg of his journey he expects to follow the same course as the Americans. He plans for a quick hopoff from Kirkwall in order to reach Iceland before the American naval craft, now scattered over the northern waters, have left.

Plans to Give Sword to Lieut. Smith

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, U. S. A., retired, State Commander of the American Legion, said today that the plan to present to Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, or whoever should reach this city as commanding officer of the army fliers, a sword, in recognition of their exploints, would be carried out. He said he did not believe the War Department requests that programs of celebration for the fliers be abandoned should prevent such recognition when they return to American soil here.

Portuguese Aviators Reach America

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 4.—Majors Britepaio and Belrao and Lieutenant Gouveia, the Portuguese Army officers who recently made a successful airplane flight from Lisbon to Macao, province of Kwang-Tung, China, arrived here today from the Orient on the steamer Empress of Canada on their way home. BUTT HEIRESS GETS HER FRANCS IN GOLD

PAYMENT IN PAPER FOUGHT

Bequest of 15,000 Francs a Year Varied in Value—Instead of $4,342, Only $1,815 Paid.

William Allen, referee in an accounting by the Chemical National Bank as executor under the will of Brig. Gen. McCoskry Butt, who died in 1921, filed a report in the Supreme Court yesterday upholding the contention of Mme. Madeleine Renard Roger, wife of General Joseph Roger of the French Army, that a bequest of 15,000 francs a year is to be paid to her in gold and not at the valuation of paper francs.

The referee finds that the value of the estate is $1,000,000 and that trust funds of $257,859 each were set aside for May Frances Butt, widow, and Robert McCoskry Butt, son, and a half of a similar sum each for two grandchildren, Lawrence Havemeyer Butt Jr. and Madeleine F. Butt.

When the executor filed the accounting, Mme. Roger objected to payments made in francs at the value of paper money, contending that one payment, which should have been valued at $4,342, was worth only $1,815. The referee took testimony which showed that Mme. Roger, who is now about 40 years old, was General Butt's second cousin. The referee states in his opinion that General Butt's affection for his cousin was so great that "he attempted to express it when his bodily infirmities were such that it was almost impossible for him to pen a line."

The testimony showed that the gold franc is worth 19.3 cents, but that the paper franc fluctuated to 3.42 cents in March and rose to 5.3 cents in June. The referee states that General Butt left the bequest to his cousin for her personal expenses and to improve conditions. The opinion continues:

"This permits the conclusion that an annuity to a beneficiary of whom the testator was very fond could not reasonably mean 15,000 francs of a fluctuating and depreciable value, which one year might pay $2,884 and in the next year only $515, sums representing the extreme actual fluctuations proved upon the trial. If the paper franc should fall again, as it has quite recently, there is no violence in considering the possibility that it might fall to nothing, as has the German mark. The testator did not mean that the legacy should become worthless."

General Butt's son testified that his father got his military title through commanding the First Brigade at Camp Black, on Long Island, during the Spanish-American War. His death resulted from shock due to the death of a son a few weeks before.

GIRL FOUND IN STUDIO HELD AS A BURGLAR

She Refuses to Explain Her Presence in Artist's "Village" Home at 2 A. M.

Why she invaded the studio of O. Brancharel d'Aoust in 14 Washington Square North at 2 A. M. yesterday could not be learned a few hours later from a girl who said she was Barbara Dare, 20 years old, a dancer, when she was arraigned before Magistrate Edward Weil in the Tombs Court on a burglary charge and held in $3,000 bail for examination tomorrow.

d'Aoust, an artist, found her hiding in a closet when he was awakened by a strange noise. The girl merely giggled when he grabbed her, the artist later told Detective Sergeant Louis Traboucci, who took her into custody, and said she had been seeking a friend. Investigation revealed that the girl, pretty and exceptionally well dressed, could not have entered the studio by either of the two doors, and the detective said that there were indications that she came in from a fire escape, through the kitchen.

She had been questioned at Police Headquarters before her arraignment, and the detective told the Magistrate that records there did not contain any previous reference to her. He added that while there was no indication that the girl had disturbed anything in the artist's studio, she had laughingly told him and other questioners that she would make no explanation of her behavior.

The detective said that the girl had admitted that the name she gave was fictitious and that she came from Boston a month ago and stayed for a short time at 300 West 108th Street. Investigations disclosed that a girl giving that name had lived at the address for a few days, but had left without telling anything about herself.

When she pleaded not guilty to the burglary charge and said she had no lawyer to defend her, the Magistrate said he would give her until Wednesday to prepare a defense. She was unable to provide bail and was sent to the women's prison at Jefferson Market.

ACCUSE PAIR OF BIGAMY.

Former Friends Involved in an Odd Matrimonial Tangle.

Charles Wright of 4,820 Caroline Street, Woodside, L. I., and a woman whom he is said to have married last year, were arraigned before Magistrate Lawrence Gresser in the Long Island City Police Court yesterday, where both answered charges of bigamy.

The complainant against Wright is Mrs. Amelia Wright, who says she is his undivorced wife. She lives at 591 Prospect Street, Brooklyn. She testified that she married Wright in 1911. Francis Murphy of 234 East Fifty-fourth Street, Manhattan, appeared against the woman and asserted that the latter married him in 1908 and that they had four children.

According to information furnished the Court the Wrights and the Murphys were friendly and visited together frequently. It was during these visits that an attachment developed between Wright and Murphy's wife which led them to leave their respective homes and marry.

A hearing was set for Aug. 15 and bail was fixed at $1,000 each.

Occasional pieces of real charm and character like those illustrated are here in inviting variety. Woods—gleaming, rich in tone—mahogany, tulip-wood, rosewood, walnut and oak. Workmanship that is as skillful in the obscure details as in the exposed parts. Dining room sets from $225 to $2700.

PSYCHOLOGY TESTS MADE IN THEATRE

QUESTIONED DURING PLAY

Experiments Aim to Analyze Emotions That Are Difficult to Induce Elsewhere.

Columbia University Summer session students in the Department of Psychology are acting as "subjects" in the first psychological "laboratory" experiments ever applied to the drama, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Estelle De Young Barr, who is conducting the tests. Mrs. Barr, who is making special studies in psychology at the university, is editor of Creative Education and has been psychologist for a number of organizations and institutions in New York and other cities during the last ten years. The experiments will probably be extended to the general audiences.

"The Columbia experiments which use the theatre as a psychological laboratory will open up new fields of research," declares Mrs. Barr. "Psychologists have been handicapped by being unable to induce the more interesting emotional reactions at will in the laboratory. Love and sex reactions have been particularly difficult to study. Psychologists have had to limit themselves to morbid and abnormal cases under medical treatment or in the hands of the law.

"Love, pity, anger, humor and all the important reactions can be studied on almost all kinds of normal human beings in the theatre. These emotional reactions are induced by powerful situations on the stage and may be analyzed without unpleasant probing. The first experiments are being made with the Theatre Guild's production of 'Fata Morgana,' by Ernest Vajda, because it presents a strong love situation of educational interest and one to which a wide variety of reactions are possible. Students of both sexes and a broad range of age, education and interests are recording their feelings regarding the love of an older woman and a youth as presented by the dramatist. The method used is the unidentified questionnaire which asks certain key questions at certain times during the performance.

"Do people still believe in love at first sight? Do married people view love differently from single people? Has the education of an individual any relation to his or her 'moral' outlook? Do women object more than men to love between an older woman and a younger man? Is such an experience good or bad for a youth? Should young men be warned against such situations? These are only a few of the questions to which it is hoped the results of these experiments will offer an answer."

THOUSANDS CONTEST IN MUSIC MEMORY

Edwin Franko Goldman staged a music memory contest on the Mall at Central Park last evening. Many thousands of people took part. Programs had been specially prepared for their use. The band under Mr. Goldman's direction played excerpts from forty pieces which had been given more than once during the course of the forty-five concerts, of which last night's made the forty-sixth.

Nearly half belonged to the serious repertoire of the Goldman Band and included selections from Elgar, Schubert, Haydn, Verdi, Bach, Beethoven, Wagner, &c. Only the principal air of each composition was given, the band playing them with the same animation and expression as if they had been going through the whole score.

The contestants and their friends listened intently and made their decision while Mr. Goldman was turning to the next number. They applauded when they recognized an old friend, and they seemed to know a good many of the best composers, a result of the excellent programs they have been listening to for the past weeks.

When the lists have been examined the names of the winners will be announced.

On Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim, who have returned from Europe, came to the Park for the first time and were amazed at the size of the crowd.

'RAIN' IS TO REOPEN; HARRIS MAKES PEACE

"Rain," the sensational success of the last two seasons, will reopen at the Gaiety Theatre on Labor Day, Sept. 1, for a period of four weeks, under the management of Sam H. Harris. Jeanne Eagels will again be seen as Sadie Thompson.

Along Broadway this was taken to mean that Mr. Harris had arrived at a separate peace agreement with the Actors' Equity Association on a basis of an 80 per cent. Equity representation in his cast. Miss Eagels is known to be an ardent Fidelity member and it was generally believed that she would be included in the 20 per cent. non-Equity membership that Mr. Harris would thus be entitled to have in his cast.

Mr. Harris has not joined the Managers' Protective Association, which had arrived at a similar agreement with Equity, but has made his peace terms independently. He was in Saratoga Springs yesterday and could not be reached.

At the same time it was announced that "The Swan," also controlled by a "round robin" management, the Charles Frohman Company, would reopen on Aug. 25 for a limited engagement at the Empire Theatre.

WELSH EISTEDDFOD OPENS.

Prince of Wales to Attend Song and Poetry Festival Today.

PONTYPOOL, England, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—The Welsh National Eisteddfod opened here today with a record attendance for an opening day of the celebration, which is the greatest song and poetry festival of Great Britain. Thomas Richards, who was the first President of the festival, in opening the Eisteddfod, described it as an institution where bosses and workmen, sinners and saints all could meet on a common platform. The day was occupied with brass band concerts.

The Prince of Wales will attend tomorrow when a very large throng is expected to be present.

Mary Minter to Re-enter Films.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 4.—Mary Miles Minter, former motion picture actress, who for the last several months has been living in retirement in Pasadena, left here yesterday for New York with the reported intention of re-entering the films there.

THE SCREEN

LOVE AND GLORY, with Madge Bellamy, Charles de Roche, Wallace MacDonald, Ford Sterling, Charles de Ravenne, Gibson Gowland and Priscilla Dean. Moran, adapted from the story by R. H. David and Percy Poore Sheehan. Directed by Rupert Julian. At the Lyric.

Flashes of France in 1870 with her picturesque red-trousered soldiers and also of Guy de Maupassant's "Fifi" shot through our mind as we watched the unfurling of "Love and Glory," the photoplay presented last night at the Lyric Theatre before an audience in which were many well-known screen faces. We even thought of the paintings of Detaille and Meissonier, and in the end felt that a much more inspiring effort could have been produced with such a colorful background if those responsible for this film had been more methodical in their study of French life. And also if Rupert Julian, the director, had given his players their heads and had not regaled himself with the introduction of comedy quite foreign to the narrative.

Mr. Julian, it will be remembered, won no little fame with the production of "Merry Go Round," in which the actors and actresses were permitted to perform their parts with spark and spontaneity. In the last chapters of "Love and Glory," the story of which is built round a glamourous military incident, some of the players appear so weird in their make-up that they look like wax figures of the old Eden Musée or Mme. Tussaud's of London that had suddenly come to life.

There are some interesting scenes, beautifully photographed, which atone for certain defects in this effort. One sees a boundless desert without a glimpse of life. Suddenly an Arab's head slips up over a sand hillock, then another and another until followers of the Prophet are seen en masse. Further along the French troops are shown, many of them having been wounded in an engagement with the Algerians.

The chief incident in the narrative is supposed to have taken place in this fighting just before the Franco-Prussian War. The Arab chieftain has captured Anatole Picard (Wallace MacDonald) and Pierre du Pont (Charles de Roche). Anatole faces the men of the desert, and their crafty leader thinks he will deceive the French by a ruse. So he orders Anatole to sound the retreat or "be cleaved from head to heel." As he raises the brass instrument to his lips the bugler looks into the eyes of his companion and then a call pierces the desert air—not the retreat, but the charge. Hearing the encouraging call the red-trousered men rally and sweep on to victory.

Charles de Roche impersonates Pierre. In the first stages of this picture he is moderately good, but through his make-up and studied movements in the closing scenes he is awkward and unimpressive. When young, he is the blacksmith of Mirabel. Fifty years later Pierre is seen accompanying his old comrade on a cruel trudge to Paris, where Anatole is to be decorated for his heroism of half a century before.

Madge Bellamy officiates as Gabrielle Picard, the heroine with much permanent-waved hair, who is kidnapped by a coward. She suffices in the early stages of this picture, but as the old lady she is ludicrous.

Mr. Julian errs in being too generous with his close-ups. A number of them could be excluded, while others could be materially shortened. Then there is too much rhythm in the crowd scenes, and it is utterly absurd to have the Mayor of a French town acting like a demented clown.

The climax of the story is hardly plausible, as in France one sees an official at a loss to find a man to receive the decoration after his first hero had died. In the end Anatole also succumbs before he receives the medal from the President, and this gives Mr. Julian an opportunity to show the body lying in state covered with flowers. Mr. Julian is obviously not impressed with the imagination of his audiences and believes in explaining matters as if to a child. His is the Berlitz school of direction in this production. He shows a German officer so much infatuated with a French child that he has to be reminded that there is a war on by an orderly. Somebody also ought to tell Mr. Julian that officers are not in the habit of wearing their medals in the fighting lines, which also applies to Teuton officers of half a century ago.

If you don't mind a few anachronisms, a giddy, impossible French Mayor and a rather inane ending you may be interested in sections of this picture.

HOPE HAMPTON CHOSEN.

Hope Hampton, motion picture star, will be the star of the coming season's production of "Madame Pompadour" at Martin Beck's West Side Theatre, according to an announcement from the offices of Charles B. Dillingham yesterday. There has been much speculation as to the choice of the leading woman for "Madame Pompadour," and the name of almost every American singing comedienne has been mentioned for the part.

Miss Hampton has made a rapid rise to prominence. She was born in Houston, Texas, about twenty-one years ago, and after attending a girls' school came to New York to enter the Sargent Dramatic School. Upon finishing the course there she played two Summers in stock and then went into the motion picture field. She became a star after her first two or three pictures and has appeared in several successes, among them "A Modern Salome," "Star Dust," "Lawful Larceny" and "The Gold Diggers." She began her musical studies while at the Sargent school.

'The Werewolf' Coming on Aug. 18.

"The Werewolf," it was announced yesterday, will open at the Forty-ninth Street Theatre during the week of Aug. 18. This is a celebrated European success, adapted by Gladys Unger. The cast includes Laura Hope Crews, Lennox Pawle, Leslie Howard, Vincent Serrano, Marion Coakley, Sydney Paxton, Gaby Fleury and Ruth Mitchell.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Dr. David's Dad," which comes to the Vanderbilt Theatre next Monday night, opened in Long Branch last night.

Mausoliff and Mercedes, European dancers, will be in the cast of "Rose-Marie."

Madelaine Fairbanks of the "Fairbanks Twins," of "Follies" fame, will be in the cast of Hassard Short's "Ritz Revue," to be produced here this month.

Cathleen Healy, niece of Murray Hulbert, President of the Board of Aldermen, will be in the next "Passing Show."

"Old Man Minick," by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber, will be put into rehearsal today by Winthrop Ames.

"Janice Meredith," with Marion Davies, Holbrook Blinn, Madlyn Arbuckle, George Nash, Joseph Kilgour and Harrison Ford, opens this evening at the Cosmopolitan Theatre.

Art studies from Henry King's "Romola," adapted from George Eliot's novel, are on display this week in show windows of the Eastman Kodak Stock House, Inc., Madison Avenue and Forty-fifth Street.

For the First Time in History
Closed Car Comforts at EXACTLY Open Car Cost
Full Size, GENUINE BALLOON Tires
$1500
Freight and Tax Extra
This Hudson Coach makes history. It is the first closed car ever to sell at exactly open car cost.
And Hudson, alone, can build it. As the largest producer of 6-cylinder closed cars in the world, Hudson exclusively holds the advantages to create this car and this price.
Greatest of All Hudson Achievements
And now full size balloon tires are standard equipment. Do not confuse with "semi-balloon" types. Hudson's are genuine full size balloon tires—33"x6.20". Compare the difference.
Hudson has not simply "added balloon tires." Both running and steering gear have been especially designed to compensate for the radical differences balloon tires bring.
The result is the easiest steering, most comfortable and steadiest riding Hudson ever built. And braking efficiency is almost doubled.
More than ever, "Closed Car Comforts at Open Car Cost" is the uppermost buying issue. Note how fast the Coach is displacing open cars. As the wanted type the Coach maintains the highest resale value against the waning desirability of the open car.

How to Defer Old Age

As a man's hair whitens and his features become furrowed, his back bent and his girth unduly expanded, we say "he shows the mark of time." Time, however, has nothing to do with such things.

"Old age" is not a matter of years. It is a matter of health—of the condition of the body mechanism. Growing old is simply a process of physical deterioration. A man of 35 and a man of 75 may die of the same kind of "old age."

Diseases of heart, blood vessels and kidneys are manifestations of this kind of old age. By that is meant that they reflect physical degeneration. These diseases of our vital organs do not come out of a clear sky. They are always due to some poison or infection or injury. The quicker we discover such conditions and correct them, the longer and happier our life's journey will be.

The surest way to protect yourself against these degenerative maladies is to get yourself critically examined at least once every year; correct your physical defects and any sources of infection; regulate your diet, exercise, work, and rest in accordance with your physical condition and cultivate the right mental attitude toward life.

The main causes of premature death, disease and old age are known. Heredity, infections, poisoning and faulty living habits are all definite causes and can be met in definite ways.

Write, telephone or visit the Life Extension Institute for information about its different examination services and for free booklets on the prevention of disease and the prolongation of human life. Send in the coupon below.

How to Live Long

Everyone should be examined once a year, either by their family physician or by the Life Extension Institute. The Institute's service includes a critical examination of the whole body, confidential reports, suggestions as to any needed form of medical treatment, education in all phases of correct personal hygiene and other valuable privileges. The service covers a period of one year. The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your life and body and submits a report which, if some form of medical attention is needed, assists your physician in making the final diagnosis and applying the necessary treatment for the correction of your physical defects. There are separate departments for women and children at the Head Office. Outside of New York the Institute has examining physicians in every leading city and town in the United States and Canada. Back of the scientific policy of the Institute is its Hygiene Reference Board of 100 leaders in scientific and public health work.

YANKS REGAIN LEAD; RUTH MAKES NO. 34

GASTON IN RESCUE ROLE

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—Good relief pitching by Gaston, powerful batting, a fighting determination and a punch in the eleventh inning enabled the Yanks to take the second game of the series from the Tigers here today by the score of 9 to 8 and slide back into first place once more. A crowd of 16,000 saw the game.

Whitey Witt opened the eleventh against Dauss with a long double. This was rather unexpected, as Whitey hadn't made a hit previously in the game, nor had he done anything in the two preceding contests. McNally sacrificed Witt to third very neatly. McNally was in the pastime as a result of Dugan getting bruised and shaken up by a high-bounding single from Cobb's bat in the second that struck him in the face.

With Witt on third and Ruth up, the veteran Dauss thought he would be playing safe by passing the Babe. This he did, very intentionally, and Meusel came up to resent the slight. Long Bob registered resentment, then produced a long single to centre, and Witt trotted home with what proved the winning run. In their half of the eleventh the Tigers were unable to do anything with Gaston, and they went out in quick order on infield grounders.

Hoyt Fails to Start.

Gaston had come in at the start of the fifth to succeed Mammaux, who had given way to a pinch hitter. Mamaux's presence in the game was due to the fact that Hoyt started the affair and was knocked off the mound before he could get a single man out, five hard hits, all of them to right, happening, and the runs coming in bunches. Overcoming this handicap that gave the Yanks such a task and forced the game to last nearly three hours.

The Yanks started their hard climb in the fourth and clicked off the first run on Pipp's triple and Schang's infield out. In the fifth they made a good cluster of runs, thanks to Ruth's big bat. Scott singled and moved to second when pinch Hitter Hendrick lost Meusel's fly in the sun for a fumble. Dugan forced Hendrick, but the Bambino came along and cleared the left-field barrier for his thirty-fourth home run of the year. He has forty-nine games left and only seven more homers to make to tie his last year's record.

Ruth's homer was not the only one in the game. The veteran Pratt also topped the left field wall, besides getting two hits and a single. He was responsible for four runs. So was Harry Heilmann, who produced two masterly triples, one a peculiar blow off Hoyt that stuck right in the right field screen in front of the bleachers and had to be pried loose very quickly by Meusel to prevent it from going for a homer. The great batting of these two men swelled the Tigers' total in the hit column to fourteen, while the Yankees collected thirteen.

Yanks Rally in Eighth.

The biggest cluster of the Yankee blows came in the eighth, which saw the major offensive, when the Hugmen took the lead. Singles by Meusel and Pipp, followed by Schang's triple down the right foul line, produced two runs and sent Collins, who had started the game, to the showers. Stoner came in and Ward slapped him for a sacrifice fly that sent in Schang with the tying run. Scott tripled, scored on Gaston's sacrifice fly, and the champions were ahead.

The Tigers were not easily downed, however. They had added to the four runs off Hoyt by making two off Mamaux and one off Gaston via Pratt's homer. Detroit's tying effort came in the ninth, when Heilmann tripled between the sections of circus seats in centre and scored on Pratt's hard double to centre.

Gaston here tightened up and allowed no more hitting. In all the seven innings he worked he only allowed five hits and two runs.

REDS VICTORS OVER PHILS.

Errors Help Luque Take Opening Game, 6-3—Homer for Williams.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Cincinnati opened its series in Philadelphia today with a 6-to-3 victory. The Reds confined their scoring to two innings, the third and eighth, gathering a cluster of three tallies in each. Luque was pounded hard by the Phillies, but with men on the bases he was effective. Errors by Parkinson and Williams paved the way for the winning runs in the eighth. Williams had a home run in the first inning with one on base.

INDIANS' BIG INNING BEATS RED SOX, 14-5

Score Seven Runs in Third and Overcome Boston's 4-Run Lead in First.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—After Boston had hammered Messenger, the Saginaw pitching recruit, for four earned runs, including a homerun by Ike Boone, in the first inning, the youngster settled down and held the Red Sox to one run in the remaining eight innings, Cleveland winning 14 to 5. It was Messenger's second victory in two starts. The Indians clinched victory by scoring seven runs in the third inning.

BAN JOHNSON SEES LEAGUE'S BEST YEAR

Says 1924 Season Promises to Be Greatest in A. L.'s History—All Clubs Are Prospering.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4.—Ban Johnson, President of the American League, who was in Cincinnati, his old home town, today, said the present season promises to be the greatest year in the history of the league from a business point of view.

"The attendance at New York was 40,000 a day for the first ten days," Johnson said, "and for the season it undoubtedly will exceed last year's total, which was more than 1,250,000. Detroit will reach the million mark this season. All the clubs of the American League have been having splendid crowds. This is due chiefly to the closeness of the teams in the race."

Johnson came to Cincinnati to meet his old college mate, Harlan F. Burket, a candidate for the nomination for Judge of the Ohio Supreme Court.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Dickerman held the Boston Braves to six hits and the St. Louis Cardinals won, 4 to 1, here today. Jimmy Cooney starred in the field and had a perfect day at bat. Bottomley's fielding was a feature.

GIANTS WIN FIRST, CUBS TAKE SECOND

Bentley Yields Only Six Hits in 5 to 1 Victory, Then Jonnard Loses by 5 to 2.

JACKSON'S ERROR COSTLY

The Giants and Cubs played a double-header at the Polo Grounds yesterday and divided the two games evenly after a tart struggle. Although only a 50-50 split for the two contenders, it represented a slight gain for the Pirates, who won at Ebbets Field and gained a half game on the Giants, reducing their deficit to seven and a half games behind McGraw's champions. Fifteen thousand watched the bargain attraction at the Polo Grounds.

The Giants started briskly by capturing the first game, 5 to 1, but ran into misfortune and defeat in the second contest, losing by 5 to 2. Travis Jackson, who usually catches everything that comes his way, muffed an easy fly in the third inning and presented the Cubs with three unearned runs. This, combined with two tallies rung up by Jigger Statz on a home run into the right field stand in the seventh, was more than the Giants could successfully combat.

In the opening contest the champs had things all their own way. Jack Bentley uncovered the tidiest game he has pitched in several moons and limited the Cubs to six hits, while making two himself. The Bruins scored their only run in the eighth, when Cotter, their youthful first baseman, fired a homer into the upper right-field stand.

Giant Support Crumbles.

John McGraw gave Claude Jonnard, his official relief pitcher, another chance to start a game in the second tilt, and Claude was embarrassed by the same ill fortune which pursued him in his tilt with the Pirates last week. After presenting Claude with a two-run lead that looked impregnable, the Giant support crumbled. Jackson's muff opened the floodgates for a succession of hits that spelled three runs for the Cubs in the third, and once in arrears the Giants found John Blake more of a puzzle than they had suspected he would be. After the second inning there were no New York runs and very few hits—only two, in fact, divided between the third and the fifth, and after the fifth, nothing except a walk to Frisch with two down in the eighth and Kelly's hit by the pitcher in the ninth when the game was already stowed away in the Chicago locker.

Blake had only the one bad inning. After the second only five Giants got to first, one of these on a force-out of another Giant at second. No New Yorker advanced as far as second in the latter seven innings, and in the entire nine the McGraw entry found Blake for only five hits, all singles.

Bill Ryan, now the official undertaker of the local forces, followed Jonnard when a pinch hitter batted for Jonnard in the eighth. The Cubs used a pair of flingers against Bentley in the first game—Keen for seven innings and Rip Wheeler for one. Keen felt far short of being an enigma, the Giants hitting him generously.

The Giants gained a three-run lead in the second inning of the first game and were never headed. Adams fumbled Kelly's grounder to start that round and Jackson and Grimm added three more. Jackson scored while Friberg was making a mess of Snyder's roller. On Bentley's long fly to right Groh ran from second to third and completed the round trip when O'Connell wafted a hoist to Vogel.

A couple of more runs in the sixth put the Giants on easy street. Groh led off with a safe bunt but was forced by Snyder, who chased to second on Bentley's single to left. O'Connell's single inside first base drove Snyder over the plate and advanced Bentley to third, whence he counted on Frisch's hoist to right. When Wilson snatched Grimes's fly to left O'Connell tried a speed against Grigsby's arm and came out second best at third base.

Cotter Averts Shutout.

The only way the Cubs could get a run was by slapping the ball into the stands, and Cotter slapped one in the eighth as the first batter of the inning. It went into the upper right field deck.

In the second game the Giants again hopped off to a lead of two runs. Kelly's single and steal and hike by Groh and Jonnard accounted for the brace of tallies in the second, but in their half of the third the Cubs overcame this advantage, aided by a schoolboy muff by Jackson. After Hearn Cote had walked, Cotter raised a high fly behind third which Jackson got under only to have the peaky pill seep through his mitt. Blake sacrificed the runners a base forward, and Heathcote scored while Frisch was tossing out Statz. A two-bagger by Adams and singles by Grantham and Hartnett completed the damage.

Statz's homer with Blake on first base in the seventh were responsible for a pair of Chicago runs in the seventh that weren't needed.

Caught at the Plate.

The Cubs have lost the youthful pep which distinguished them on their first trip East, when they were in second place and battling hard for a pennant. The Pirates are the team the Giants must beat now.

Charley Hollocher didn't play in either game. He is under the weather. Chicago correspondents with the team fear that Charley's career as a star has ended.

For Gowdy Day it probably will be Kaufmann or Jacobs against Watson or Dean, and the Giant catcher will be Henry Gowdy.

Jonnard overwhelmed the Cubs by making a safe hit in the second inning—a sharp grounder inside first base with the count three and two. After that Claude was no good at all.

Against the Western clubs the Giants have played only 500 per cent. baseball. Six won and six lost, with the Pirates gaining ground every day.

The Giants made four errors in the second contest, but only one figured in the run-making. Jackson was guilty of a muff and a fumble, and Frisch and O'Connell uncovered throws that went wild of the target.

Miss Helen Wills, the youthful Californian who holds the National singles and Olympic singles and doubles tennis championships, today will start a daily routine of practice for the defense of her women's national title at Forest Hills. With the title tournament scheduled to start on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club next Monday, and having just returned from her trip abroad, where she added new laurels to her collection, Miss Wills has mapped out a schedule which she will follow in order to gain the best possible condition before she is called to face the strenuous opposition which is indicated by the list of entries already received for the national title play by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Miss Wills will play against the best available man appointments during the remainder of this week. As she did last year, prior to the tournament in which she won the national championship for the first time, Miss Wills will practice against George Agurter, the professional at the West Side Tennis Club, each morning, and uring the afternoon sessions she will meet some of the best men players of the West Side Club. It is not unlikely that she may have one or two practice matches with William M. Johnston of San Francisco, former national champion and one of the mainstays of America's Davis Cup teams for many years. Miss Wills played several times with Johnston during the past Winter on the Pacific Coast, and Johnston has been, in part, responsible for her rapid development as a court strategist.

Miss Wills has a strenuous tournament ahead of her and one that is certain to test the best of her playing qualities. Because of her triumph in the women's national tournament last year, followed by her successes abroad this season, she is generally accepted as supreme in women's tennis in this country. But Miss Wills is still a young girl. She has gone through only one really hard campaign on the courts, and that was last year. And there are many veteran players and coming stars who threaten to cause an upset, although such is not generally believed likely.

FRANCE ENTERS 2 TEAMS.

They Will Play in National Tennis Doubles at Boston Aug. 16.

The French Tennis Federation yesterday cabled the entry of two French teams for the national doubles championship, which will start at Boston on Aug. 16, thereby insuring the finest competition from foreign nations that the tournament has ever known. With two Australian teams already entered, the announcement that Manuel and Jose Alonso of Spain will compete and the entry of two French teams, the leading American pairs will face strong competition.

The cable did not specify what players would be included on the French teams, but it is believed that Henri Brugnon, Rene Le Coste and Jean Borotra, the four men who carried their country to the final round for the historic trophy, will be named.

TILDEN STARTS EAST.

Wiener, Chapin and Strachan Also Depart From Los Angeles.

Tilden and Chapin will compete in several exhibition matches in Kansas City. In Chicago, Strachan and Wiener will enter the junior national tennis championships.

Corinthians Defeat Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Ontario, Aug. 4.—Playing against a strong eleven from Hamilton today, the touring Corinthian Association football team retrieved Saturday's loss at Montreal by winning, 4 goals to 1.

France Beats Czechoslovakia In European Davis Cup Final

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France, Aug. 4 (Associated Press).—France today eliminated Czechoslovakia from the Davis Cup competition by winning the doubles match. Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon won this contest from Zemla and Loselur, 7—5, 3—6, 6—4. Yesterday Cochet won from Semla in the singles and René Lacoste defeated Masenauer. The remaining two matches in singles will be played tomorrow. France now has clinched the finals in the European zone.

MISS FULLER WINS FROM MRS. BEAUPRE

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Mrs. L. C. Beaupre of Quebec, Canada, was eliminated today in the first round of play for the New York State women's tennis championship, which started on the courts of the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, the Canadian bowing to the strategic and effective net game of Miss Anna H. Fuller, the eighteen-year-old star from Boston, after a struggle that went to three sets for a decision. With that one exception the survivors of the first round, which was completed, had little trouble in advancing, although there were some closely contested matches and many stirring rallies on all the courts at one time or another.

Miss Mayme MacDonald, national women's clay court champion and holder of the metropolitan titles on both grass and clay, advanced to the second round without the loss of a game, coming through her match with Miss Marguerite Landfil at 6—0, 6—0. Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., who is ranked in the "first ten" nationally, triumphed over Miss Jessie Gott, at 6—3, 6—0, and at no time was forced to extend herself to the height of the game she is known to be able to play. Miss Marion Leighton of Chicago, who has been a successful competitor in many of the women's tournaments in the Middle West this season, also advanced with ease, beating Miss Kuhn at 6—0, 6—2.

While one invader, in the person of Miss Beaupre, was being eliminated another progressed to the second round. Mrs. C. V. Hitchins of Mexico City had no trouble in winning her match against Miss Grace Graham, and in addition displayed a game that proved her to be one of the competitors who must be taken seriously as a prospective winner in the tournament. Others to advance to the second round included Miss Carome Winn, who eliminated Mrs. Samuel H. Waring; Mrs. Helene Pollak Falk, who won from Miss Penelope Davies; Miss Katherine Gardiner, who had to defeat Mrs. Bronson Batchelior in order to gain the second round, and Mrs. Theodore Sohst, who conquered Miss Gertrude Dwyer after a strenuous second set.

Miss Fuller in Form.

The battle between Miss Fuller and Mrs. Beaupre furnished most of the thrills of the opening day's play. The Boston girl played splendid tennis throughout, and it was her court strategy more than any other single factor which brought her through to victory. Miss Fuller maneuvered her opponent around the court with drives to deep court and then at propitious moments went forward to the net to make her finishing shots to unprotected spots across the net. Her volleys were well handled and her returns were sharply angled, catching the Quebec champion of two years ago out of position and with little chance to reach the ball.

After Miss Fuller had taken the first set, 6—3, Mrs. Beaupre, with renewed power in her drives from deep court, passed her youthful and daring opponent several times and evened the count at one game to the second set, after the games had gone to deuce. Mrs. Beaupre evidently had put everything that she had in the way of stamina in that effort to pull up on even terms, for in the third and deciding frame Miss Fuller had an easy task in winning at 6—2. The work of the young Boston girl this afternoon marked her as one of the coming stars of the game in this country, and, although she is not nearly so advanced as another young lady of the same age, Miss Helen Wills, she is coming forward rapidly.

Miss Leighton, in her first competition in this section of the country, played impressive tennis against Miss Helen Kuhn. The Illinois State champion had speed in her drives from back court, and also showed an ability to force the play from the net when occasion required. The accuracy of her ground strokes was decidedly good, several of her shots nicking the base line for placement aces. Against such a game Miss Kuhn had little opportunity to extend the rallies, and it was only when Miss Leighton showed a decided let-up in the second set that the New York player was able to pull out two games.

Mrs. Theodore Sohst won the first set of her match with Miss Dwyer at love, completely dominating the play and making short work of the rallies, bringing them to a close with sudden finishing shots that at times left her opponent bewildered. However in the second chapter Miss Dwyer showed a decided reversal of form and forced the going with every exchange of shots. Evidently desperate and willing to take chances, she came forward to the net frequently to score placements. But Miss Dwyer's timing was erratic and she beat herself on errors after fourteen games. The score of the second set was 8—6.

Miss Bayard Excels.

Miss Bayard had complete control of the situation when she met Miss Gott and ran out the second set in short order after losing three games of the first by her own errors and hurried returns. Miss Carolyn Bannister, like Mrs. Sohst, met strong opposition in the second set, after winning the first at love, but she managed to win from Mrs. Vorhaus at 6—0, 7—5. Miss Winn had most of her trouble in the opening chapter against Mrs. Waring, taking the first set at 7—5 and then rushing through the second at love.

Among the survivors are four Boston women who threaten to carry off the State honors, Miss Katherine Gardner and Miss Margaret Blake having advanced with Miss Isabella Mumford and Miss Fuller.

The tournament, which serves as a preliminary to the women's national championships, which will start at Forest Hills next week, has drawn a representative entry from all over the United States, besides Mrs. Beaupre of Canada and Mrs. Hitchins of Mexico.

The summaries:

First Round—Miss Mayme Macdonald defeated Miss Marguerite Landfil, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. William H. Pritchard defeated Miss M. Hollister, 6—2, 6—2; Mrs. Green defeated Miss A. Hollister, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Bayard defeated Miss Jessie Gott, 6—3, 6—0; Miss Anne S. Fuller defeated Mrs. L. C. Beaupre, 3—6, 6—7, 6—2; Miss Katherine Gardner defeated Mrs. Bronson Batchelor, 6—2, 6—1; Mrs. Theodore Sohst defeated Miss Gertrude Dwyer, 8—6, 6—8; Miss Marion Leighton defeated Miss Helen Kuhn, 6—0, 6—2; Mrs. C. V. Hitchins defeated Miss Grace Graham, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Carolyn Bannister defeated Mrs. Verhaus, 6—0, 7—5; Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor defeated Mrs. Donald Moorhead, 6—0, 6—1.

TENNIS STARS WIN AT SOUTHAMPTON

Norton, Snodgrass, Mercur and Bowman Among Eight to Reach Third Round.

DEFAULTS ARE NUMEROUS

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The forty-first annual invitation tennis tournament of the Meadow Club for the Southampton Bowl began today with Norman E. Brookes, 46-year-old genius of the courts, and Howard Kinsey of San Francisco victor over William Johnston at Seabright, the outstanding figures. Vincent Richards, Olympic champion, who took the old Southampton Bowl outright last year, is not a contender. In addition to Kinsey and Brookes, six others of the sixty-four players entered have been seeded in the draw. They are Carl Fischer, B. I. C. Norton of St. Louis, Harvey Snodgrass, Robert Kinsey and Clarence Griffin, all of California, and Richard E. Schlesinger of the Australian Davis Cup team.

Numerous defaults were registered in the opening round. Among the players who failed to put in an appearance were I. Guscio de la Borbolla, Franz Gerdes and Emanuel Llano of the Mexican Davis Cup team and Jack Wright of the Canadian team.

Thalheimer Defeated.

Only one result was registered that may be regarded in the nature of an upset. This was the victory of Stuart Gayness of the West Side Tennis Club over Louis Thalheimer of the University of Texas, intercollegiate doubles champion. Gayness, who holds a position of prominence in the junior rounds, won after three sets of good tennis at 1—6, 6—4, 8—6. His fast ground strokes and his persistency in getting the ball back and his keen eye for his openings brought him through after Thalheimer had completely outplayed him in the first set. Gayness put all he had in him to win the final set, but it was a difficult task to break through the defense of his younger opponent, who kept sending the ball back hard and deep the full length of the court. Shortly after the end of this match Gayness went back on the courts and was defeated in the second round by Gerald Emerson, former Columbia captain. Emerson's game was too strong and too heady for the young Long Island star, and he lost at 6—2, 6—0, defeating himself on errors.

Seven other players in addition to Emerson reached the third round. They were Norton, Snodgrass, Frits Mercur of Lehigh, winner of the Longwood Bowl; John F. Whitbeck of Bronxdale, N. Y., former interscholastic champion; Herbert L. Bowman of New York; Edward Feilbeman of the same city, who put out Jerry Lang of Columbia University, and Lewis N. White, doubles partner of Thalheimer, who defeated Fred Anderson of Brooklyn in the hardest fought match of the day, at 7—5, 7—9, 6—2.

Anderson Is Brilliant.

Anderson played brilliant tennis for the two first sets, placing his returns with good judgment and backing up his forcing shots with aggressive and finished volleying but he failed to last as well as did White, whose service was crashing across the net in the final set. The Texan's ground strokes had as much speed and depth on them that Anderson found his back court almost unbeatable and when the Brooklyn player sought the net he was passed before he got beyond midcourt.

Norton, after gaining a default in the first round, defeated Alan Herrington of California at 6—0, 6—4. This match furnished some of the most brilliant tennis of the day. Norton was very busy in the second set and won it only after his opponent had him set point. The Californian's ground strokes carried a lot of pace and he placed them well when Norton came in. Near the net the latter was compelled to leap in the air to make many of his volleys.

Snodgrass eliminated Perry Pease of Southampton in love sets and then put out Ludlow Vandeventer of Plainfield, N. J., at 6—4, 6—0. Mercur disposed of Eugene M. Hinkle of New York without the loss of a game and reached the third round by defeating Henry Gulli of Boston at 6—3, 6—0.

Brookes, the Kinsey Brothers, Griffin, Fischer and Schlesinger all drew defaults and will not make their first appearance until tomorrow.

Among the other New York players to advance were G. M. Kellcher, Howard Voshell, Elon H. Hooker, Louis H. Bailey Jr., George Stadel, Fred Inman and Harris B. Fisher Jr.

ALL SPORTS PLACED ON PAR

Navy Decides to Abandon Terms "Major" and "Minor."

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 4.—The terms "major" and "minor" as applied to athletic sports for the midshipman have been abolished, and all placed on a like basis, in accordance with revised athletic regulations just issued by Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, Superintendent of the Academy. The new regulations also make certain minor changes as regards letter awards for prowess shown by the Navy in the several branches of sport.

There are fifteen sports in which the Middies engage in open as well as inter-class competition. These are football, baseball, rowing, field and track, basketball, lacrosse, tennis, soccer, swimming, water polo, wrestling, boxing, fencing, rifle and gymnastics. In the future all letter awards to members of varsity teams or others who participate in a majority of other contests will be the yellow or gold block "N," with no digits. Formerly the letters were in colors according to the respective sports. The only deviation as to the gold color will be as to the "N" that is awarded to the athletes who participate in a winning competition with the West Point cadets.

NEW YORK Y. C. FLEET READY FOR CRUISE

First of Yachts Reach Newport and Remainder Rendezvous There Today.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 4.—The fleet of the New York Yacht Club will rendezvous in Newport Harbor tomorrow prior to the club's annual cruise, which this year takes the squadron to Bar Harbor. Among the early arrivals in the harbor were the schooner Vagrant, flagship of Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt; the schooner Iroilta, owned by Walter Clark of Philadelphia, which has been racing on the interclub cruise; schooner Princess, the property of H. S. Noble, and Queen Mab, flagship of Commodore Nathaniel Ayer of the Eastern Yacht Club.

Vagrant arrived this afternoon from New London, and tomorrow night there will be a meeting of captains on the flagship, at which the cruise will be organized. The racing fleet will be augmented tomorrow by the arrival here from Block Island of the interclub fleet of the Larchmont and Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs, which has been engaged in racing from Larchmont eastward. This will include some of the New York Yacht Club fifty-footers, the forties, Larchmont sloops and thirty-footers.

A majority of these vessels will take part in the Astor Cups, which will be sailed Wednesday on the Brenton Reef course off Newport. A cup is offered for schooners and one for sloops. On Thursday the fleet will leave on the first squadron cruise, which will take the racing vessels to the head of Buzzards Bay. On Friday the squadron tows through the Cape Cod Canal to begin the long ocean run to Islesboro, Me.

RAMBLER IS WINNER IN BLOCK ISLAND RACE

BAYSIDE, L. I., Aug. 4.—Representatives of the Bayside Yacht Club did excellent work in the annual Bayside-Block Island and return auxiliary handicap race of the Bayside Yacht Club, according to the figures announced by A. L. Kirchler, Chairman of the Race Committee of the Bayside Yacht Club today. On corrected time the winner is Rambler, which is owned by A. Gleitanner of the organization.

Commodore C. B. Drake's Hutoka, which incidentally made the fastest actual time over the 250-mile course, was second. The race started on Friday evening. The wind, which was a following breeze, was not particularly strong, but it had enough body to drive the craft steadily to the eastward. On the return leg the craft first was favored with a good breeze from the northeast that enabled them to foot in a fast manner to the westward. Early Sunday morning the wind moved into the southeast and became light. It was then a boat home. The Hutoka was the first to finish, her actual time being 39:36:49. She arrived on Sunday morning. The balance of the fleet crossed the finish line throughout the afternoon and evening, several not arriving until early today.

Although Elenor, which is owned by C. Dodger, was the first of the motor boats to finish the 250-mile race of the Allied Boat Clubs of Jamaica Bay, held under the auspices of the Midget Squadron, the winner was still in doubt yesterday. The craft had been protested for making a wrong turn. The yachts were sent over a ten-mile course in Jamaica Bay, with the start and the finish off Nova Scotia Light. The Penny was the only starter in the open power-boat class and covered the ten-mile course in 4:00:32.

SPARTAN CAPTURES FORD YACHT CUP

Special to The New York Times.

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., Aug. 4.—One of the finest sailing days of the Summer favored the racing yachtsmen today in the third squadron run of the interclub cruise of the Larchmont and Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs. Fine weather has attended the cruise thus far. The run, originally planned for today, was from New London to Newport, but at a meeting of the flag officers and captains last night at New London it was decided to make today's racing run to this harbor and tomorrow's run to Newport.

The race, covering a distance of twenty-five and one-quarter nautical miles, was for a cup offered by Commodore James B. Ford of the Larchmont Yacht Club.

The squadron of twenty-four racing yachts of different classes made the run from Sarahs Ledge Bell Buoy, outside New London, to West Harbor, Block Island, and a steadily increasing breeze from south-southwest sent them up in eighteen knots at the finish, gave the racing men some rare sport. All finished with lee rails under and moving at fine speed. Spartan, the New York Yacht Club fifty-footer, owned and sailed by H. Wilmer Hanan, led the fleet to the finish, defeating the fast schooner Iroilta boat for boat and capturing the cup.

Leads Fleet to Finish.

Spartan sailed against Irolita in a special class, but also defeated C. D. Mallory's fifty-footer Mystic, sailed by M. Phil Mallory, by over 19 minutes. Spartan had the best of the start and led the fleet over almost the entire course. Mystic held to the Fisher's Island shore after rounding Race Rock, while Spartan laid a true course for West Harbor Buoy and easily outsailed the Mallory sloop. The race of the day was among the three Larchmont O sloops Maisie, Nimbus and Grey Dawn, and was won in a close finish by Maisie, with Nimbus, sailed by R. F. Alker, only 2 seconds astern after a twenty-five-mile race.

The finish was a thriller, both sloops sailing with lee rails under, and the winner uncertain until they were almost at the finish line. Maisie was finally sailed by Capt. John F. Manchester of the Larchmont Yacht Club, who has shattered the sloop for the cruise. The race of the O boats was close from the start between Maisie and Vice Commodore Johnson's Grey Dawn, with first one in the lead and then the other in the long reach down from Race Rock to the finish, a distance of twenty-one miles. They indulged in several luffing matches, standing off on the course to the southward at times. Maisie finally got Grey Dawn under her lee and held the lead to the finish.

The big thrill and the surprise of the race came in the fact that Nimbus was much near at the finish. The Alker sloop had sailed a different course, holding further to the northward, her skipper evidently thinking to avoid the strong flood tide which was running soon after the fleet turned the old gray tower on Race Rock and laid a course east by south for the Block Island Buoy. Nimbus seemed to be out of the running as she kept holding to the northward, and the race appeared to be between Maisie and Grey Dawn, a very close one at that.

Skipper Alker's figuring turned out to be very good, and he came near nipping Maisie at the end in as pretty a finish as yachtsmen have seen at the end of a long race in many a season. Maisie's elapsed time for the run of twenty-five and one-quarter miles was 3:46:07, or almost seven knots an hour for the race.

The start this morning was an early one. The harbor start was set for 7 o'clock and the warning signal was made by the committee boat. Thetis at Sarah's Ledge an hour later. The early start was necessary because of the ride in the Race. Almost a flat calm prevailed when the warning signal was made and the racing yachts were standing straight up with their sails making shadows on the mirrorlike waters.

Wind Delays Start.

Because of lack of wind many of the yachts were late at the starting line. As it happened, all three Larchmont "O" sloops were towed out and they got away together. Some of the thirty-footers were very late and several of them were hauling dinghies on board for trimming sails a few seconds before they crossed the line.

The thirties were the first to start, and soon after they drifted across the line set a fresh breeze began to blow to the southward. It freshened and soon developed into a fine sailing wind, which held true to the finish. The racing yachts had a short beat to windward in order to make Race Rock, but after turning the mark into Block Island Sound they had a reaching breeze to the finish. On some of the boats not a rope or sail was touched from the Rock to the finish line.

Some additions to the fleet raced today. Cockatoo, the forty-footer owned by C. Cooke of the Eastern Yacht Club of Marblehead, raced against the other forties, and the schooner Pame, which did so well in the Bermuda race, sailed in a special schooner class against M. R. Smith's Blue Water and Clarkson Lowell's Bound, schooner Morfa. This little yacht, sailed by Mrs. Whiting, wife of Commander Kenneth Whiting of the navy, beat the other schooners best for best.

GOLF STARS IN TIE FOR WOOLSEY CUP

EACH PAIR HAS 69 CARD

Special to The New York Times.

ST. ALBANS, L. I., Aug. 4.—Captain H. C. C. Tippett, former metropolitan amateur runner-up, and George Heron, professional, representing the Meadow Brook Club, tied with Eddie Driggs, runner-up for this year's district title, and Joe Sylvester, St. Albans professional, in the amateur-professional best-ball competition held as a forerunner of the annual Long Island open championship at the St. Albans Golf Club today. Each pair turned in scores of 69, one under par for the course. The date for the play-off for the Woolsey Trophy, presented by Floyd Woolsey, Secretary of the Long Island association, and played for for the first time this year, has not been set, but it will probably not be until some time next month, inasmuch as Captain Tippett is now busily making plans for the international polo matches to be played at his club early in September.

The two pairs were threatened with dislodgment when Sam Allison and Ziggie Mellon of the Hempstead Country Club neared the last hole needing only a par 4 to win. Neither of them could get better than a 6, however. Mellon is only a youngster and generally caddies for Eddie Van Vleck. Allison figured in only one hole. J. F. Riddell and Jimmy Law of the Cherry Valley Club had a wonderful start for the honors when they reached the turn with a best ball of 32, but they faltered over the last half of the distance and took a 38, leaving them in a tie with five other pairs for second place, a stroke behind. Bill Kline of the Garden City Country Club, holder of the Long Island title, played with H. G. Edwards, and 70 was the total turned in.

Tippett and Heron Out in 35.

Tippett and Heron went out in 35 and started back with three as three of the first four holes. The fourteenth, however, proved costly, for their best efforts resulted in a 6. After that they finished with two birdies and two pars. Tippett featured at only one hole going out, that being the first, where he got a par 4. He got a birdie 3 at the tenth and it was his 4 at the eleventh that helped materially in spite of the fact that it was—a stroke over the par. Heron then came in with birdies at the twelfth and thirteenth. Then Tippett got a birdie at the fifteenth and a par at the sixteenth and Herbn finished off with a birdie and par at the last two holes.

In—
Par	4	5	4	4	5	4	3	5	4—38—74
Tippett-Heron	3	4	3	3	5	3	3	5	3—32—68

Driggs and Sylvester went out in par figures, losing a stroke to par at the second, but accounting for a birdie at the seventh. Coming in, they had a birdie at the twelfth and another on the seventeenth hole, but lost one of the strokes gained thereby when they lost a stroke to par on the home hole. Driggs had an individual round of 74, going out in 36, due to taking a 5 at the third hole, and coming home in 38. He was par at six holes, a stroke over at three and one under at the seventeenth. Sylvester had a 75.

International Athletic Meet Is Captured by British Women

STAMFORD BRIDGE, England, Aug. 4.—Great Britain today scored a decisive victory with 56 points in the women's international athletic meeting held here. More than 20,000 persons watched the competitions, which were participated in by women athletes from Great Britain, France, Italy, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia. France won second place with 24 points and Belgium third with 15. Miss E. Trickey of Great Britain created a world's record in the 1,000 meters run of 3 minutes 8 1-5 seconds. Mlle. E. Van Truyan of Belgium lowered the record for the high jump, making 4 feet 11½ inches.

PEDLEY AND WEBB TO SHARE POSITION

Each to Play on Tentative Four in Polo Trial Today—British Ponies Reach Long Island.

The struggle between Eric Pedley and J. Watson Webb for the No. 1 position on the American polo team which will meet Great Britain for the International Challenge Cup on the field at Meadow Brook next month will continue this afternoon in the eighth of the trial series on Cochran Field. There is little to choose between the two leading candidates for the No. 1 position at present, and so each will have his chance with the A team for four periods of today's contest. The tentative four will line up for the start of the game, which is scheduled for 5:15 o'clock, with Pedley at No. 1, Thomas Hitchcock at No. 2, Malcolm Stevenson at No. 3 and Devereux Milburn at back, but at the end of the fourth period Webb will take Pedley's place with the tentative four, being scheduled to play in front of Earle W. Hopping, Robert B. Strawbridge and Morgan Belmont during the first four periods of the game.

It is the struggle for the forward place between Pedley, the youngster from the Pacific Coast, and Webb, the veteran of the East, that is attracting the most interest at the present time in polo circles. With the exception of the possible replacing of Stevenson by Strawbridge, the American team is fairly well settled but for the No. 1 position. Hitchcock is certain to be at No. 2 and Milburn is the finest back in the United States at this year, just as he has been the finest back for many seasons past. Strawbridge was handicapped by a broken rib that kept him out of the test matches for several days, and only last Saturday was he able to resume a place in the line-up of the B team. During his absence from the competition Stevenson showed splendid improvement in his work, cooperating with the movements of Milburn, around whom the whole system of the Americans' play centres, and he appeared fairly certain of facing the British, but in the last trial game Stevenson did not play up to his usual game, while Strawbridge returned to the contests with renewed power and completely outshone the present holder of the No. 3 position on the tentative four.

The struggle between Webb and Pedley is somewhat parallel, the Californian having apparently clinched his position only to have the tall left-hander suddenly show a return to his form of 1921 and do the better work in the last game of the series. On the whole Pedley and Stevenson have been better men on the field than their respective rivals, but in last Saturday's game Webb and Strawbridge outplayed the other pair from start to finish. Well will have another chance on the tentative four during the last half of the match this afternoon. Strawbridge will remain with the B team during the game today, but it is no secret that if he continues to show the same ability he displayed last week on his return he will soon get another chance to show how well he can work in with the American combination.

After an inspection of the stables at Mitchel Field by Major Edward E. Metcalfe, Equerry to the Prince of Wales, Lieut. Col. T. P. Melvill and Lord Wimborne's represented, the string of fifty-four British ponies was moved to the Army Polo Centre on Long Island yesterday. The mounts that will carry the invaders during the historic cup matches all came through the journey across the Atlantic in splendid condition and today will start work under the supervision of Colonel Melvill, so that they will be in the best of condition possible when their riders reach the scene of the coming struggle.

EWING BROTHERS WIN IN N. J. TENNIS PLAY

Beat Stewart and Lewis, Each Capturing Match, 6-4, 6-2—Van Ryn, Powers Victors.

The Ewing brothers, J. D. and H. D. Jr., continued to advance in the Northern New Jersey championship tennis tournament on the courts of the Westfield Tennis Club yesterday, both going into the round before the semi-finals. They advanced by the same scores, J. D. Ewing, who won the title last year and who is seeded at the top of the draw, defeating W. A. W. Stewart Jr., 6-4, 6-2, and H. D. Ewing Jr., who is at the bottom of the draw, eliminating Oscar Lewis, 6-4, 6-2. John Van Ryn and F. D. Powers also advanced and their victories filled the fifth round brackets. Van Ryn defeated W. A. Cauldwell, 6-2, 6-1, and Powers defeated J. Dorsey, 6-0, 7-5, meeting strenuous competition for the first time in the tournament during the second set.

Although all the victories were scored in straight sets, Van Ryn was the only player who was not forced at one time or another during the afternoon. J. D. Ewing had to call on his best strokes in defense of his title during the first set of his match against Stewart, who time and again brought strenuous rallies to a sudden ending by a sharply angled shot from the net, a drive down the side lines or an overhead smash. Ewing found himself with a real task, but his accuracy and experience stood him in good stead and he came through the opening chapter. Stewart evidently was playing better tennis than he is accustomed to during those first few games, for during the second chapter there was a marked decrease in the effectiveness of his strokes. Ewing made short work of the match after the second set started.

H. D. Ewing Jr. was faced with very much the same sort of opposition and likewise beat off his opponent by his greater steadiness when points were needed most. Van Ryn never was bothered by the efforts of Cauldwell, winning as he pleased and without extending himself at any time. He had complete control of the situation throughout and brought the match to a quick ending.

Powers lost his first game of the tournament in the fourth round, a rather remarkable record but one that was aided by the luck of the draw. In the first round Powers was given a bye. He advanced through the second round through the default of W. L. Berifein. In the third round he defeated J. C. Jones at 6-0, 6-0, and when he won his first set against Dorsey at love yesterday it appeared as if he would pass on to another bracket without even dropping a game, but in the second set Dorsey suddenly put up a battle and it was not until the games had reached deuce that Powers was able to pull out the match, 6-0, 7-5.

The doubles will be continued today and tomorrow the fifth round of the singles is expected to be completed, with H. D. Ewing meeting Powers, Reginald Talmage facing R. Phillips, Van Ryn playing W. Evans and J. G. Hall drawn against H. D. Ewing Jr., for places in the semi-finals.

Fourth Round—J. D. Ewing defeated W. A. W. Stewart Jr., 6-4, 6-2; H. D. Ewing Jr. defeated Oscar Lewis, 6-4, 6-2; John Van Ryn defeated W. A. Cauldwell, 6-2, 6-1; F. D. Powers defeated J. Dorsey, 6-0, 7-5.

MISS CUMMINGS WINS GOLF MEDAL

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Sloshing through pools of water and playing much of the time in a driving rain, Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago, women's national golf champion, today won medal honors in the qualifying rounds of the Women's Western Golf Championship at Onwentsia by scoring 42 on each nine for an 84, three under par.

The nearest any of the other 151 starters could come to this figure was 88, with which Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., Mrs. Lee Mida and Mrs. F. C. Letts of Chicago tied for second place. Mrs. Dave Gaut of Memphis finished in fifth place with 89 while Mrs. J. W. Taylor of Chicago was sixth with 90. Virginia Pep of St. Louis and Dorothy Higbie of Chicago were next with 91 each, while Mrs. Melvin Jones, Chicago, city champion, took 92.

Miriam Burns of Kansas City, defending champion, although she did not have to play in the qualifying rounds, faced the elements with the rest of the women and scored a 93, tying at that score with Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, Ohio, runner-up to Miss Burns last year, and Mrs. Elaine Rosenthal Reinhart of Dallas, who has held the title twice.

Michigan qualified three players, Catherine Walsh of Grand Rapids scoring 94, Mrs. Phil Sheridan of Detroit getting 96 and Madge Miller of Grand Rapids a 97. The only Indiana player to qualify was Mrs. B. E. Stevenson of Indianapolis, who had 96.

A third Southern player, Mrs. H. S. Geismer of Birmingham, Ala., got in the championship flight with 96. Aside from Miss Pep and Miss Burns, the only other Missouri player to survive the storm was Mrs. R. J. Kohn of St. Louis, who, although she covered the course in practice in 86, today had to take eight penalties for lifting out of water and scored 98.

Among the leading players who failed to get into the championship round were Mrs. Elsie McEvoy of Detroit, who took 101; Mrs. E. E. Harwood and Mrs. J. H. Armstrong of Jackson, Miss., who navigated the course in 102 strokes. Mrs. R. C. Greenlease of Kansas City was not quite so good in sailing the inundated links, taking 104. Mrs. Myra Helmer Pritchard, Battle Creek, Mich., who won the title several years ago, had to take 105 strokes today.

DIEGEL TO CONTINUE TOURNAMENT PLAY

While playing in the metropolitan open championship at the Engineers' Country Club a few weeks ago, Leo Diegel, Washington golf professional, announced that he had resigned his job as private instructor to E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, in order to get some tournament experience. Diegel announced that he was dissatisfied with his development and that he believed that cutting loose from golf instruction and devoting the remainder of the year to free-lance work in the various tournaments would improve his game. Within a few months he had annexed two titles, winning the Shawnee open after a play-off and the Canadian open.

During the recent national open championship at Oakland Hills Diegel acted as pacemaker to Cyril Walker, the Englewood professional, who turned out to be a winner. He himself was far down in the list, and about the only worthwhile thing he had done in the way of golf laurels was to finish in a tie for second in the national open championship at Toledo in 1920.

Coming here for the metropolitan open, in which he finished well up in the money, Diegel stated that he had resigned from the Friendship Club in Washington and that he was going to devote the remainder of the year to tournament golf, in order to see if he really could win anything.

"I would like to get into the metropolitan district," said Diegel. "I like Washington, but it offers few oportunities in the way of developing one's game, owing to the fact that there are only a few courses there. I would like to come to New York, where most of the game's top-notchers are located, and see if I really can't make myself a winner. I need competition and I need tournament experience. I've played in enough tournaments to be a seasoned campaigner, but somehow or other whenever I start in a big event I'm as nervous as if it was my first."

There will be a lively scramble for places when the P. G. A. qualifying round for professionals in the metropolitan area comes off at the Quaker Ridge Club on Monday, Aug. 25. Out of all the professionals located in the district, at least a dozen of them stars of the first water, less than twenty will qualify for the P. G. A. championship, which is scheduled to be held at French Lick Springs, Ind., during the middle of September. Ernest Anders, one of the officials of the P. G. A., stated that according to the allotment of places there would be only fourteen qualifiers from this district. There is room for only sixty-four in all, the country being divided into sections and each section's quota being based upon the number of professionals located in the section. It is possible that an effort will be made to increase the metropolitan quota to sixteen, although present indications call for only fourteen. It is possible that a number of the leaders will be left out when the event is finished, for within the metropolitan district alone there are at least a dozen or more who are at the top of the list of stars. Among them are Hagen, Kirkwood, Brady, Barnes, Cruickshank, Walker, Farrell, Sarazen, Macfarlane, Forrester, Dowling, Mac Smith and Johnny Golden, just to mention only a few of the outstanding.

Announcement has been made that Alex Smith, former national open champion, has been named golf professional at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club at Rye, succeeding Cuthbert Butchart, who has been professional there since the club first opened. Smith, a brother of Macdonald Smith, and a member of one of the most famous golf families of Carnoustie, Scotland, has for several years been professional at Shenecossett, New London, Conn., which is under the same management as the Westchester Biltmore. During the Winter season he is located at the Belleview, Bellesair, Fla. He will now divide his time between the Westchester Biltmore and Shenecossett during the Summer season and continue his post at Bellesair during the Winter.

WHETSTONE TAKES THE MECHANICVILLE

VOLTAIC EARNS BRACKETS

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Whetstone, the Glen Riddle Farm's three-year-old filly by Sweep-Keystone, with Jockey Kennedy in the saddle, this afternoon captured the Mechanicville Handicap, running the mile in 1:37 4-5, over a fast track and beating such good ones as Bracadale, Exodus, Beau Butler, Diogenes and Sunspero. Whetstone came from behind to nose out Exodus, and ran in a manner to indicate that she will be a formidable candidate for the Alabama Stakes, the filly classic of the Saratoga meeting.

Voltaic, for which R. L. Gerry paid $15,000 to A. E. Hancock at the yearling sales a year ago, carried off the Saratoga Sales Stakes, a dash of five and a half furlongs for two-year-olds which were sold here at public auction last year, in addition to the added money a cup valued at $500 was offered. Voltaic captured the trophy and $4,350 for his owner. Voltaic picked up 122 pounds, was ridden by Earl Sande and ran the distance in 1:06, beating seven others.

Sande carried off the riding honors of the afternoon. In addition to having the mount on the winner of the Juvenile Stake, he piloted George D. Widener's fleet filly Saleta to an impressive victory in the final race, after she had been badly left at the post. Ivan Parke had three mounts, but was unable to land a winner, although he was twice in the money.

Grand Stand Filled.

Another big crowd was on hand, every seat in the grand stand being taken, the lawn crowded and the tables in the clubhouse filled. This is taken as an indication that the season here will approach the record in point of attendance, as Monday is generally an off day. The sky was overcast during the afternoon, with a threat of rain, and the humidity would have been most oppressive if it had not been for a cooling breeze. The track was in excellent condition.

Eight started in the Mechanicville Handicap, with Bracadale the strong favorite at 7 to 5. Bracadale showed in front as they shot out of the chute, but Sande took him back, leaving Gifford A. Cochran's Sunspero to make the pace. Parke sent Exodus up on the back stretch, and the Greentree Stable's Peter Pan jielding ran lapped on the leader, with Bracadale more than a length back and Billy Warren next.

At the head of the stretch Parke challenged with Exodus, and for a short distance ran into the lead. In the stretch run Bracadale faltered under his top weight of 118 pounds, and Whetstone came up past him on the inside, challenging Exodus after disposing of Sunspero. In the last few strides the filly got up to nose out Exodus, while Bracadale, under Sande's vigorous handling, saved third money by a length and a half from Sunspero. The winner was held at 6 to 1, with Exodus at 10 to 1.

Voltaic went to the post a strong favorite in the Saratoga Sales Stake, closing at 11 to 10. Sande took Voltaic to the front with the rise of the barrier, opening a good lead and coming home two lengths the victor of J. S. Cowdin's Cloudland. Gifford A. Cochran's Flying Ebony, second choice in the wagering, made a determined bid in the stretch drive to get in the place, but was forced to take third. Flying Ebony also was one of the Hancock lot last year, having brought $21,000 at the yearling sales.

Keogh Has Mounts.

The race marked the first appearance in the saddle on this side of the water in several years of Frank Keogh, who arrived Saturday from France to ride the horses of Joseph E. Widener. Keogh had the mount on Mr. Widener's Despot, but the colt was never a serious contender. Keogh also was up on Negrina in the final number, but the filly, after showing the way in the early stages, dropped back to finish eighth.

There was a false start in the Broadway Purse in which Salacia would not go, but some of the others ran a couple of furlongs before being brought up. When the barrier rose after six minutes at the post Salacia was still obdurate. When Sande finally got her going the last of the field was five lengths in front of her, with the leader a dozen lengths down the track.

Salacia's victory was a tremendous surprise and shock to the spectators, who had their eyes riveted on the duel between J. E. Widener's Negrina and S. L. Burch's Best Beloved, with the Western filly Bob's Mary well up.

All this while Salacia was making up ground. Sande hugged the rail all the way around the oval, and at the head of the stretch he had worked up through his field to fourth position and at the turn shot across a little wide to come around the leaders. Salacia finished with a wonderful burst of speed, passing the winning post two and a half lengths in front of Best Beloved, which had a length on Bob's Mary.

Edward R. MacLean's filly Floating On, making her first appearance on a New York track, ran away from her opposition in the opening number. Floating On, under the light impost of 108 pounds, rushed into a decisive lead and Williams let her go on, constantly widening the gap between her and William Daniel's Ballot colt Goldfield. In the stretch drive Prince Hamlet made up a lot of ground and in the final strides he got up to beat Goldfield by a head for the place, but was eight lengths back of Floating On.

EPINARD IN BRISK GALLOP.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Late comers here, who have not previously had a look at Epinard, lined the rails at the race course this morning when Eugene Leigh had the French colt brought out for his regular exercise. After having sampled the Horse Haven training course yesterday morning Epinard was taken out on the main track on which he was allowed a brisk three-furlong gallop. Most of the watchers were on the four-year-old and they caught him in 0:38 flat. Leigh was pleased with the work, as the colt seemed full of running.

"The colt seemed more eager to go about this task than at any time since his arrival," said the veteran trainer, "and I am sure he is returning to the good form of 1922."

One of the most enthusiastic of the onlookers was Joseph E. Widener, who went out to the course early this morning to look over his horses in charge of Trainer Tom Walsh. From now to the time that Epinard will be shipped to Belmont Park for his first race there will be plenty of opportunities to see the colt in real action.

DAWES AND THE TARIFF.

With the Dawes plan in operation, what will be its effect upon international trade? Specifically, what will be its influence upon American foreign commerce? These questions have long been under study by detached and far-sighted economists. They have pointed out that the European settlement will make not only for stability but for revival of business. If, in addition, the United States takes half the German loan, continues to invest in foreign securities, and begins to get payments on the debts owed us by France, Italy and others, how are we going to receive our due? We cannot avoid taking it largely in the form of imported goods, say the students of economics. One of them, Mr. ANDERSON of the Chase National Bank, has just pointed out that, in his opinion, "we "must lower our tariff so as to permit "Europe to send us more goods in-"stead of gold." And none other than Mr. CULBERTSON, Vice Chairman of the Tariff Commission, has been stating at Williamstown that the acceptance of the Dawes plan will probably compel "a reconsideration of many of our tariff rates."

There may be a cruel dilemma in this for the Republicans before the campaign is over. They can't have it both ways. They cannot praise the Dawes plan to the skies, as the greatest constructive work since the World War, and so on, without putting themselves under an obligation to carry it out in all its logical consequences. General DAWES cannot be pictured as the Moses who struck the European rock and set the stream of industry and manufacture flowing, unless it be explained what he proposes to do with those parts of the Republican platform which are designed to prevent any of the overflow from reaching our markets. Perhaps the General, with his gift for great plainness of speech, will revive and make his own the saying of President MCKINLEY: "If a nation will not buy, it cannot sell."

THE MURDER OF MRS. EVANS.

The murder of Mrs. ROSALIE EVANS in Mexico is especially deplorable because of the legal and diplomatic battle which was being fought about her property in that country, and which resulted in Great Britain's breaking off diplomatic relations with Mexico. The fact that Mrs. EVANS was still the subject of acrimonious controversies between the Mexican and British Governments, and was reported to have been in danger of her life on numerous occasions in recent months, gives to the atrocious crime a political nature which may entail serious consequences. President OBREGON'S Government, although not accused of complicity, should not have failed to afford special protection to Mrs. EVANS. Not even prompt pursuit of the murderers, coupled with effort to make official amends, can undo all the harm.

The problem is further complicated by the fact that Great Britain turned over the care of her interests in Mexico to the American Government when the British agent, Mr. H. C. CUMMINS, was withdrawn. This means that the American Embassy not only has taken over the care of the British archives and offices, but also serves as intermediary between the Mexican and British Governments for all diplomatic communications. So doing, the United States acts solely as agent. But while our Government has no direct responsibility, it is nevertheless deeply interested in the action which the British Government may take. The case of Mrs. EVANS, which attracted as much attention during her life, can hardly be expected to be dropped quietly because she was foully murdered.

Although the United States has frequently disclaimed all thought of guardianship over the nations of this continent, the development of the Monroe Doctrine has led it to look askance upon drastic interference in the internal affairs of an American republic by any nation of Europe. The State Department is therefore certain to use its efforts to persuade the Government of Mexico to comply promptly with the demands for redress which Great Britain will make. Although this particular case may be quickly adjusted, it is a new reminder of the difficulties of Governments in protecting the rights of their citizens abroad. Outrages and murders of foreigners have occurred even in highly civilized States. But the present instance is particularly grave because of its political nature. In the eyes of Great Britain the Mexican authorities had been hounding Mrs. EVANS before her death. They will certainly be held to account for her murder.

TEXAS CHIVALRY.

Down in Texas a new knighthood is in flower. Former Governor "JIM" FERGUSON, impeached as Governor by the Legislature and enjoined by the court from entering his name in the lists for a new nomination, is chivalrously represented by his wife, Mrs. MIRIAM A. FERGUSON, who has entered the tourney to vindicate her husband. But as the knight, Sir Gareth, in the "Idylls of the King," who went, despised as a knave, on the perilous journey with Lynette and did all the fighting, so Sir JIM is doing all the campaigning. Lady MIRIAM, as the nominal candidate, had at latest report the second largest vote in the Gubernatorial primaries, but she has made no speeches herself. Sometimes she has appeared on the platform, but Sir JIM has done the talking. It is he who has fought the "brotherhood of Day and Night," the "monster" of TENNYSON'S lines supposed to be "unsubduable" of any save of Lancelot himself and pictured as wearing a hood or helmet with a skull—the "Klan" in the Texan idyll of Democracy. For while Sir JIM says to Lady MIRIAM, in true Southern courtesy, as Sir Gareth said to Lynette after every encounter, "Lead and I follow," it is the ex-Governor, ungraciously called "Sir Knave," who lays the disguised foes "groveling on the ground" or hurls them metaphorically headlong over the bridge.

At the end of the romantic idyll of Gareth and Lynette, when all the foes had been overcome, when she had emerged in safety and her companion, transformed from knave to knight, again said, "Lead and I follow," she replied, "I lead no longer, abide thou at my side." So Lady MIRIAM, it is reported, proposes that if she is elected Sir JIM shall sit at her side in the Gubernatorial office—more than that, that he shall be the Chief Executive. It is a pretty bit of romance. Knighthood is still in flower down in Texas.

A LEAGUE OF BRITANNIC NATIONS.

The discussions aroused throughout the British Empire by Canada's unwillingness to ratify the Lausanne Treaty and by the announcement that the Irish Free State would have its own Minister to the United States have once more raised a question which is of almost as great interest to the United States as to the British Empire—What is the precise diplomatic status of the Dominions? That the British Empire is being gradually transformed into what Premier MACKENZIE KING calls a "league of Britannic nations" has long been apparent. It was an inevitable outcome of the war. But it is not yet clear what degree of independence in the conduct of foreign relations the new status of the Dominions will permit. Obviously they have, from the point of view of internal affairs, attained nationhood. At the Paris conference they were each separately represented. But it is a tradition that the conduct of foreign policy is one of the highest functions of a State, and that in an organization such as the British Empire this must be under a single head.

It is the very force of this tradition which made students of British history look with astonishment at the announcement in May, 1920, that Canada, if she so desired, might have a Minister to the United States, who, in the absence of the British Ambassador, should act as Chargé d'Affaires of the empire. To be sure, there were many reasons for such a step, the foremost being the mass of business between the people of Canada and the United States, and the advantage to both countries of having it pass through the hands of men familiar with their respective interests. Furthermore, Canada has always had a special relationship to the United States, due to geographic proximity and to the closeness of interests and traditions of the two peoples. But it stood to reason that, if Canada could have a Minister to the United States, the other Dominions might sooner or later claim the same privilege, or might demand that they exchange diplomatic representatives with some other nation with which they had a special relation. This, obviously, would shatter the uniformity of British foreign policy. What effect would it have on the unity of the empire?

Ireland, of course, followed suit. This was expected. Our Government has expressed its willingness to receive an Irish envoy. Judging by the action of the British Government in the case of the halibut treaty with Canada last year, there is no indication of a desire on the part of Great Britain to curtail this power. On the other hand, Canada has not yet availed herself of the opportunity to send a Minister to Washington. Should she do so, the question will arise as to whether or not we can or should send a Minister to Canada. When Ireland's envoy arrives there will probably be a demand to have us return the compliment.

Clearly, the problem is a delicate one. The Dominions naturally wish full freedom in matters of foreign policy in which their interests alone, rather than those of the empire as a whole, are concerned. Downing Street concurs in this. But where is the line to be drawn between matters of empire and of the separate Dominions? This is a question which it will require the patience and ingenuity of the entire "league of Britannic nations" to solve.

LA FOLLETTE AND LABOR.

Mr. GOMPERS has worked out a formula which permits him to endorse the personal candidacies of LA FOLLETTE and WHEELER and to approve their platform on domestic issues, while rejecting the third-party idea in itself. In accordance with the theory of "partisanship to principles," it so happens that in 1924 an independent ticket and platform receive the A. F. of L. approval. That involves no commitment for the future. The theory will be hard to live up to if a third party, presumably a Farmer-Labor party, should be born out of the present campaign. Such a party would be sure to present a platform and a candidate to outbid the two old parties with Labor. In that case the American Federation of Labor would find independence of action difficult. But no doubt Mr. GOMPERS prefers not to cross that bridge till he reaches it.

For LA FOLLETTE the partial endorsement at Atlantic City may represent a gain, but not on the vital sector of his battlefront. His Presidential candidacy is intended primarily to promote the election of LA FOLLETTE Congressmen. Personally gratifying as he might consider a large vote for himself, it would be disappointing if it were so distributed as to produce little effect on Congress. But the Atlantic City statement specifically declares that the Federation reserves full liberty in the endorsement of Congressional candidates. The hostile reference to LA FOLLETTE'S Socialist followers makes it plain that the Federation cachet will be bestowed upon Democratic and Republican candidates, if they meet the test, as against possible Socialist candidates.

The "progressiveness" of LA FOLLETTE finds its proper commentary in the singling out of the LA FOLLETTE foreign plank for condemnation by the Federation. The Wisconsin candidate's conception of foreign policy consists essentially in a rehearsal of the crimes of international bankers. This may be adapted to the Hylan mental level, but it is contemptuously dismissed by organized labor, though it, in theory, ought to be more afraid of the bankers than LA FOLLETTE'S farmer legions should be. So in the matter of anti-trust legislation the American Federation of Labor is about twenty years ahead of progressive Senator LA FOLLETTE, who still sticks to the slogans of the pre-Roosevelt era.

LAST STAGE OF THE WORLD FLIGHT.

Engine trouble forced Lieutenant WADE down in the flight from the Orkneys to Iceland. It would doubtless have been remedied but for the accident that befell the plane when it was being hoisted on board the cruiser Richmond. Lieutenant WADE seems to be out of the round-the-world flight through no fault of his own. He had flown 19,000 miles in fair weather and foul without mishap. His accident was hard to endure with philosophy. Lieutenant SMITH, the commander of the squadron, and Lieutenant NELSON, whose dash to Hoefn Hornafjord in spite of fog banks proved his mettle, must now, apparently, carry the flag to Labrador. The foresight of the Army Air Service in starting four planes round the world has twice been vindicated. No experienced aviator believed that the flight could be a 100 per cent. success. The weather risk had been calculated, but that to material could not be. "The machines at Brough," said a friendly British critic, "were "as they left Seattle last March, and "from my examination of the air-"craft it seems to me there was no "reason why they should not return "there in almost as good condition as "when they set out." But good as the Liberty engine is, it goes wrong sometimes.

SMITH and NELSON will fly south to Labrador by degrees into warmer waters. Fog they may have to contend with, but there is no reason why they should not wait for clear weather before making a start. There is no question of a race with the British aviator, Major STUART MACLAREN. He is "stalled" in the Kurtles, and if he should reach Nova Scotia by way of Winnipeg and Vancouver, the broad Atlantic would lie between him and final achievement. The well organized and carefully planned American expedition was to proceed always with due regard to safety. There was to be no attempt to break records. Time was to be taken out for repairs and refitting without any prescribed limitation. On one point alone were there instructions concerning the schedule. The Orkneys were to be reached before the end of Summer, as September weather in the sub-Arctic might be treacherous.

The flying to Labrador by way of Iceland and Greenland must be made when the offing is clear. The aviators remaining in the flight should be cautioned by the War Department to take their time and pick their weather for the final overseas hazard. It doesn't matter whether they are a week or a fortnight in getting to Labrador. The margin of safety ought to be liberally calculated. No chances of failure should be taken when success is so near.

JOSEPH CONRAD.

The hand of chance in human affairs was a favorite subject with Mr. CONRAD. It was his fortune to die in the plenitude of his fame. To obscurity, gradually lightened by the approval of the few, had succeeded a wide popularity and unchallenged pre-eminence as the first active creative artist of this time. For years he had given that "complete, unswerving devotion to the perfect blending "of form and substance" which was his high and constant aim. "To me," he said, "writing is extremely laborious, and I have often risen from "my desk at 2 o'clock in the morning, "after a long night's labor, more exhausted than after my hardest day's "work on shipboard, and I have done "everything there—carried bags of "wheat, shoveled coal into the furnaces and performed all the other "severe forms of physical labor that "are part of the routine of life aboard "ship—to find that I had completed "only a thousand words." His health was never too firm, as Americans were sorry to learn when he called on them last year, and by his modesty, simplicity and humor proved that the sincerity of his nature was equal to the sincerity of his art. Something in his career, something in his books, led many or most of his readers to feel a personal liking for him. He was a friend. How could he be otherwise, he whom we have followed over so many rivers, archipelagos, through jungles and forests, through the darker jungles of the human mind?

He must have been weary. It was time for him to rest. He has, in finality, the solitude and mystery which life, as we see it in his works, must have seemed to him, no matter how generous and wide his sympathies, no matter how deep his appeal to loyalty and fellowship, the social instinct and "solidarity." The human atom, inaccessible, by incapacities of character or temperament, by racial inheritance, by past errors, by blind violence, by want of imagination, by excessive imagination and self-brooding, by the mere shaking of the dice of chance, struggling futilely against some sinister or destructive power, exterior or interior—so, in a general way, the map of Conradia looks to us. To other and wiser cartographers no doubt it looks very different. A brilliant critic, Mr. WILSON FOLLETT, assures us that Mr. CONRAD'S "consistent way of affirming anything is to deny its opposite." Thus, "he stresses the solitariness of "men and women, with a kind of inverted emphasis, only to show the "desperate ardor of their struggle for "fraternity." But isn't "a desperate struggle for fraternity" merely a phrase for "the invincibility of solitariness"?

This is meat for the psychologists, who will have much to say, though they have perhaps said enough already, about his "earlier" and "later" methods. Of the latter, narration by five or six narrators, the viewing of the insides of a man's or woman's head by five or six different pairs of eyes, may be the most original and fruitful development. His neglected or airy chronology would be apt to fall in another's hands. As for the deep-revolving Marlow, we all love him as CONRAD'S double and magic shadow-shape—except on the rare occasions when he bores us. Much has been said of CONRAD'S marvelous command of a language which he didn't begin to learn till his twentieth year. He used to take the Bible on his voyages; also, it is said, the industrious and impeccable FLAUBERT. Somehow or other he managed to achieve an English style or series of styles not surpassed in our day. Small errors were not wanting in his English, but they are probably much less numerous than the mole-eyed could find in easy, careless THACKERAY. There was too much sonority of adjectives in his first books. There is a more athletic, a severer beauty, in his maturer writing, but he was always changing, gaining, learning—a consummate example of the artist. "My task which I am trying to achieve," he wrote long ago, "is by the power "of the written word to make you "hear, make you feel—it is, before all, "to make you see." That task he nobly achieved.

Romanticist, realist, romantic-realist? Leave to the logomachists such sterile brabbles! In his own words, "to try voluntarily to discover the "fettering dogmas of some romantic, "realistic or naturalistic creed in the "free work of its own [the imagina-"tion's] inspiration is a trick worthy "of human perverseness." With a large and long gratitude we take leave of the man who has borne so many of us on so many happy journeys away from the "dull presence of the things that are." His works remain, to be for our successors, no doubt, as they have been for us, companions of youth, brighteners of middle life, some consolation to old age—miseris viatica canis.

THE ARMENIANS IN GREECE.

It was feared from recent dispatches that Greece had acted summarily and harshly with respect to the Armenians in Macedonia. Yet Greece has been hospitable and even generous to the million refugees who nearly two years ago fled in terror from Anatolia. With the hundreds of thousands of those refugees of Greek stock came tens of thousands of Armenians who had no ancestral land to which they might flee. To these exiles the Greeks gave the same welcome as to their own kin.

Now a new necessity is upon the Greek Government. Under an agreement with the Turkish Government, some 25,000 Moslem Macedonians who had fled from their homes during the period of stress and whose lands had been given over to the Armenians are to be returned to their old possessions—a like number of Greeks being permitted to remain in Constantinople. This has strained to the breaking point the resources of the Greeks and has suggested deporting the Armenians. But the Armenian children, about two thousand in number, who have been placed in Macedonia and have become self-supporting, are not to be removed. Yesterday's dispatches indicate that the new Government will do its best to continue to provide for all the refugees, Anatolian Greeks and Armenians alike, in the hope that succor can be found for the latter.

As for the Armenians, it would seem that the only place where they can hope to preserve their integrity as a nation is in Transcaucasia. With the partial freedom given them in an Armenian Republic, this hardy people, who have written a brave chapter in the history of mankind, should take root again within sight of their venerated Ararat. This imposing mountain which stands on the horizon of history is now under Turkish jurisdiction and is surrounded by a sparsely settled territory. If the new Republic of Turkey were to offer to the Republic of Armenia a strip of land on the right bank of the Araxes, including Mount Ararat, large enough to care at least for the children of those who have been exiled, it would be the best earnest that Turkey could give of her better purposes. Meanwhile, it is not for those who have borne only a small share of the burden of caring for the homeless Armenians sharply to criticize treatment of the Armenian refugees by Greece.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A City Growing Marvelously.

There are signs that Clarksburg, W. Va., is becoming self-conscious. Knowing that the eyes of the nation will be upon it next Monday, it is assuming metropolitan airs. From an article in The Clarksburg Daily Telegram we learn that the population commonly assigned to the town does it "an injustice."

Outside newspapers refer to Clarksburg as a city with a population of about 30,000. This is an excusable mistake, since the census of 1920 gave it 27,869 residents, and a normal rate of gain would now make the population three or four thousand greater. But no outsider can understand the Clarksburg arithmetic.

The census figures were confined to the "corporate limits" of Clarksburg. But several suburbs have since been taken into Greater Clarksburg, and there are still others, such as Nutter Fort and New Fair Grounds, which should be added to get "the right idea of the size of Clarksburg." By doing this, and by taking in Clark District and Coal District—with a total population of 23,000—we discover that Clarksburg is a city of 48,507 people.

Nor is this all. In making the above estimate the assumption was that Clarksburg has merely kept on growing at "approximately the same rate." But local statisticians are convinced that the rate has been accelerated to a growth of "about 3,140 a year," instead of 1,800 a year. All that is necessary, therefore, is to multiply by the four years since the census, and we have "a total estimated population of 53,867." Wherefore, declares The Telegram, "just set Clarksburg down, roughly, as a city of 50,000 and you will come nearer to the fact." Q. E. D.

Honored In His Own Valley.

Congressman LANGLEY of Kentucky has won a renomination in the primaries after a campaign of "vindication," he having been convicted in the Federal courts some months ago of conspiracy to violate the Volstead law. The precise meaning of his vindication will presumably remain in doubt. It may be that his constituents believe him innocent, or it may be that the electors of Kentucky believe that the Volstead law is a pretty good thing to violate. But the basic reason, no doubt, is local pride. It is the Tenth Congressional District of Kentucky contra mundum.

Modern students of the social mind are fond of speaking of tribal morality. The implication is that it is a juggernaut of outworn ethics and mores whose business and delight it is to crush out the finer moral intuitions of the individual. Man's high aspirations are continually being flattened out by the solid impact of the tribe and the herd. But the facts, as recent American political history shows, are just the other way.

If there is any group that keeps an open mind on the question of basic moral principles it is the tribe or the herd when it is sitting in judgment on one of its own members. Mayors have been elected to office by their fellow-citizens precisely on the ground that the candidate had got into trouble with the law while doing something for a friend. Cabinet officials who have retired under a cloud are the recipients of public testimonials from their communities. A Grand Jury or an investigating committee may publish its findings in full. That does not prevent the toastmaster from expressing the fervent admiration and affection of everybody present for the man who, &c. What is a more court conviction between friends?

Possibly it is not altogether and always local loyalty. Sometimes a community may only be expressing its gratitude to a distinguished son who has brought publicity on his home town or State. It may not be the best kind of fame, but it is fame.

Motor Vehicle Death List.

The juggernaut motor vehicle kills more people in the State of New York every year. The casualties are on an ascending scale. President EDWARD S. CONNELL of the National Highway Protective Society reports that in the first seven months of 1924 the number of persons who were killed in motor vehicle accidents, or died of their injuries, was 1,135, or about 162 a month. The total jumped up to 188 in August. By the end of the year the score may exceed 2,000. A New York surgeon once said that a man was more likely to be killed by an automobile in walking from the Grand Central Station to Broadway than he was to die as the result of any one of several operations that are considered serious by patients.

It was proved that fatal automobile accidents in this city may generally be avoided when we had a safety week, and drivers and pedestrians were put upon their good behavior. They were expected to look and listen, and to stop if necessary. One day there was not a single fatal accident, and the total for the week was very small. But when the week was over the harvest of death began again. Undoubtedly President CONNELL is right when he attributes part of the casualties to the leniency of the courts in dealing with offending drivers. If the punishment were made to fit the crime, there would be a marked decline in the death list.

Dry Weather Has Its Dangers.

At the risk of being dubbed "kill-joys," friends of forest conservation are deploring the continued clear weather which has been our lot during the last four weeks. That many of the days have been unusually humid, and hence uncomfortable, does not concern them. They are interested in humidity only when it rains, and their interest in rain is primarily as a fire preventive.

Only a few days ago a report came from York Harbor, on the coast of Maine, that a cigarette thrown in the grass had caused the destruction of several houses. Whether the smoker was city or country bred the dispatch failed to state, but the lesson is particularly applicable to those many persons who during this month will have their only taste of country life. To flaunt statistics in the face of a camper or hiker is, as a rule, of little avail. Better is it to show him land that has been burned over, so that he may visualize the destruction which so often follows carelessness. If the camper and vacationist who has never seen this barren sight would be public-spirited enough to accept the warnings so often repeated, most of the harm would be avoided.

"Be as careful with fire while you are in wooded areas as you would be in your own home" is the advice of the American Game Protective Association to all campers. However hackneyed, it cannot be sufficiently stressed, for the average city dweller when he is outdoors forgets that grass and leaves are more inflammable than pavement. If more people had had the Boy Scouts' training, there would be less damage from field and forest fires.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When I think of the various reasons assigned for the Democratic convention mix-up and the desperate efforts of many of our public men to explain the unmanly proceedings there, I am reminded of an old Virginia gentleman during the campaign of 1920.

The old gentleman's only son, thinking that he would be "smart Alecky" and ultra-modern, voted the straight Republican ticket. Somebody told the boy's father about it; and immediately the old fellow hurried down to his son's store to confirm the terrible news. The old fellow was hot, but he gave his young hopeful about 100 reasons why he should not have voted with the Republicans. But apparently they seemed lame and impotent to the old gentleman. Holding his wrath no longer, he finally blurted out:

"And to think that you, a Virginian and a Southerner, voted the Republican ticket! Why, my boy, it simply isn't decent, that's all!"

One can pass over the old fellow's deep prejudices with a smile. After all, they are no worse than what happened at the convention. What took place there—a large part of it—was not decent, surely. But now, with the nomination of John W. Davis, all that is gone. It may be futile to vote for Mr. Davis, for the rest of the country—I mean many of the newspapers, so-called business men, and certain noisy elements in our population—are just about as much prejudiced against the Democratic Party as the old Virginian was in its favor; and it's mighty hard to beat them. But, anyway, although the campaign may be futile, with a man like Davis it won't be foolish. And above all it will be decent. That's about all any self-respecting voter can hope to accomplish with his ballot.

HE CALLED YOU FRIEND.

He called you Friend. From out his meagre store
He gave, and loved the giving, counting not
The little treasure flung with lavish hand.
He wrung his heart's blood out that you might go
Less perilled on your unrelenting way.
He cut his snowy loaf, and poured his wine—
Content with crumbs and dregs—so you were fed.
Then in the heat and struggle, one bright noon,
Weary and spent, he faltered and went down.
And you? You bent and kissed him, Judas, there
Upon his pallid cheek. . . . You let him go
Unto his suffering and solitude,
Waving a careless hand. . . . And they who know
Tell how you had made jest of all his love.
And flayed his selfishness with open hands.
They tell how you were wise, and reasoned thus—
"He wavers, and his strength, and gold, are gone.
Get us another henchman in his place.
This fool has served our little purpose well."
He called you Friend. What shall he call you now,

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To lawyers living in a State where a plea of guilty to any crime punishable by death is prohibited by statute, as in this State, the proceedings in the Franks murder case in Chicago would suggest a possible serious infirmity which might ultimately result in the discharge of Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb.

Section 332 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of this State forbids the acceptance of this plea, but it might be held that if we did not have this section in the code the courts might well hold that a man was not convicted by due process of law—to use the words of the State and Federal Constitutions—where his conviction was based on his plea of guilty. The trial of such a crime could only be by a jury under Article 3 of the Federal Constitution, so all this evidence taken without a jury could in no sense be considered as evidence in the trial itself.

It must be remembered that there is a very wide distinction between the confession of a crime and a plea of guilty. Confessions are always admitted when properly proved in evidence. The courts would be very chary about allowing any kind of a conviction on a confession only. A confession leaves the defendants the chance of acquittal by the jury if unsupported by other evidence and the circumstances of the case. It may not be believed.

On the other hand, a plea of guilty has been held to be tantamount to a verdict of guilty. There is no equivocation nor any chance for a defendant when he pleads guilty, and, so long as that plea stands, he must suffer the penalty of the crime. This is abhorrent to our sense of justice. It would really be a way by which a man could commit judicial suicide.

It is true that a plea of guilty may be withdrawn at any time during the trial. This makes the plea an especially unsatisfactory one for a murder trial. As I recall, the pleas of guilty of these young men were accepted by the Court and the evidence now taken is so that the Court may be informed as to what punishment it should impose. This is astonishing, assuming that this is the status of the case. It is understood that the evidence is being taken without a jury. There can be no consent of such a criminal trial without a jury. All of this evidence now being taken can have no weight in connection with the conviction of these men. It is only under this non-jury evidence that what is known to the law as corpus delicti seems to have been proved. That is to say, in a murder case it must be shown that there is a corpse and that the person died through the agency of another. Such evidence in the Chicago case cannot be used as evidence of corpus delicti where it is presented without a jury. They tell me there is a feeling in Chicago that there is "a nigger" somewhere in this wood pile.

There can be no doubt that if acceptance of the plea of guilty is not due process of law, then at any time after the conviction of these men they can move for their acquittal because of the invalidity of their conviction. Will not some of the lawyers identified with this case enlighten us in these respects?

A Dairy Farmer's Plaint.

The long drought was thankfully broken today by a heavy rain which allowed a lot of us farmers here in the milk belt time to repair harness, mend whiffletrees and, when the women folk weren't lookin', sneak out into the wagon house a temporary supply of hard cider. Rainy days and hard cider prompt soliloquy. After that comes the reaction, and so I'm going to make one unearthly holler at the present low price of milk, which is slightly over 3 cents per quart.

Thirty years ago today the New York Milk Exchange fixed the price of milk for August at 2¼ cents. At that period feed was less than $20 per ton, machinery reasonable, clothing obtainable at a fair price and taxes low. At that time, too, one could buy a quart of new applejack for 50 cents. But times have greatly changed, brother, as we are now paying $5 per bottle for a concoction called applejack, which is really one-third distilled apple juice, one-third grain alcohol and the other third aqua pura, with the admixture of glycerin and burnt sugar; but, parenthetically, it does the trick, however. As to the other necessities, we sure are up against it. Feed is nearly $70 per ton, farm machinery doubled in price, while the least said about clothing the better, particularly by those of us who are fortunate enough to have rich city relatives. And as for taxes—well, the sky seems to be the limit to those who adjust them. And so quite naturally we're all het up here in the milk belt.

Another thing that has greatly perturbed us is a circular recently received from your village issued by some association for the national relief of agriculture. It is printed on heavy paper and signed by a Chairman, two Vice Chairmen and a Mrs. Somebody as Secretary, with an Executive Committee of some forty-odd. Hell and Maria! Why, some of those forty-odd birds I knew well years ago, and I'll make affidavit that the hardest work they ever performed was to push a stack of chips into the centre of the table, and on certain occasions with reluctance and loss, too. And now they are banded together to relieve agriculture!

There is no question but that the farmer—the greatest purchasing element in the country today—is hard pressed. And so, too, are a lot of you fellows around New York who are working for a salary. But conditions can't be corrected by special legislation. The present plight of the farmer is caused by a high tariff, public officials who have contrived to create innumerable and unnecessary jobs with sinecurists and organized hi-jackers of many varieties.

Unfortunately, the farmer has long stood for a high tariff. The poor misguided soul doesn't seem to realize that about everything he purchases is thereby enhanced in price, and all the twaddle about the employes of protected industries paying him a good price for oats is all bunk. And these fellows here who are getting a low price for their chief commodity, milk—while but sixty miles from a strongly protected centre, yet paying a heavy toll on everything they require in the way of machinery, &c.—are laboring under a serious misapprehension that will eventually ruin them financially.

However, we're all going to try to be happy next week, 'cause the Goshen races occur. Then we will sit high up in the grand stand and look down on the activities and performances of both the hosses and the milk and protected barons of New York and Tuxedo. How both will besport themselves! But it'll be a heart breaker in some respects, by heck! Our little plain gals will gaze on feminine loveliness and diamond-studded masculinity, and while they will realize there is something wrong somewhere, they may probably feel the same way the old Irishman did many years ago, who, on seeing the living pictures for the first time, went home and told his aged and wrinkled spouse that he didn't admire her any more.

Davis and Socialists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of July 31 there appeared a news article quoting Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for Governor of New York. Referring to John W. Davis's "labor record," Mr. Thomas attacks Mr. Davis because "he accepted without a word of protest the support of the West Virginia delegation, which contained Sheriff Don Chafin of Logan County, the most autocratic tool of absentee ownership in America."

Mr. Thomas is apparently unaware of the fact that Don Chafin was that member of the West Virginia delegation to the New York convention who deserted his colleagues and voted against Davis for many ballots!

SINGS PRAISES OF HAWAII.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Upon glancing casually over one of the Honolulu newspapers I read a few letters from residents of this fair city, who no doubt take advantage of the privilege granted them by the press in expressing their opinions on current events. This gave me an idea to express my opinion through your valuable paper of the beauty of the Hawaiian Islands.

Honolulu, as most globe trotters know, is cosmopolitan in every respect. I think it would be safe to say that most nations in the world are represented here. The people are congenial and friendly, always willing to help to entertain visitors and show them the many interesting features of the islands.

Waikiki Beach is justly famous for its surf and swimming, where the most pessimistic person can lie in the sun and sleep, while the swaying of the palms and the rolling of the waves unconsciously change him to the most optimistic person in the world.

Kapiolani Park Zoo has a fine collection of animals and birds of every description from the four corners of the earth. The aquarium is situated among royal palms and cocoanut trees; it is here that the iridescent fish caught in the Hawaiian waters are exhibited, truly a sight worth seeing.

We leave and drive to the Pali, which stands as a tribute to Hawaii's former glory; it is here where Kamehameha I. overthrew the Oahuans and proclaimed himself King of the Hawaiian Islands. The Pali is noted for the beautiful view which can be seen from it, and for the never ceasing seventy-mile-an-hour gale which is always present.

The theatres are of the finest type, built especially for the tropics; the latest cooling devices have been instituted, and one can sit in them and enjoy the pictures and music without ever being disturbed by a draft.

An automobile ride of much interest is from Honolulu to Schofield Barracks, a distance of about twenty-six miles. On the way out to Schofield one passes Department Headquarters, Fort Shafter and the Tripler General Hospital, which is situated at the street car terminus. The road passing through Department Headquarters is decorated with royal palms; the Tripler General Hospital is also surrounded by cocoanut palms.

Then we pass the beautiful Moanalua Gardens, with their wonderful flower beds and well-kept lawns. The next scenes that come into view are the acres upon acres of sugar cane and pineapple fields, and then Schofield, the largest army post of the United States Army. It is here where every branch of the service is represented. The first thing one notices is the cleanliness of the place and the lovely little bungalows where the non-commissioned officers and their families live.

Every kind of sport and recreation is provided for the officers and enlisted men. The sports include baseball, tennis, golf, polo, horse riding and swimming, which can be enjoyed the year around because of the wonderful climate of these islands.

The trip over here is not complete without visiting the volcano, one of the wonders of the world. The volcano is situated on the island of Hawaii, the largest island of the group. From Hilo to Kilauea Volcano House is an interesting trip. The vegetation of the island is very dense, and one can lose one's self very easily, so it is best to go in company with two or more.

A wonderful view can be seen of the fire pit or "House of Everlasting Fire," called Halemaumau, from the Volcano House. One may either walk or drive to the mouth of the fire pit, as there is a good road, but when one drives he loses the thrill of walking over the lava, which holds one in suspense, as it is like walking on thin ice, waiting for the moment when it will break through.

On reaching the mouth of the crater all one can do is just stand and gaze in awe at the vastness of it, the boiling lava spouting heavenward, always restless, never still. It seems at one time calling you to its clutches, and then at another warning to keep you away, and then you stop and wonder if there is really such a place on this earth. It dawns on you that you are in Hawaii, "The Land of Paradise."

At night the spectacle is even more marvelous, with the sky illumined by the reflection of the seething mass of boiling lava, always shooting upward and always falling back.

It requires no scientist or philosopher to enjoy this scene; it is the danger of the thing that makes the blood rush through one's veins and thrills him. If any one anywhere in the world is looking for a thrill I would advise him to visit the volcano.

Then there are the lava tubes, long tubes that nature formed when part of the island was covered with red-hot lava. There are many other things to see, such as the sulphur banks, tree molds and the mountains of Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea, where the peaks are covered with snow.

The Kilauea Military Camp is situated about a mile from the crater and is maintained for the officers and enlisted men, who may stay for a period of ten days. Every facility is extended to the men by the camp while on a visit to the volcano. The camp has its own mess hall, canteen, recreation room with large library, Victrola and player piano, so if a man wants complete rest and does not care to hike he can stay around the camp and thoroughly enjoy himself; but very few stay around the camp; the island offers too much sport and too many places of interest.

No soldier—I don't care where the place is—can enjoy himself any better than in the Hawaiian Department. A three-year enlistment passes very

CHARLOT'S REVUE IN SYLVAN SETTING

RECEIPTS NEARLY $12,000

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The week that marks the height as well as the practical finish of the Southampton "season" began under the most brilliant auspices, but the start of the forty-first annual invitation tennis tournament, as far as the audience of onlookers was concerned, had second place in favor of the production of Andre Charlot's Revue of 1924, which attracted a great crowd to the garden of the Parrish Art Museum. It was a sylvan setting that the revue had, with a number of old trees, of which there seated in front of great trees.

In advance of building the auditorium a number of old trees of which there were more than needed, were cut down to give a free view of the stage and also to make room for boxes. The stage was built against the Museum building, and there never were such dressing rooms in any known theatre as those of last night. Principals and chorus made their changes in the Museum itself in sight of the replica of the Apollo Belvedere and the marble effigies of all the Roman emperors, Nero included.

Others of the company made their rapid changes in view of paintings of the Italian School of Primitives and the austere reproductions of portraits by van Dyke. It was a decided change from the dressing rooms of the New York theatres, and the comfort of surroundings gave a great degree of "pep" to the performance that has been familiar to New York theatregoers since last January. The familiar turns of Beatrice Lillie, Gertrude Lawrence, Nelson Keys and Herbert Mundin were received as if quite new by an audience most of whom had witnessed the metropolitan production many times. Among the numbers that brought the accustomed applause were the Company Will Recite," "Tea Shop Tattle," "There's Life in the Old Girl Yet," "I Might," "The Indicator," "March With Me" and "Lime House Blues."

There was a break in the bill when at the intermission a portrait to be painted by Howard Chandler Christy was auctioned off for the benefit of the Southampton Hospital, the beneficiary of the night's performance. Rufus Patterson and Elbert Rogers bid $2,500 for the portrait. They have selected Samuel Parrish as the subject for the portrait, which will later be presented to the hospital. The auction was conducted by Nelson Keyes. At the end of the final number Gertrude Lawrence, as matter of sentiment for this part of the world, sang "Home, Sweet Home," whose author, John Howard Payne, a century ago lived in the village of East Hampton, just twelve miles from the spot where the theatre was put together for last night.

The audience made a picturesque scene, the trees above them hung with gayly-colored lanterns, whose lights were turned off when the stage lights were on. The total receipts of the night were close to $12,000, there being fifty boxes sold at $100 each, rows of seats at $10 each, with a general admission of $5.

Among the many noted persons in the audience were Samuel L. Parrish, who had made the production possible, his guests including Miss Ethel Barrymore and her hostess, Mrs. Finley Peter Dunne, also John Drew, who had come over from East Hampton. Others were Dr. and Mrs. Peter B. Wyckoff, Mrs. Frederic H. Betts, Mrs. Thomas Hyde Barber, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Berwind, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Snow, Mrs. Rutherford Stuyvesant, Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Latham Clarke, the Misses Florence and Lois Clarke, Edmond Pisella, Mrs. Lyttleton Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Pomeroy, with whom were Mrs. Henry P. Davison and Mr. and Mrs. Artemus L. Gates; Mr. and Mrs. Carlos G. Mayer, Mr. and Mrs. Russ Patterson, Mr. and Mrs W. Wickham Hoffman, Mrs. George G. De Witt, Mrs. Richard Mortimer, Mrs. Henry G. Trevor, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hamilton Stewart, Colonel F. R. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Patterson, George Barton French, the Duke and Duchess de Richelieu, who came with George W. Curtis and Mrs. Howard Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. Maxfield Parrish.

After the performance Samuel Parrish entertained the members of the company at supper at his house. The preliminaries of the day were interesting and each member of the company played golf at genuine welcome. Samuel Parrish gave a luncheon at the Shenecossett Club for the leading members. His party was seated at a table placed about a hollow square filled with garden flowers. The host sat between Miss Lillie and Miss Lawrence, others at the table being Mrs. Thomas H. Barber, Mrs. Schuyler N. Warren, Mrs. Arthur S. Claflin, Mr. and Mrs. Grosvenor Atterbury, Mr. and Mrs. George Barton French, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy, Miss Madeline Letterman, Mrs. Finley Peter Dunne, Miss Ethel Barrymore, John Drew, Mr. and Mrs. James Parrish Lee, Mrs. Rutherford Stuyvesant, Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, James C. Parrish, Richard Newton Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart Cushman, who had come from Newport on the Aloha with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James and Dr. Joseph Wheelwright.

Members of the chorus who arrived on the morning train went to Claverack House, where Mrs. Barber gave them a luncheon and was aided as hostess by Mrs. William M. Grinnell, Miss Sarah Lee, Miss Jean Roosevelt and George Grinnell. Later in the afternoon, after a trip to the bathing beach, members of the company went by motor to the place of Mr. and Mrs. Grosvenor Atterbury on the hills overlooking Shinnecock Bay, where they met some 200 leading members of the Southampton community. Michael Selwyn was one of the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Atterbury, having come here to give his personal attention to the production.

BEECHER PUTNAM IS FOUND.

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 4.—A man who says he is Beecher Putnam, former Insurance Commissioner of Maine, and who has been missing from his home at Houlton, Me., since February, is held by the police here.

Putnam was arrested on Friday and lodged in jail on a "suspect" charge. Upon searching him officers found Liberty bonds and Canadian securities valued at several hundred dollars.

At the time of his arrest the prisoner gave his name as B. F. Palmer, 67 years old. Later his fingerprints and description were broadcast and resulted in an inquiry from Dr. E. L. Putnam of Berkeley. Upon receiving this communication the police further questioned the man and he admitted that his name was Putnam, but he has had little else to say.

Asked why he left home and what profession he was following he replied: "I am a tourist traveling for my health." He denied that he had been in any trouble in Maine.

According to the police Putnam said he once was an attorney in New York. He will be held for further investigation.

HOULTON, Me., Aug. 4.—Beecher Putnam, who is reported to be under arrest in Shreveport, La., has been missing from his home here since last January. He is a lawyer and formerly was State Insurance Commissioner. Relatives are on their way to Louisiana in an effort to identify him.

Putnam, who was not married, had served in both branches of the Legislature, but retired from politics some time ago. He was known to have drawn some money from the bank shortly before his disappearance, for which no reason is known here.

IRISH CRISIS CALLS MINISTERS TO DUBLIN

IMMEDIATE ACTION ASKED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—There was another dramatic development in the Irish crisis today. It was expected that Premier MacDonald would make a statement in the House of Commons today, giving the result of Saturday's conference with the Irish leaders, but instead there was an announcement made by the Colonial Secretary, J. H. Thomas, in reply to Mr. Baldwin, that he could not fully say what was the result of the conference on the Irish crisis, except that a further communication had been received from Mr. Cosgrave, and he, Mr. Thomas, was going to Dublin tonight and he hoped to be able to give a more satisfactory reply on Wednesday.

Mr. Thomas and the home Secretary, Arthur Henderson, left London tonight to meet Mr. Cosgrave and some of his leading colleagues tomorrow. The reason for this hurried visit to Dublin is explained as follows:

It was understood that Mr. MacDonald's view that a bill dealing with the boundary question should not be passed through all its stages until Autumn was finally accepted at Saturday's conference, although it was known that Mr. Cosgrave had pleaded that it was essential that legislation should be passed forthwith, in order that the Boundary Commission might function without further delay.

But it appears that when Mr. Cosgrave returned to Dublin he found his followers were insistent that the bill should have been put through the Dail during the next meeting of the Dail, on Aug. 12, and representations were accordingly made again over the telephone today from Dublin to Downing Street. Mr. Cosgrave pressed for immediate action, but the Prime Minister was still firm in his unwillingness to rush through legislation on so delicate a matter.

It is understood that Mr. Cosgrave then suggested that representatives of the British Government should go to Dublin at once in order to enter into direct conference once more.

Members of the Imperial Parliament recognize Mr. Cosgrave's difficulties, but urge that the introduction of a bill, accompanied by a definite promise from the Government that it shall be taken as the first business of the Autumn session and pressed through regardless of consequences, would be a sufficient gesture to the Irish Free State of the intentions and good faith of the Government. Such a promise the Government is willing to give, but it is not willing to rush a bill through unless the case for such action is overwhelming.

Presumably Messrs. Thomas and Henderson will have to decide tomorrow whether such a case can be made out. If they are not convinced the Government may even yet decide to press forward with the bill, though few members think that such a bill should be proceeded with at the end of an exhausting session.

It was suggested tonight that Messrs. Thomas and Henderson might endeavor to ascertain whether Mr. Cosgrave would be satisfied if the Autumn session began at an earlier date than Oct. 28, but any plan to bring the members back again in a few weeks' time would certainly be strenuously opposed. Until Mr. Thomas and Mr. Henderson report upon their visit to Ireland, however, the whole position must remain in suspense.

This evening a large number of the members of the rank and file of the Unionist Party attended a meeting summoned by Ronald McNeill to consider the Irish boundary question. The meeting was described as being unanimous in its demand that the interests of Ulster must be effectively safeguarded.

Mr. McNeill's belief that an agreement might possibly be reached if the bill clearly defined the powers of the Boundary Commission as being limited to the rectification of the frontier, was supported by many members, including some of the Ulster representatives. It is undoubtedly in this direction that the Conservative Party in both Houses of Parliament will endeavor to amend any measure that may be introduced, leaving upon the Government the onus of deciding whether the functions of the commission shall be limited or not.

HUNGARIAN NOBLEMAN MURDERS HIS KEEPER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 4.—A young Hungarian of the ancient nobility, Count Bela Vay, cousin of Hungary's Red nobleman, Count Karoly, nephew of the former Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister Andrassy, and who also joined the ranks of the Vienna Socialists and was shut up in a Vienna asylum, yesterday murdered his warder in a gruesome manner in an attempt to escape.

Vay's two brothers are inmates of another asylum, where also his mother is.

According to the Socialist Stunde, Vay had long been pursued and threatened by his family for his socialistic ideas and political associations, and suddenly disappeared last September in a mysterious fashion after visiting his brothers and mother in the asylum, since when he had been forcibly shut up in another asylum in Vienna and guarded day and night. Stunde states that Count Karoly wrote to Vay, warning him of the dangers of his political career, but that Vay showed no signs of insanity, and he depicts the murder as a deed of desperation.

In March, 1921, a mutiny in the Hungarian garrison of Raab was reported, with the killing of twoofficers and execution of thirty-one mutineers, following the flogging of several soldiers under orders by Count Vay and Baron Rivas.

"Nowadays," he continued, 'men and women undress themselves as much as they can. Wild women never went so far."

THIRSTY WOMAN RINGS THEATRE'S FIRE ALARM

The second act of George White's Scandals at the Apollo Theatre in West Forty-second Street, near Broadway, was starting shortly after 10 o'clock last night when a woman, a patron, turned in a false alarm from a auxiliary box in the basement in the belief that the box contained a secret contrivance for releasing a drinking cup.

In a few minutes West Forty-third Street, in the rear of the theatre, was jammed with fire apparatus and curious crowds. Some of the firemen, led by Deputy Chief Ross, slipped into the stage entrance quietly when they saw that there was no outward evidence of a blaze and made inquiries of the door attendant for the cause of the alarm.

The doorman expressed surprise, and led the firemen to the rear of the stage, where the mah jong act in the show already was in progress. The firemen went about their work so inconspicuously that even the many chorus girls behind the scenes did not sense the significance of the visit.

When Ross had viewed the 1,500 spectators at the show through a hole in the scenery and satisfied himself that they had not paid the slightest attention to the clanging of the gongs of the fire apparatus as it drove up to the stage entrance, he accompanied Al Lee, the manager of the theatre, to the basement, where Mrs. Katie Lorenson, an attendant, told of what led up to the call.

"The woman broke open the door of the fire-alarm box and turned the hook," Mrs. Lorensen explained. "I met her as she and two other women were returning to their seats upstairs. She said: 'I was thirsty and I thought that red thing in there was the cover of an aparatus which would release a drinking cup. When I turned it, one of my friends here told me that I had sent in a fire alarm. Don't tell anybody until I get back in my seat.'"

ASSAILS BEER POLICY OF LABOR UNIONS

SEES DRY ERA PERMANENT

Repeal of Volstead Law, He Declares, Would Not Restore Beer Generally.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The action of the American Federation of Labor in approving bills offered in Congress authorizing the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer is denounced in a statement made here tonight by Wayne Wheeler, General Counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

Mr. Wheeler made no reference to the third party movement headed by La Follette and Wheeler, but he declared that "labor will follow Mr. Gompers on labor policies, but it will not follow him to the barroom, brewery control of labor union policies."

Mr. Wheeler said that through many years of Mr. Gompers's leadership "labor unionists have taken his advice on matters concerning labor, but whenever he has tried to swing labor's vote for booze they have refused to follow his leadership, as shown by elections where liquor was an issue."

The active head of the Anti-Saloon League declared that repeal of the Volstead law by Congress would not result in a general restoration of beer throughout the United States.

"Three-fourths of the States prohibit 2.75 per cent. beer by State law," he said. "If this wet labor committee thinks the majority of the people want 2.75 per cent. beer, let them form a party with that as one of its chief planks or name Presidential candidates who advocate it and make the test. Not a single party dared mention 2.75 per cent. beer, although importuned to do so by wet labor and beer barons."

Mr. Wheeler stated that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and other labor organizations "had squarely opposed Mr. Gompers's beer program.

"Union labor only represents 5,000,000 of the 25,000,000 employed in the United States," he said. "Mr. Gompers and his wet colleagues cannot speak for all of union labor, even on this theme, much less for the 20,000,000 outside of organized labor.

"In fighting for rights, labor should consider whether the rights are worth fighting for. Booze is not such a right, as Ramsay MacDonald so recently found to the liquor interests of Scotland.

"It would be inconsistent for labor to champion the cause of the most selfish, corrupt, insidious special interest that ever cursed any people. The brewers formerly produced 1,850,000,000 gallons of beer a year to impoverish and debauch the people and used the millions thus made to corrupt politics. No group of men fighting for human rights can make progress tied up to an outlawed special interest like booze."

CALMS EXCURSIONISTS AS CRANKSHAFT BREAKS

The crankshaft of the steamboat Victor snapped early yesterday when the vessel was a mile off Old Ferry Point, the Bronx, with 425 passengers on board, bound for the Battery from Rye Beach. Excitement was allayed by C. N. Andrea, the master, who told the passengers there was no danger, and the seventy-four-year-old excursion boat was beached on the mud flats a little later.

Two women on the lower deck saw the shaft break and thereupon fainted. They were Miss Anna Lane, 23 years old, of 1,134 114th Street, Woodhaven, L. I., and Miss Mary Murphy of 4 Richard Street, Brooklyn.

The crankshaft had snapped fortunately on the upward stroke. Had the break occurred on the downward stroke, it was thought the shaft might have punched a hole in the vessel's hull.

According to Maurice A. Gersing of 1,972 Second Avenue, a passenger, the upper-deck passengers were unaware of the nature of the mishap and, expecting that the vessel would soon resume her course, danced and sang until they were surprised by the arrival of a rescue boat.

Officials of the local United States Steamboat Inspection Board said yesterday that as soon as they had received an official report of the accident, an inquiry would be held at the Custom House to determine the cause. Captain George T. Charlton will preside.

ESTHONIAN WORKER DEFIES CANADA LAW

OVERBOARD TO MAKE SHORE

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 4.—In Reval some two months ago was Alexal Yankoun, a twenty-four-year-old laborer, who decided that Canada was the place for him, where there is an Esthonian colony. He is now held by the Montreal police to face a charge of being a stowaway and may be sent back to his country after serving a jail sentence.

Tonight at Police Headquarters he told of walking from Reval to Antwerp, working at times, begging when he must. Finding there was no boat from Antwerp to Canada, he smuggled hiself on board a boat for England, spent a month in London, and after doing his best there he found that he could not hope to save enough to pay his fare to Canada. So he determined to board a boat for Canada. He boarded the Grey County en route for Montreal. On the voyage out he was discovered, and put to work, which he did not mind, but, though not knowing English, he managed to grasp the idea that when he landed at Montreal he would be arrested and deported back to Reval.

He decided that under no circumstances would he go back to Reval, so as the Grey County entered the St. Lawrence River during the night, he put on a life-belt and dropped overboard, hoping to reach shore, and from thence get to Western Canada. Luck was against him, as he thinks, for five hours afterward the steamer Rock Ferry's lookout noted an unconscious man in the water. A boat was lowered, and the Esthonian picked up, cared for and brought to Montreal today, where he was turned over to the police, after being identified by the Captain of the Grey County.

AMERICANS WOUNDED IN CHINESE FIGHTING

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 4.—News of the wounding of the Rev. George R. Snyder, a native of Hagerstown, and Professor Karl H. Beck in China, has been received here by friends of the Rev. Mr. Snyder, who is a missionary there.

Two opposing armies, with Generals Chang and Tien in command, were exchanging shots. A magistrate asked the foreigners for aid to stop the shooting. The Rev. Mr. Snyder and Professor Beck volunteered. Accompanied by a police officer, they were making arrangements to restore peace when they were shot.

One bullet wounded both Americans, according to the information received here.

HUNT FOR FIREBUG FUTILE.

No Trace of Pyromaniac Who Caused Loss of Three Lives.

More than 100 detectives, uniformed patrolmen, police reserves and fire marshals searched the upper west side yesterday for the pyromaniac who set fire to several houses in that section last week, causing three lives to be lost. Many of these men were posted at strategic points, especial watch being kept on buildings of such inflammable structure as would tempt a firebug. Stationery stores, particularly, were watched, since the incendiary in each instance, kindled his fires from newspapers left in front of these stores for news stands.

Scores of suspicious characters were questioned yesterday at the West 100th Street Station. The police said that they had been flooded with reports from excited residents of the neighborhood concerning persons of suspicious appearance.

One of the fire maniac's victims, Mrs. Rebecca Mayer, who was trapped in her burning home at 105 West 103d Street Saturday night, is in a very critical condition, it was said at the Knickerbocker Hospital yesterday. Another resident of the house, William Dalton, who was also burned, was recovering.

A burning awning over a second floor window in the nine-story apartment at 160 West Ninety-fifth Street early this morning brought fire companies and fifty policemen and detectives to the spot in record time. When the alarm was flashed to Police Headquarters the police who had been searching for the pyromaniac through the district all night were notified and concentrated in West Ninety-fifth Street within a few minutes. They were joined by hundreds from neighboring tenements who returned to their homes much relieved when they learned that it was not another hallway blaze.

ELKS ENTERTAIN CRIPPLES.

400 Children Taken on Annual Outing to Coney Island.

Four hundred crippled children from hospitals and children's homes were taken to Steeplechase, Coney Island, yesterday, where they were the guests of New York Lodge 1, B. P. O. E. Doctors and nurses from the various institutions and 100 Elks accompanied the children.

The biggest feature of the day was the luncheon, with the Elks acting as waiters. The head waiter was William Collins, Vice President of the Board of Aldermen, who saw that there was a constant supply of milk, soup, sandwiches, ice cream and cake.

Before luncheon some of the children went swimming at the beach, while others were taken for rides on the carousels, roller coasters and through the side shows. In the afternoon the youngsters went in a body to a moving picture show and later to a Punch and Judy show.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 4.—More than $110,000 has been distributed in aid of crippled children by New Jersey Elks lodges, according to a report by Joseph G. Buch of Trenton, Chairman of the Crippled Kiddies Committee. The report says that last year 5,000 children registered for treatment and relief. 3,460 were examined and treated and 352 were operated upon.

Suffering an attack of heart trouble after walking up the stairs of the elevated station at Ninety-third Street and Columbus Avenue, yesterday, Michael Donaghy, 250 West 154th Street, collapsed and died. According to his daughter, Donaghy frequently complained of pains about the heart.

NEW YORK STUDENT A SUICIDE IN PARIS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Samuel Chapin of New York, said to be a student, committed suicide here today, cutting his throat and wrists. He died shortly after being rushed to the Beaujon Hospital.

The reasons for the suicide are unknown. He led a solitary life since registering at a small Paris hotel in the Champs Elysée district three weeks ago. He received no visitors and drank rather heavily.

During the past week he behaved in a strange manner, and on Saturday night made such a noise that on a complaint by neighbors he was taken to the police station. After the house had calmed down he was permitted to return to the hotel.

Chapin's passport states that he was born in Springfield, Mass., Aug. 21, 1900, and resided on Park Avenue, New York City.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 4.—The young man named Chapin, who was born in this city and killed himself in Paris today, is believed here to have been Samuel B. Chapin, son of the late William Horace Chapin. The father for many years was proprietor of the Massasoit Hotel here. He sold the place in 1911 and died five years later of a stroke of apoplexy.

The son, Samuel B. Chapin, according to friends here, has been living in an apartment in New York and was known to have gone to Paris a few weeks ago.

Samuel B. Chapin was educated at the public schools here and at St. Paul's in Concord. He was unmarried. A sister, Mrs. Charles Walbour, lives in New York but is understood to be visiting in Springfield, although she could not be found tonight.

The young man's mother, Mrs. Grace Ordway Chapin, could not be reached.

SEEK MATTEOTTI'S GRAVE.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

ROME, Aug. 4.—To satisfy public opinion, which was convinced that Deputy Matteotti was secretly buried in a Roman public cemetery, four graves were opened this morning at dawn in the presence of authorities and journalists. The bodies were examined, and all present were convinced that none was Signor Matteotti.

A pilgrimage of working people has been taking place in the last few days to one of these graves, guarded by police, and flowers laid. Today's examination proved that the body was that of a man recently drowned in the Tiber.

REINHARDT'S CASTLE BURNS

Theatrical Producer Suffers Heavy Damage by Fire Near Salzburg.

VIENNA, Aug. 4 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Fire, said to be of suspicious origin, last night seriously damaged the castle near Salzburg belonging to Max Reinhardt, the German theatrical producer. It was discovered several hours after Mr. Reinhardt and Morris Gest, American theatrical producer, had started for Venice.

The castle was greatly damaged and many rare pieces of furniture and other treasures were lost.

Oliver M. Sayler, literary adviser of Morris Gest, said yesterday that Reinhardt's castle, which is about one and one-half miles from Salzburg, is a fine specimen of Austrian baroque architecture. It was built in 1740 by Archbishop Leopold Firmian as a wedding gift for his nephew, Count Firmian.

Most of the paintings and art objects in the castle have been handed down from one occupant to the next since the Archbishop's time. Reinhardt, however, has added considerably to the treasures with rare books and valuable prints and engravings.

Mr. Sayler said that this week Mary Garden was expected to rehearse at the castle the rôle of the Madonna in "The Miracle," in which she plans to appear here in the Fall. In the castle is a chapel, where Lady Diana Manners and Maria Carmi both rehearsed the part and where Miss Garden will do likewise if it has not been destroyed by the fire.

DIXON CONDEMNS KLAN.

Author of Book on Civil War Order Calls Present Body a Menace

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 4.—Thomas Dixon of 867 Riverside Drive, New York, author of "The Klansman," a book dealing with the Ku Klux Klan of Civil War days, on which was based the moving picture, "The Birth of a Nation," in an interview here today condemned the present-day Klan as "a growing menace to the cause of law and order." Mr. Dixon called the Klan disguise "a provocation to violence and disorder" and said that he had refused to join the Klan because he would not wear a hood. He predicted the United States Government would intervene if masked Klan members continued at large.

"The disguise is a dangerous weapon in the hands of many irresponsible and reckless people, and a lawless spirit of an organization which politically might do a whole lot of good," he said.

"I am opposed to the present-day Ku Klux Klan because I believe it a menace to American democracy."

SPARK RADIO INTERFERENCE

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 4.—Charges that Sound steamers were operating spark transmitters on a wave length which interfered with radio concert broadcasting were answered today by Charles J. Pannill of the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company of New York, which controls the radio on the Sound steamships.

Mr. Pannill said that the sending was being done on 400 and 706 meter wave lengths authorized by the Department of Commerce. To remedy the trouble he asked the Department of Commerce to assign higher wave lengths to the marine stations to remove the spark signals from the fringes of the broadcast band.

that when that animosity arose they just stopped at nothing. For men whom they had attacked for years, like Fuller and McGee, they immediately retained counsel to help liberate, so that they may testify falsely against Fallon. May we not show motive behind the testimony of any witness or behind the prosecution here? Is it possible we cannot go into that?

The Court—You are trying to play that game here. Please don't do it.

The Court—I know your back is to the wall.

Mr. Fallon—My back is not to the wall. I am right in the front line. I object to all your comment.

The Court—Just a minute, until I am through. I have no objection to objections. They don't hurt any one or help, either. Mr. McGee testified to one fact and one alone. Anything that affects McGee on that proposition I am willing to go a reasonable limit on, but I am not going into this trial of Fuller and McGee and they did or did not do at any extraordinary length.

Mr. Fallon—I object to all of your comment and your characterization of what is going on, and I particularly object to your statement that I am here with my back to the wall, because it is not to the wall.

The Court—I withdraw that statement. I am sorry. I did not mean to be unkind.

Mr. Fallon—Because I never stood with my back to the wall at any time.

Mr. Millard—I want to say that Mr. Fallon's remarks are tantamount to saying that the United States Attorney's office for the local District of New York, the local Department of Justice office and his staff and two local Judges—Judge Knott and Judge Talley—are in a conspiracy to convict an innocent man. What ridiculous rot it is!

Mr. Fallon—I want to say that this newspaper, upon the conviction of these men, spent unlimited money to bring about their liberation for no other purpose that to injure Fallon? Can't I show that?

The Court—We are trying an indictment charging Fallon with bribing Rendigs.

Mr. Fallon—And I say that all that is a part of this particular proposition which started with this paper. I want to show that, after these men had been given a fifteen-month sentence, they retained an eminent attorney, ex-Judge Johnstone, who sat in two of these trials, and that he filed a brief with Judge Nott showing how they could dispense with serving that sentence.

The Court—Yes. We are not trying Fuller and McGee.

Fuller and McGee Conferences.

Fallon resumed his cross-examination of Watson.

Q.—Now, then, do you remember when Fuller and McGee made statements at the McAlpin Hotel? A.—I do.

Q.—Did they go to the McAlpin Hotel at your suggestion? A.—They did.

Q.—In other words, it was not the United States Attorney or Mr. Millard who suggested the McAlpin Hotel. It was Victor Watson of The New York American? A.—It was Victor Watson of The New York American who, in the performance of public service as a newspaper man, induced these men to begin to tell the truth.

Q.—Outside of going to some member of the staff of The New York American, was there a member of any other newspaper in New York City present? A.—Most assuredly not. I am not sure, but I had been building up newspaper stories and turning them over to other newspapers.

Q.—Were you present at all times or most of the times when Fuller and McGee made statements? A.—I was there a number of times.

Q.—And weren't those statements turned over to you and didn't you publish them in your paper? A.—Some of them.

Q.—And you know they were not given to any other newspaper in New York City, don't you? A.—I took mighty good care to see they were not.

Q.—In other words, you had an arrangement with Colonel Hayward and Mr. Millard that you would get these stories and no one else would get them? A.—The United States Government never would have gotten the facts if it had not been for my newspaper work. You are a New York lawyer. You know frequently you have given newspaper stories to some newspaper exclusively. Colonel Hayward publicly thanked me for what I had done, and it was published in The New York Times.

Mr. Millard—Judge Talley in the very trial of the Rendigs case said they had performed a public service.

Mr. Fallon—I move to strike that out. I move now for the withdrawal of a juror for such an unethical remark as that.

The Court—That is not proper in this case. The jury will pay no attention to it. You are bringing this on by your own objections.

Mr. Fallon—I will be able to show, if you will let me, that these people have spent no end of money for no other purpose than to injure me.

The Court—If you can show that they made testimony here against you which is false, you can, of course, but on the Fuller & McGee proposition there is only one question—the contradiction of McGee.

Mr. Fallon—The paper retained an eminent lawyer, Judge Johnstone. Judge Johnstone filed a brief with Judge Nott showing that it was not necessary for his client on their serving their sentence. Now I want to show something after that. Something was done that was never done before in the history of the State of New York, the release of the two men on bail.

Watson Paid Eidlitz Bills.

Here Watson told of paying Eidlitz $180 and of the payment of Eidlitz's hotel bills by The American. The examination was resumed thus:

Q.—Do you remember being asked in the Rendigs trial if the letter from Eidlitz stated anything about his wife getting a certain moving picture actress; do you remember being asked that question and answering that there was no such thing in the letter? A.—I don't remember what I answered, Mr. Fallon. I think that I answered that knowing the circumstances under which you had dictated the letter and that the whole thing had a bunch of lies in it that you were simply trying to fasten on me so that you could cross-examine me about it. I didn't pay much attention to it. My information is that you had dictated first one letter to Eidlitz and then you were dissatisfied with it and you had dictated the other one to him, and that one or the other was thrown away. I do not know whether your produce here is photographic or not is what I actually received or the one that you actually threw away, and if I say that this is the one that I received you can very easily produce a copy of the other one to show that I was wrong in saying that this was.

Q.—Do you remember paying a lawyer to get evidence in Eidlitz's behalf? A.—I remember paying the firm of Berger & Hartman to prevent you making certain moves to have this fellow arrested on old debts when you were trying to discredit him and I was trying to keep him out of trouble.

Q.—To defend Eidlitz in case I had him arrested for forgery, that is right, isn't it? A.—To protect Eidlitz. He needed protection when he was going up against the element he was going up against.

Q.—So that Eidlitz did tell you at some time that I would have him arrested for forgery, didn't he? A.—He did not. You took a man with you to the court room in the James hearing, a man named Candor, whom we found to be a crook who set there, and your moves were perfectly apparent that you were going to try in some way to have this fellow Eidlitz arrested.

Q.—You had an arrangement with United States District Attorney, did you not, that my indictment, which had been sealed, would be opened at 6 o'clock, so that you could go to your paper and get out an extra? A.—I don't know whether I did or not. I know I had an arrangement with the United States District Attorney to protect me in the publishing of the facts which I had worked up and I have made that same sort of arrangement with lots of people on lots of occasions.

Letter Read in Court.

At this point was introduced a photographic copy of the letter said by Fallon to have been addressed by Eidlitz to "Dear Victor!" The writer complained that he had not received money lately from The American, though promised a life job with the Hearst organization. He wrote that "Chadbourne paid me $488 and demanded notes." He wrote that Watson had patted him on the shoulder after the Fallon indictment and had promised to "make good" personally if the paper did not. It went on, "You said Colonel Hayward, when talking with Mr. Hearst, said I would look very bad brought out in a trial if I was in the pay of The American. Hayward denied he said this. I was told at Reno time they got the birth certificate of that moving picture actress; I would not get the money promised me but I trusted you." The writer said he was going away for a rest and concluded with a warning to Watson against being "double-crossed" by Colonel Hayward.

Fallon presented to the jury a telegram sent by Watson to W. Frank McGee after McGee and Edward M. Fuller had been committed to Ludlow Street Jail for contempt of court. The telegram said: "If now, or at any time in the immediate future, you conclude to tell the facts of your connection with Operations, or Eidlitz, or Chadbourne, or Hopkins, or Rothstein, or Fallon, you can do so right here. Everything has been said to me about your family, and I think it is about time for you to begin thinking about your family and clean yourself up with this communication." He said, "Well, what do you want me to do?" said, "My idea is, as I have expressed it before, that what you should do is take a plea of guilty and come through with the entire truth and move for your own disbarment, temporarily at least, and throw yourself on the mercy of the community. It is the sense of all communities where a man has done wrong if he gives evidence of a desire to clean himself up, to give that man an opportunity. I certainly, Fallon, would be among those who would be very glad to give you another opportunity if you did this and showed that you could live along proper lines and get away from these crooked associations."

Fallon said, "Well, Vic, if I were to open up on people around this town I could probably spend more than one of them to jail." I said, "Why don't you do it, Fallon?" He said again, "I cannot squeal, because if I do nobody would have any respect for me hereafter." I said, "I have no respect for a squealer. I have got to fight." I said, "Old man, it is entirely up to you; you do whatever you want. I have no thought from the matter at all; either speak as you say, or fight. My advice to you is, think it over, and if you want to talk with me any further about it you can come to see me again."

I must explain this conversation. There had been some talk between Fallon and Eidlitz as to whether or not Eidlitz was property or impersonal property in possession of a pawn ticket for some studs which Fallon claimed were his, and of which Eidlitz had said he was property in possession, and had said to Fallon's friend to let Fallon's family know that I had the ticket for this set of studs, and that if Fallon was up against it it would be very glad to try to arrange for the sale of these things, and turn the money over to the United States Attorney to be turned over to the family. The night of his arrest, when he was arraigned before Judge Knox, Fallon had mentioned this thing and had offered me the studs. At the apartment Fallon brought that subject up again.

I said, "By the way, Fallon, that ticket is available for you." He said, "No, Vic, you can have it." I said, "Old man, that is the second time you have offered me these things, what do I want to accept any studs from you for?" He laughed and said, "From the way things look to me right now, I don't expect to be able to wear sewing dress studs for a long time to come, and you are a nice fellow, and you might as well have them." Subsequently to that I turned the ticket over to the United States Attorney, and I think Fallon now has it.

Says Hopkins Was Go-between.

Fallon made this further examination:

Q.—Who was the friend who saw you for me? A.—Arthur Hopkins, a real estate man. He talked to me and said, "For the family's sake, go up and see this fellow. My God, he may be guilty of everything that is charged and probably is, but give him a chance, Watson." I said I would give any man a chance.

Q.—Don't you remember telling me Eidlitz was the scum of the earth and the Government would be crazy to use such a witness? A.—I do not.

Then began a loud-toned exchange of questions and answers involving ex-Sheriff Thomas F. Foley as follows:

Q.—Do you remember telling me if I would give you information against a man named Foley that you would declare me free to dismiss everything where Fallon was concerned? A.—Absolutely not.

Q.—Haven't you a recollection of saying Foley is a vicious old man, and my saying: "I think he is a sweet old character"? A.—No. I remember I said: "I guess he is a pretty bad boy," and you said: "He certainly is, but he isn't going to be on earth much longer."

Q.—Don't you remember my saying just this: "Watson, do you want to attack a man 76 years of age, at the brink of the grave; is that what you would expect me to do?" A.—No, you didn't say that.

Q.—Was the name of anybody else mentioned in that conversation? A.—I believe Stoneham's name was mentioned and Arnold Rothstein.

Q.—Don't you remember telling me Arnold Rothstein was one man you were going to get, no matter how long it took you? A.—No. I said there were various rumors at different times reaching my ears about threats against my life, and among others I said I understood that Rothstein had made some foolish talk about shooting me.

Monomania, Says Fallon.

Fallon attributed this to monomania. Fallon asked whether the witness did not recall that Fallon had said many "sweet things" about Rothstein. Watson did not recall. Watson told of what he said was an effort by Rothstein, through William S. Farnsworth, sporting editor of The American, to find out "who's behind Fallon." Rothstein finally dropping the idea because "Watson is too much of a gentleman." Watson said he did not recall that Fallon spoke of Rothstein as "one of the sweetest characters in the world."

The examination went on as follows:

Q.—Weren't you present when I was arrested? A.—I was not; I was some blocks away.

Q.—And you had your moving-picture people there, didn't you? A.—I had tipped off the news department and the photographic department.

Q.—And you had your moving-picture people there, didn't you? A.—I am not sure whether there was a motion-picture camera there or not; there may have been.

Q.—Was any other representative of any other newspaper there? A.—There was not. There have not been representatives on any other part of the Fallon case than the sensational, sob-stuff crusade has not been the job of any other newspaper.

Q.—Do you remember the night before Judge Knox came to me and said, "Fallon, I like you in spite of all this trouble and even though I have had to do all this to you I don't any feeling of bitterness against you whatsoever, and if you were to confess and show you could live a decent life I would be one of the first to help you.

Q.—Did Eidlitz say to you that those particular studs were given to me as part of a fee, and that he had done some work and I told him to go out and pawn them; did he say that to you? A.—What he said to me was that it was some kind of office graft, and these had been gotten from a client and they were his corner of them. I said, "Is that so, Fallon?" and you said, "No, Watson, that is not so. We were pretty good trimmers in that office ourselves and we certainly did not take him on the inside of any trimming."

Q.—Didn't I tell you that those studs were given to me as a present by a man named Auditore and that Eidlitz sold them the very night I got them and I thought I lost them? A.—He told me they were given to you by Auditore, and you could prove it. I said, "All right."

Eidlitz Got $30 From The World.

Harry Friend, a reporter for The World, told of being sent to Montreal last Spring to interview Eidlitz after The World had received a telegram that Eidlitz was there. The direct examination by Fallon was as follows:

Q.—What did Eidlitz say to you? A.—He told me he had a good story and asked me what it was worth. He said it ought to be worth a substantial sum and suggested $1,000. I said the information was not worth that and made the same answer when he suggested $500. He said if a newspaper printed the real story as he told it, it would help Fallon. He said he had made a statement against Fallon because of a system of Eidlitz was interested in. He said he received $9,000 from The American since he'd been connected with the case. He said he'd been promised $20,000. No more was forthcoming and that was the reason he left The World.

Q.—Did he say anything about what he had done to Fallon? A.—He said he had done Fallon an injustice.

Q.—Did The World pay him? A.—Thirty dollars.

Mr. Millard cross-examined as follows:

Q.—After your return from Montreal, did you see Eidlitz a number of times? A.—Yes, that I'd seen the party and the party would call him up.

Q.—Who was the party? A.—Gertrude Vanderbilt.

Q.—When you went to Montreal did you know Eidlitz was wanted by the Government as a material witness? A.—I did not.

Q.—Did you notify the United States Attorney that you had seen Eidlitz? A.—Not until you sent for me several days later.

Q.—Did you know when you went to Canada that Fallon and Miss Vanderbilt were warm friends? A.—Yes.

John K. Winkler was questioned by Fallon's attorney. He had not printed about the Rendigs confession. Winkler explained that while he did not interview Rendigs he obtained his information on the confession from half a dozen sources.

Frank Aranow, attorney for one of the many defendants in the Durrell-Gregory company trial, said that during the trial he had heard some talk about a movement to raise a fund of $40,000 by the defendants to pay for the stealing by somebody "on the inside" of certain papers in the case held in the Federal Attorney's office. He said he never heard a word from Fallon about that fund. "Tell the jury all about it," urged Fallon. "This is the first time I ever heard of it."

Aranow said he never heard Fallon's name connected with the plot and that he undgrstood only $100 was raised. He said he reported the rumors to the Federal Attorney immediately on hearing them.

Fallon Questions Jurors.

Edward H. Reynolds, former Assistant Federal Attorney, was called by Fallon to offset the testimony of Joseph L. Pani, a restaurateur. Pani was alleged to have acted as an agent for Fallon in transmitting a payment of $1,000 to Rendigs, though no testimony was adduced to show that he knew the purpose of the payment. Pani, on the stand, had denied he was testifying against Fallon because the Federal authorities had threatened to close his place on liquor violation charges unless he appeared as a witness against Fallon.

Reynolds swore that when he was talking with Pani last Wednesday in the corridor outside the trial room, Pani expressed disgust at being made to wait a number of days before being called. He quoted Pani as adding, with reference to his Woodmansten Inn, in the Bronx, "They are going to close me up pretty soon if I don't testify against Fallon."

Fallon called to the stand a number of jurors who testified that nobody had offered them a bribe when they were hearing testimony in the Durrell-Gregory Company trial. They said Fallon never telephoned them. The story by Rendigs was, in part, that although he and Fallon were strangers and the Rendigs' telephone was not listed in the directory, Fallon telephoned his home asking an appointment to discuss the case.

A juror at the Durrell-Gregory trial, Lawrence J. Rice, testified that Rendigs was not particularly active in the jury's deliberations and that Rendigs had promised to take out life insurance through Rice's agency. Edward A. Hanrahan, another juror, said that Rendigs had argued for acquittal of all the defendants. He added—that other jurors had argued similarly. John Douglas, also a juror at that trial, said that one day during the case he asked Rendigs why Fallon was. He said Rendigs replied he did not know. The next day, Douglas testified, Rendigs told him who Fallon was.

When Fallon asked dismissal of the indictment on the ground it was based on the wrong section of the criminal code, the Court denied the motion and in response to Fallon's demand to be informed what section he was being tried under, the Court observed that it was sufficient that he was being tried under the indictment.

The trial will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

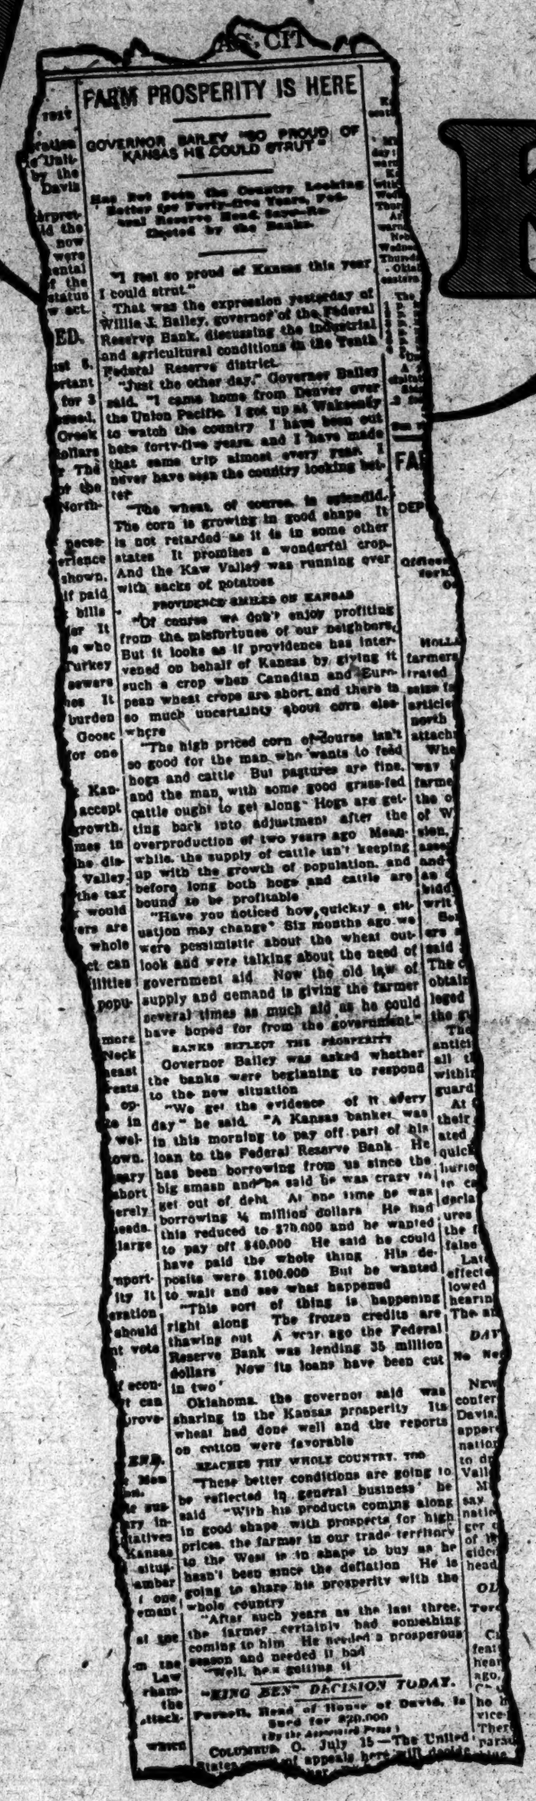
Prosperity has Come to KANSAS!



FARM PROSPERITY IS HERE

GOVERNOR BAILEY "SO PROUD OF KANSAS HE COULD STRUT"

Has Not Seen the Country Looking Better for Forty-five Years, Federal Reserve Head Says—Reserve Rejected by the Banks.

"I feel so proud of Kansas this year I could strut."

That was the expression yesterday of Willis J. Bailey, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, discussing the industrial and agricultural conditions in the Tenth Federal Reserve district.

"Just the other day," Governor Bailey said, "I came home from Denver over the Union Pacific. I got up at Wakeeney to watch the country. I have been out here forty-five years, and I have made that same trip almost every year. I never have seen the country looking better.

"The wheat, of course, is splendid. The corn is growing in good shape. It is not retarded as it is in some other states. It promises a wonderful crop. And the Kaw Valley was running over with sacks of potatoes.

PROVIDENCE SMILES ON KANSAS

"Of course we don't enjoy profiting from the misfortunes of our neighbors. But it looks as if providence has intervened on behalf of Kansas by giving it such a crop when Canadian and European wheat crops are short, and there is so much uncertainty about corn elsewhere.

"The high priced corn of course isn't so good for the man who wants to feed hogs and cattle. But pastures are fine, and the man with some good grass-fed cattle ought to get along. Hogs are getting back into adjustment after the overproduction of two years ago. Meanwhile, the supply of cattle isn't keeping up with the growth of population, and before long both hogs and cattle are bound to be profitable.

"Have you noticed how quickly a situation may change? Six months ago we were pessimistic about the wheat outlook and were talking about the need of government aid. Now the old law of supply and demand is giving the farmer several times as much aid as he could have hoped for from the government."

BANKS REFLECT THE PROSPERITY

Governor Bailey was asked whether the banks were beginning to respond to the new situation.

"We get the evidence of it every day," he said. "A Kansas banker was in this morning to pay off part of his loan to the Federal Reserve Bank. He has been borrowing from us since the big smash and he said he was crazy to get out of debt. At one time he was borrowing ¼ million dollars. He had this reduced to $70,000 and he wanted to pay off $40,000. He said he could have paid the whole thing. His deposits were $100,000. But he wanted to wait and see what happened.

"This sort of thing is happening right along. The frozen credits are thawing out. A year ago the Federal Reserve Bank was lending 35 million dollars. Now its loans have been cut in two.

Oklahoma, the governor said, was sharing in the Kansas prosperity. Its wheat had done well and the reports on cotton were favorable.

REACHES THE WHOLE COUNTRY.

"These better conditions are going to be reflected in general business," he said. "With his products coming along in good shape, with prospects for high prices, the farmer in our trade territory to the West is in shape to buy as he hasn't been since the deflation. He is going to share his prosperity with the whole country.

"After such years as the last three, the farmer certainly had something coming to him. He needed a prosperous season and needed it bad.

"KING BEN" DECISION TODAY.

Parsell, Head of House of Davis, to Send for $20,000

[By the Associated Press.]

COLUMBUS, O., July 15.—The United States ... of appeals here will decide ...

With Bumper Crops of Wheat and Corn at Highest Prices in Years

KANSAS Now Offers a Golden Market to Manufacturers of All Commodities

Prosperity in bountiful measure has come to Kansas. A wheat crop of more than 150 million bushels has been harvested. A corn crop that gives every indication of bettering the 122-million bushel mark is in the offing—practically "made" by the late July rains. The oats crop is a record-breaker, threshing 40 to 60 bushels to the acre. Pasture lands are green and luxuriant. Straight down the crop list—all over the state—nature has outdone herself this year.

Grain prices are the highest in years—and going up—up—up! Wheat is already above the dollar mark. Every one cent advance in wheat puts $1,300,000 in the pockets of Kansas farmers! At present prices of wheat, corn and oats, the farm income of Kansas for these three crops alone will be over $300,000,000—one-half greater than last year.

Farmers are jubilant. Good times are back again. Bankers are "chock-full" of enthusiasm and optimism. Kansas folk are paying old debts; they're preparing to buy everything used by intelligent, prosperous people.

Not for years has the Sunflower State offered such a prosperous, eager-to-buy market. Right now is the time to enter it. This vast area of prosperity can be thoroughly covered at minimum cost by 24 newspapers which are members of the Kansas Daily Newspaper Advertising Association. These daily newspapers are in 20 jobbing centers located so as to most effectively and economically serve the needs of the entire state.

DAHL WANTS MAYOR TO DEBATE TRANSIT

Accuses Him of Fooling the People and Using Issue as a "Political Escalator."

DENIES LATEST CHARGE

Declares Statement That He Tried to "Reach" Hylan as "Unqualifiedly Untrue."

PRODUCE PROOF, HE SAYS

B. M. T. Chairman Tells Executive He Blocks Relief Plans—Gets Short Answer.

There was another exchange of letters yesterday between Mayor John F. Hylan and Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Board of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit Corporation.

Mr. Dahl took up the Mayor's statement of last week in which he charged that "Mr. Dahl went to French Lick to see some politicians who, he thought, might be able to 'reach' me." The Chairman of the B. M. T. in his letter to the Mayor yesterday pronounced that assertion "unqualifiedly untrue."

In another part of his letter Mr. Dahl wrote to the Mayor: "For seven years you have been misleading and fooling the people in this community who actually ride on subways. You, and only you, are to blame for the present congestion in our subways. You have used the transit situation as a political escalator."

Mr. Dahl challenged the Mayor to a public debate on the transit situation, and offered to rent the hall.

Mayor Hylan, in reply to Mr. Dahl, characterized the letter from the latter as a "screed of even date." Apart from that, the Mayor's answer consisted of less than seventy curt words.

Calls Mayor to Account.

Mr. Dahl's letter follows:

Aug. 4, 1924.

Dear Sir: Returning today from ten days' absence, my attention is called to your letter of July 31 to Chairman John M. Delaney, in which you indulge in insinuations with reference to me. You say: "You may be surprised to learn that Mr. Dahl of the B. M. T. went to French Lick to see some politicians who, he thought, might be able to 'reach' me."

That statement is unqualifiedly untrue. Whether you knew it was untrue when you made it I do not know. It is not the first time you have published calculated innuendos. On June 9 there was published in the daily press a statement by you in which you said, among other things: "Dahl personally concerned with a few men very close to me in an endeavor to get these men to induce me to allow the B. M. T. to increase its fare; also to put over the proposed crosstown line lying up at both ends with the B. R. T."

Immediately after you made that statement I denied it at a public luncheon in Brooklyn. I repeat the denial. Your statement of June 9 is also unqualifiedly untrue. In my public statement in Brooklyn I gave you credit for sincerity in making the statement of June 9, saying that while your statement was inaccurate, I assumed that some one had misinformed you and that you made the statement in good faith. I now withdraw the credit I gave you for sincerity and good faith.

You have on two different occasions stated that I talked with certain men. You have not named the men. You have not repeated what I am supposed to have said. You have sought to convey the impression of impropriety on my part without having sufficient courage to boldly make those misrepresentations which you attempt to convey by innuendo.

Puts the Blame on Mayor.

It is true that I have talked to many people about the transit situation since I became Chairman of the B. M. T. It is true that among the people I have talked to are some of your friends. It is true that I have constantly emphasized the deplorable conditions and our desire to help remedy them, and my conviction that you personally are responsible for those conditions, and that you personally must be ignorant both of the facts with reference to transit conditions and of the sound economic principles which should be applied in order to remedy the existing situation.

It is also true that I have tried to talk to you personally without success. You will recall that we met at a luncheon in May, during which we had a very brief conversation and touched only slightly on the transit situation. You will recall that under date of May 20 I wrote you as follows:

"It was a great personal pleasure to me to meet you last Saturday at luncheon and I shall be grateful for an opportunity to continue the very brief conversation we had at that time. I have given a great deal of time and study to the transit situation in New York and I have in mind some constructive ideas which seem to me helpful and practical and which I should like to discuss with you. If you can spare the time, I shall be glad to call and go over the situation with you. Any time next Tuesday or Wednesday would be entirely convenient for me, but if you wish to fix some other hour, I will arrange my appointments accordingly."

Notwithstanding the urgency of transit relief; notwithstanding my offer of assistance and my sincere effort to contribute something to the sound solution of this problem, you did not even show me the courtesy of a reply.

For seven years you have been misleading and fooling the people in this community who actually ride on the subways. For seven years you have blocked every effort at transit relief. You, and only you, are to blame for the present congestion in our subways and the present deplorable condition of the whole transit situation. You have used the transit situation as a political escalator. You have been willing to sacrifice the comfort, the convenience and even the necessities of the people of this community to your selfish political interests. You are persisting in that course.

In order that the public may be fully informed as to the unsoundness of your position and the measure of your responsibility, I shall be glad to meet you personally and publicly to discuss the whole transit situation and give you an opportunity to defend your position. If you will name a date and hall in Greater New York, I will hire the hall and be there to meet you on any evening you may suggest, on condition that each of us may appoint a representative so that they may agree upon the division of time and tickets and other details. Furthermore, I ask you to bring with you to that meeting—if you have the courage to accept my invitation—the "friends" you vaguely describe in your letter of June 9, and whom you dare not name, and the "politicians" whom you mention in your letter of July 31 to Chairman Delaney, and whom you dare not name, and give me an opportunity to meet them face to face.

"The only arguments you make in the transit situation are those of personal abuse. I am aware that any one who opposes or differs with you on any matter whatsoever incurs your personal resentment, and that you adopt prompt methods, no matter how unscrupulous, in an attempt to silence them and at the same time to impress upon others the danger of disagreeing with you. After all, however, we are still living in an age of free speech, and I believe that my duty and responsibility as Chairman of the B. M. T. compels me to acquaint the public with the facts, even though I thereby run the risk of being persecuted personally by you.

Yours truly,

GERHARD M. DAHL.

The Mayor's Reply.

In his reply Mayor Hylan wrote:

City of New York,
Office of the Mayor,
Aug. 4, 1924.

Dear Sir: I have your screed of even date. The measure of a man's responsibility is not appraised entirely by one man's opinion. You have told the public what your opinion of my responsibility is. The public have had many opportunities to pass judgment on my record as a public servant and as a citizen. Have you ever dared to submit your record, public and private, to the people for an appraisal?

Very truly yours,

JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

COMMUTERS PREPARE RATE PLEA PROTEST

70,000 in Long Island Said to Be Back of Move to Fight Railroad Petition Today.

The Vice Presidents of the Association of Long Island Commuters met in the Jamaica Town Hall last night to prepare their protest to be presented today, when joint hearings will be begun by the State Transit Commission and the Public Service Commission on the petition of the Long Island Railroad for permission to increase its rates 20 per cent. on all commutation, school and family trip tickets.

The hearings will be held in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall, beginning this morning.

Hobart C. Cash read letters from seventy organizations affiliated with the Commuters' Association. These showed, he said, that there are back of the movement in opposition to the railroad's demands more than 70,000 regular commuters.

Morris Hotchner, counsel for the association, who will present the joint protest, briefly outlined the course of the arguments he expects to present. These, he said, would show that the railroad was not entitled to the increase it asked, because it did not require it. If the road's income were properly applied by a competent management and if it were figured on a proper and not an inflated valuation of capital investment, the corporation would not need to ask any advance in rates, he said.

It also would be shown, Mr. Hotchner asserted, that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which controls the Long Island, manages it for its own profit rather than for the primary benefit of patrons of the road.

SAYS CITY BLOCKS TRANSIT.

B. M. T. Issues Statement on 11th Anniversary of Centre St. Loop.

In celebration yesterday of the eleventh anniversary of the operation of subway trains via the Centre Street loop under the Municipal Building, the B. M. T. issued a statement declaring that the City Administration never had permitted the provision of Contract 4, providing for continuation of the loop, to be carried out.

The statement opened with an account of how the transit system had been developed and extended by the operation of trains over the Williamsburg and Manhattan bridges since the loop was opened on Aug. 4, 1914, and how the sections of the city served by these lines have grown.

"Contract 4," the statement continues, "calls for a continuation of two tracks from the Centre Street loop south through Nassau and Broad Streets to connect with the Whitehall-Montague tunnel, to permit loop operation of the Fourth Avenue line over the Manhattan Bridge and down Centre, Nassau and Broad Streets. Although the operation of the Centre Street loop was begun as a temporary measure pending the completion of the Fourteenth Street line and the Nassau-Broad extension, the latter has not been started yet, nor has the eastern end of the Fourteenth Street line."

MANY SIGN SUBWAY PLEA.

According to a statement made public yesterday by the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, there were received yesterday more than 5,500 signatures of employes of 105 commercial and industrial concerns to be added to the Chamber's petition to Mayor Hylan and Borough President Riegelmann urging energy in the construction of new subways. The petition already contains hundreds of thousands of names, and it is expected, when presented, to be a mile or more in length.

"The subway petition of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce was placed in our workroom for the first shift of sixty-three employes. I am sending you the result—sixty signatures of wage earners, all of whom believe that the city Administration should redeem its promises and build subways in the immediate future. I trust that our efforts are not going to be in vain."

This letter, written by Max Malevky of 495 Knickerbocker Avenue, was received by the Chamber with the petition. Many similar letters are being received.

EDGE DENIES HAGUE DEAL.

Senator Says He Never Agreed to Support Democrat for Governor.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 4.—In an open letter to Margretta Fort, Republican Assemblywoman from West Orange, United States Senator Edge denied today a rumored "trade" with Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Democratic leader of Hudson County. Senator Edge's letter replied to statements reported to have been made by Miss Fort at a recent executive meeting of committeewomen in West Orange.

Senator Edge, who will be opposed for the Republican renomination by Hamilton F. Kean of Elizabeth, a national committeeman, this Fall, calls the report a "yarn artfully spread" to injure his chances in the campaign and appeals to Miss Fort to reveal the source of her information. He said that while he had at first disregarded the rumors, he now found them of such wide currency he deemed it necessary to deny publicly that he had agreed to support Mayor Hague as a Democratic candidate for the Governorship in 1925 in return for aid this Fall.

The number of passengers carried by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company in the fiscal year ended June 30 was 1,074,343,243 against 1,025,175,131 in the preceding year, an increase of 49,168,112 or about 4.8 per cent., according to figures contained in the company's annual report.

The report on the earnings has already been published. Revenue car miles numbered 192,915,387 against 185,605,038, an increase of 7,310,349. These are now high records for Interborough.

GARVEY FOLLOWERS BARRED BY LIBERIA

No Negroes Connected With Projected African Republic Will Be Allowed to Land.

LEADER IS INDICTED AGAIN

Yesterday was a trying day for Marcus Garvey, President of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, which is holding the Fourth International Convention of Negro Peoples of the World at Liberty Hall, 120 West 138th Street. A Federal Grand Jury indicted him for making false income tax returns and perjury, and the Liberian Consulate at 326 West Nineteenth Street announced that orders had been received from President C. B. King at Monrovia, not to visé the passports of any of Garvey's followers who might attempt to go to Liberia.

Garvey's first expedition to Africa, when he hopes to found a politically independent African republic, is scheduled to sail for Liberia in October. It has been announced that the party would be made up of 300 men and women. Word of the Liberian Government's action created such consternation yesterday at the convention that a cablegram was sent to President King, announcing that the ban was viewed with both "alarm and surprise."

Garvey said that two advance agents of the expedition had left here for Liberia in June and that no objection had been raised by the Liberian authorities. He said they were now at Cape Thomas, Liberia, and that he supposed they had been admitted to the country as he had received no word of any difficulty. He also said that $12,000 worth of supplies for the colonists had left here July 25 on the Bull Line steamship West Irmo. The shipment, he said, included a sawmill, a water filtration plant, four Fordson tractors and agricultural implements.

Garvey Followers Barred.

The order received here prohibiting the entry of Garvey's colonists into Liberia came to E. T. Merrill, the Liberian Consul, through Dr. Ernest Lyon, Liberian Consul General at Baltimore. Dr. Lyon also sent a warning to American negroes not to join the proposed expedition.

"For the benefit and information of American citizens," said Dr. Lyon, "or, for that matter, any person or persons who may be interested by attractive promises by the Garvey movement with Liberia as the objective point, as Liberian Consul General in the United States I am authorized to say that no person or persons leaving the United States under the auspices of the Garvey movement in the United States will be allowed to land in the Republic of Liberia.

"All Liberian Consuls in the United States are instructed and directed not to visé the passports of any persons leaving the United States for Liberia under the direction of that movement."

It was said yesterday that the decision of the Liberian Government not to admit the Garvey expedition, which planned to found a colony on the Cavella River near an English missionary settlement, was due to a fear that his proposed African republic would endeavor to supplant the constitutional regime of President King. Garvey's two chief lieutenants in Liberia are Arthur Barclay, who was President from 1904 to 1908, and D. Howard, his successor, who served from 1908 to 1916, when President King took office. Their espousal of the Garvey colonization scheme, it is said, has given rise to much uneasiness at Monrovia.

Indicted for Perjury.

The indictment for perjury returned by the Federal Grand Jury on evidence presented by Assistant United States District Attorney Mattuck states that Garvey on March 31, 1922, swore that his income for 1921 was $4,000 and that he had a sister dependent on him, and was, therefore, entitled to an exemption of $1,000. He paid a tax of $104. The indictment alleges that his income for the year was $10,000, that his sworn statement as to the dependent sister was false and that the tax due was $597.69. Mr. Mattuck said that unless Garvey appears today to answer he will be arrested.

Garvey was convicted last Summer of using the mails to defraud investors in the Black Star Line, a steamship concern, and was sentenced to imprisonment for five years and fined $1,000. He is now out on heavy bail pending appeal.

News of the fresh indictment was conveyed to Garvey as he was presiding at the afternoon session of the convention. Without leaving his place on the platform he denied that there was any truth in the indictment. He said that Mr. Mattuck was leagued with Republican negroes in Harlem to discredit him.

"Mattuck is misusing his office," he said, "in the opinion of the negroes up here. He is doing justice a great deal of harm. He has agents going through Harlem and in this convention trying to embarrass me by telling negroes that I am to be indicted." He declared that he had a dependent sister, but would not say where she lived.

COUPLE WHO FIGURED IN SHOOTING ARE WED

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 4.—The marriage of Milton A. Maas, Vice President of the Maas & Wahlstein Company, manufacturing chemists, 45 John Street, New York, and Mrs. Ida M. Leslie, a widow, of Sound Beach, Conn., became known today. It took place last Thursday afternoon, according to Justice of the Peace M. L. Feilis, who said he performed the ceremony at the home of S. Teitner Calvert at 515 Sixth Avenue in the presence of Mr. Calvert and Gus Fleischman, member of the New York Produce Exchange. Mr. Maas and his bride are living at 1,608 Park Avenue.

Mr. Maas was shot and twice wounded a year ago by unknown assailants in front of the Leslie home at Sound Beach. Mrs. Leslie, with whom Mr. Maas was walking, was attacked by three men with revolvers, and in going to her defense Mr. Maas was shot in the shoulder and abdomen. The Connecticut police advanced the theory that the shooting was an attempt on Mr. Maas's life, as jewels worth $10,000, worn at the time by Mrs. Leslie, were untouched. Shortly afterward the reported engagement of the couple was denied. The name of a New York millionaire was obtained by the New York police as that of a rival suitor, but it was never divulged.

New Vanderbilt Yacht Arrives.

Director of Rockefeller Health Board Finds Practice Not Abreast of Knowledge

Practice in public health is years behind knowledge, says Dr. Frederick F. Russell, the General Director of the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, in the annual report for 1923, a summary of which was made public yesterday.

"It is a well recognized fact that practice in public health is years behind our knowledge," said Dr. Russell. "There is not so much a lack of information as to the cause of disease, or, in many cases, of direct and positive means of prevention, but there is a lack of administrative machinery for putting scientific knowledge to work in an effective manner and at a reasonable cost, within the capacity of the community to pay. It is in such situations that opportunity is found for pioneer demonstrations which show what public health means, what it promises for individual welfare and happiness, for general economical betterment, what it costs and how it will affect the future of the community."

In 1923 the board cooperated with Government agencies in carrying on health work in sixty-eight States. The activities of the board included the development of rural health organizations, the world-wide campaign against hookworm, yellow fever in Mexico and other countries of Central and South America, cooperation in the health program of the League of Nations, the organization of faculties for training public health nurses in France, Brazil and the Philippines, the training of other public health personnel through schools of hygiene and a fellowship and the demonstration in malaria control in the United States and in tropical areas.

At the end of last year there were 230 counties in 28 States with full-time health organizations. Operations for the control of yellow fever in Mexico closed in November, and no cases were reported there since December, 1922, and Dr. Russell said that the Government health authorities have announced that the disease was stamped out. Early last year a class of thirty-six public health nurses was graduated in the Philippines. The control of malaria has been greatly advanced, and the report comments:

"For malaria prevention, as for public health work in general, the county is a better administrative unit than the town, since county organization makes for greater stability and continuity of effort. During the past year the board's work has been carried out on a county basis. Wherever possible, the control campaign is directed by the county health officer, with the advice and assistance of the State health officer and his staff. During the year seventeen new counties undertook anti-malaria campaigns, in addition to those previously organized."

FIND MISSING GIRL, AN AMNESIA VICTIM

CAN'T RECOGNIZE FATHER

Agrees to Return Home, Although She Still Is Unable to Recall Her Identity.

Reclaimed almost as mysteriously as she passed from the ken of her parents, Florine Adams, 18 years old, was taken back yesterday to her Philadelphia home, from which she had been missing more than four months.

The girl's father, Harry L. Adams, of 6,120 McCallum Street, leather merchant and member of the Philadelphia Union League Club, found his daughter at work in the telephone exchange of The New York American and persuaded her to go home with him, although she seemed to be suffering from amnesia and could not recall her identity. Mr. Adams said that a mysterious man called at his office, told him where the girl could be found and left. The father hurried here, visited The American office and promptly identified "Jane Johnson," model employe, as his missing daughter.

Mr. Adams made patient efforts to recall the girl's identity to her but was unable to do so. After he had embraced her and assured her that she was indeed Florine Adams, he succeeded in persuading her to go back to Philadelphia.

The police of several cities had sought the girl during the four months and more that she was lost to her family. A dispatch from Baltimore on March 26 told of this girl's disappearance after she had made a week-end visit to Baltimore and had started home. Her baggage reached Philadelphia, but she disappeared. Mr. and Mrs. John K. Shaw, their uncle and aunt, were notified by the father, finally asked police assistance, and search was made in Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore and New York.

When "Jane Johnson" reached the office of The American she had about $50. She was readily recognized as a girl of good manners and refinement. She said she wanted to make her own way and got a job. Her employers were pleased with her work. The girl saved money and seemed happy.

When her father appeared yesterday and urged her identity upon her over her own insistence that she was Jane Johnson, all that she could recall, she said, was that she had bumped her head on a chair in a railway car on her way from Baltimore last March. She could remember that the porter had given her water with which to bathe the hurt. Beyond that her mind seemed to be a blank.

WAR RELICS NOT 'PISTOLS'

Court Holds Souvenirs Do Not Constitute Sullivan Law Violation.

That keeping an army pistol as a souvenir does not constitute a violation of the Sullivan law is the effect of a ruling made in the Jamaica Police Court yesterday by Magistrate Harry Miller.

Valentine Schwab, owner of a hotel on Winchester Boulevard, Creedmoor, L. I., was charged with possessing dangerous weapons without a permit when detectives of the special service division found two revolvers in the place. Schwab told Magistrate Miller that the weapons were brought home by a son who fought with the A. E. F. in France. He said he never used them for practical purposes, but prized them as souvenirs of the World War. The Court dismissed the charge.

MAH JONG NO CRIME.

Court Rules Chinese Have Right to Play as Noisily as Do Others.

Chinese have the right to play mah jong in this city and they also have the right to be as boisterous over the game as anybody else, Magistrate Edward Weil ruled in the Tombs Court yesterday. He discharged nine Chinese and ordered them a mah jong set which had been taken by the police in a raid at 3 A. M. on an apartment at 28 Division Street.

Detectives who burst in on the players accused them of acting disorderly while playing the game in "using loud and boisterous language."

BOY AND MAN KILLED IN MOTOR ACCIDENTS

FOUR HURT AT GUTTENBURG

An unidentified man, about 45 years old, was run over and killed by a motor truck yesterday afternoon at Jerome and Tremont Avenues, the Bronx. Herman Pepperman, driver of the truck, of 4,007 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide.

Another boy was killed by an automobile yesterday while he was being pushed in a toy wagon by a companion in Bright Street, Jersey City. Arthur McKi, 3 years old, of 151 Bright Street, was the victim. He was being pushed by Harry Ross, 4 years old, of the same address. The automobile was being operated by James J. Murphy Jr. of 21 Elk Street, Harrison. The driver later was held without bail for arraignment in the First Criminal Court this morning on a technical manslaughter charge and a charge of assault lodged against him for injuries received by the Ross boy, who was attended by an ambulance surgeon.

Four persons were injured, one of them seriously, last night when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a trolley car at Guttenburg, N. J. The most seriously hurt was Mrs. Scilio Mitallietti, 62 years old, of 114 Nineteenth Street, West New York, who was taken to the North Hudson Hospital suffering from a concussion of the brain. The other victims, Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Frasinalli, of 218 Seventh Street, Cliffside, N. J., and their 12-year-old son, Cencyo, were taken to Christ Hospital, Jersey City's, to be treated for cuts. Frasinalli's older son, Charles, who was driving the car, was unhurt.

The surface car was in charge of Motorman Burd Kirsch, 24, of 444 Thirty-first Street, Woodcliff, and Katie Donnellan, 36 years old, conductor, of 123 West Sixty-second Street, Manhattan. Both were arrested charged with assault and battery, and were paroled to await a future hearing.

While playing in the street in front of his home at 131 East 101st Street last night Jacob Goldguber, 8 years old, was struck and knocked down by a westbound taxicab driven by George Brendler of 158 East 100th Street. The boy, with a fractured skull, was taken to Mount Sinai Hospital in the taxicab. Brendler was locked up in the East 104th Street Station by Patrolman McKettrick on a technical charge of assault.

FRAUD IS CHARGED IN MOROSCO STOCK

SAYS PRODUCER LOST ALL

Prosecutor Asserts Theatrical Man Turned Over $5,000,000 in Property.

An indictment returned yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury charges seven men with having used the mails to circulate misleading literature concerning the value of the stock of the Morosco Holding Company, Inc., which had control of the once large theatrical and moving picture interests of Oliver Morosco. Two of the defendants are George R. Bentel, Vice President and General Manager of the company, and Benjamin Leven, said to be an old associate of Mr. Morosco, who organized the sales corporation that sought to set the stock afloat. The other defendants are George H. Pierce, who is also known as G. Harris Pierce, manager of the sales, and the following salesmen: Albert DeW. Blum, George G. Hynson, William C. Amos, an ex-Assemblyman and George Derr.

The troubles of Mr. Morosco came to a head in July of last year when a friendly suit instituted by Robert L. Hatch came before Federal Judge Winslow, who appointed John M. Richie receiver of the properties of the Morosco Holding Company, which was controlled by August Janssen, a restaurant man and a large real estate operator. The claims of Mr. Janssen against the company, it was stated, amount to approximately $400,000, consisting of $250,000 worth of the company's paper and loans in cash amounting to $150,000.

Lost All His Property.

Assistant United States District Attorney Peter J. McCoy, who gathered the facts on which the indictment is based, said that the holding company was organized in April, 1921, to take over the Morosco enterprises, and that Mr. Morosco had turned over to it all of his property, valued at about $500,000. Mr. McCoy said that Mr. Morosco was himself a victim of the fraudulent activities of the defendants, who had stripped him of all of his properties, worth in the neighborhood of $5,000,000. In return for this transfer of his property Mr. Morosco, according to Mr. McCoy, received the entire stock of the holding company.

Among the properties thus turned over to the holding company were leaseholds on theatres in this city and in California; all of Mr. Morosco's rights to theatrical productions, scenery, costumes, &c., plays, and his interest in more than one hundred acres in Los Angeles which Mr. Morosco named "Moroscotown" and which he intended to transform into a pleasure city. After saying that Janssen succeeded Mr. Morosco as President of the holding company, and what that experience cost him Mr. McCoy said:

"Prior to 1921 Mr. Morosco enjoyed an income of $500,000 a year from his properties. He had accumulated about $5,000,000 as the result of his genius as a theatrical producer. Today he is broke. He was bilked more than the public."

According to Mr. McCoy the arrangement between Mr. Morosco and Leven was that the latter should buy all of Mr. Morosco's stock in the holding company at $90 a unit, which meant one share of the preferred stock and four shares of common. But Leven never paid, Mr. McCoy said, and when Mr. Morosco tried to collect it he was told by Leven that the proceeds of the sale of the stock had been used to pay off the obligations of his wife, totalling $280,000, and other personal indebtedness. Mr. Morosco was told that in all $900,000 of personal obligations had been paid from the proceeds of the sale of stock and that these payments were made through the fear that unless they were paid he would be thrown into bankruptcy.

Explains Sales Corporation.

Mr. McCoy said that in order to sell the stock Leven organized the Morosco Sales Corporation and through it sold the stock in all sections of the country at prices ranging from $100 to $300 a unit. The holding company had no treasury stock, but the defendants, Mr. McCoy said, sold at least $2,500,000 worth of the stock by representing it as treasury stock of the Morosco Holding Company, which "owned all of the properties of Morosco free and clear of all liens." Emphasis was laid on statements to the effect that much valuable real estate in California was owned by the company, and that the stock for a dividend of 8 per cent. dividends. Dividends of this size, Mr. McCoy said, were paid from the proceeds of the sale of stock and from borrowed money. Then he said:

"When Mr. Morosco became aware of the methods employed by Leven and his salesmen he tried to stop the sale and subsequently he resigned as President of the company."

Explaining why Mr. Morosco failed to realize his idea for the development of "Moroscotown," Mr. McCoy said:

"The deal fell through because Mr. Morosco failed to obtain title to the land, but he had a contract to purchase. At that time Mr. Morosco had been divorced from his first wife, who obtained a lien against his property for over $300,000. Mr. Morosco made a settlement on her of $350,000, and to secure payment of this money she took an assignment of his lease of the Morosco Theatre in this city and on the Morosco Theatre in Los Angeles.

"The defendant Leven came on from Chicago to New York and had Mr. Morosco organize the Morosco Holding Company, Inc. Mr. Morosco was made President and William J. Flynn, who was then Chief of the Department of Justice, and L. Lawrence Weber and other prominent theatrical men were made directors. Franklin Underwood, a production manager, was made 'treasurer.' In the Fall of 1921, George R. Bentel, who had been associated with Mr. Morosco in the Morosco Productions Company, a California motion picture concern, came East and got in touch with Leven, who was in charge of the sales organization of the Morosco Holding Company, and got up the propaganda, prospectus and literature used in the sale of the stock."

Mr. McCoy said that Leven employed a lot of salesmen, many of them coming from the Crager System, that unloaded the Mass casket stock and which resulted in the trial and conviction of some of the leaders.

The indictment states that the defendants falsely represented that "the net earnings of the Morosco Holding Company for the period ending January, 1923, after setting aside ample reserves, would be more than $5,000,000," or more than six times the dividend requirements on the preferred stock; that the net profits of the company during the seven poorest business weeks of 1922 averaged more than $11,000 per week; that if the profits earned by the company for the entire year was no greater it would pay 8 per cent. on the preferred and $4 a share on the common stock and leave a surplus of $96,000; that the dividend requirements of the company for the last quarter of 1923 were $80,000 and the earnings were $134,000. Many of all of these statements, the indictment says, were false, as were statements to the effect that the company had a contract with the Associated First National Exhibitors, Inc., by which it was guaranteed against loss in making moving pictures, that each picture produced would bring the company an estimated profit of $150,000 a year and that at least four pictures would be produced annually.

Dogs May Not Bark Between 8 P.M. and 9 A.M. in Jersey

Dogs in New Jersey can no longer howl or bark between the hours of 9 P. M. and 9 A. M., Vice Chancellor John Bentley ruled in a decision he handed down yesterday in the Court of Equity, Jersey City, in the case of Rocco versus Bianchi. The plaintiff in the case, Antonio Rocco, a resident of Bingac, N. J., declared to the Judge that the large bird dogs owned by his neighbor August Bianchi kept his entire family awake during the hours of the night. Bianchi, who purveys "hot-dogs" to autoists on the highway, could not refute Rocco's testimony and received the edict in puzzled silence when told that he must quiet his hounds.

PORTER ARRESTED AS ROBBERS' SPY

WOMAN ALSO IS HELD

Sam Treppel, a trusted porter of the American Railway Express Company, was arrested last night on suspicion of being the spy for the gang of burglars who failed Sunday midnight in a desperate attempt to carry by assault the company's four-story warehouse at 438 West Fifty-fifth Street.

Locked up at Police Headquarters, where he was charged with acting in concert with the seven bruised gangsters occupying cots in Bellevue Hospital, Treppel broke down and confessed, the police said, to "tipping" the gang to what shipments were passing through the warehouse.

Detectives of the safe and loft squad, who fought off the burglars by dint of good use of pistols and nightsticks, were conversant with the haunts and companions of the gang, having been on the trail since March 1. When Detectives Hoffman, Reilly and Hagen accordingly made a thorough canvass of the warehouse personnel yesterday on belief the attack might have been an "inside" job they spotted Treppel. Treppel, they said, had been seen constantly in the company of the arrested men in the long weeks of surveillance.

The detectives said they had confronted Treppel with thirty letters a convict in Sing Sing had addressed to him through which, they said, Treppel had been introduced to the gang. The letters had been found in Treppel's room at 79 Columbia Street.

Officials of the express company said yesterday that reports of the supposed treasure stored in the warehouse were exaggerated, and also that the bandits themselves had mistaken the value of the loot which might fall in their hands. They scoffed at stories of $1,000,000 in furs and jewelry being stored in safes. The warehouse, they said, contained nothing of great worth, "anything of great value being in transit."

Mrs. Belle Feldman, said to be the wife of one of the gangsters who escaped, was arrested at her home at 77 Division Avenue, Brooklyn. In the three-room flat the police said they found considerable plunder and burglars' tools. She was charged with possessing such implements.

"It was a wonderful catch, and, as a matter of fact, as good a capture as was ever brought to Police Headquarters," said the Commissioner. "I think it wonderful work on the part of the detectives and the uniformed police, and especially those who have been working on the case over many months. The police took a chance and it looks as though this time the crooks lost."

CALLS GWATHMEY WEALTHY

Archibald B. Gwathmey, former head of the New York Cotton Exchange, who was married July 4 last to Mrs. Betsy Judd, offered his first wife $400,000 as a settlement if she would go to Reno, Nev., to obtain a divorce, it was alleged yesterday in a motion by the first Mrs. Gwathmey for alimony and counsel fees pending the outcome of an appeal from her divorce suit. Supreme Court Justice Churchill reserved decision.

When Mrs. Gwathmey refused to establish a residence in Nevada, Mr. Gwathmey went to Florida, said Edmund L. Maloney, counsel for Mrs. Gwathmey, and sued for divorce, charging abandonment. She enjoined him in New York from proceeding with the action there. Then the broker obtained a decree in Texas, which he contends should be recognized by New York State, he married Mrs. Judd, the wife of a former business associate. A few days after Supreme Court Justice Davis had refused a divorce to the first Mrs. Gwathmey.

Mr. Mooney said that Mrs. Gwathmey was in reduced circumstances at the present time, that contended that the broker could afford large alimony.

At a moment when so many causes of a favorable character were simultaneously at work—low money rates, high grain prices and Europe's agreement on the Dawes plan of reparations payments—it is not easy to fix the determining influence on yesterday's financial markets. It was within the bounds of easy possibility that stock market prices and foreign exchange rates would even have declined on realising sales by speculators who had anticipated the week-end diplomatic settlement at London; for a time, there was evidence of something of the kind on the Stock Exchange. It did not last, however; perhaps because doubt had surrounded the London negotiations, up to the very last; perhaps because the new spirit of hopefulness had become too strong in the community at large.

On the stock market, prices in the end moved forward again; exchange on the European cities rose further. What was more immediately to the point, the dollar loans of England, France and Belgium advanced in unison, all of them reaching the highest prices in their history except for the brief period in the Spring of 1922, when American capital, released by home trade reaction, had its first spell of enthusiasm over sound foreign investments. The United Kingdom 5½s got yesterday within one-half point of the highest price ever reached; the Belgian and French loans were only 1 to 4 points below their previous best record.

Somewhat by way of contrast, even yesterday's advance in exchange on London, Paris and Brussels (which was very considerable) left the rates still far below the highest of 1923 and 1922. But this merely served for proof, if proof were necessary, that the European exchange market was by no means wholly governed by political misgivings in its long downward reaction after 1922. If the reparations settlement and the rise of existing European bonds should result in due course in a movement of American capital into Europe similar to that of two years ago, the exchange market would become really interesting.

Irrespective of these particular movements of values, the general situation which has unfolded with such rapidity since the middle of June is in many ways unusual. Last week's diplomatic achievement at London may no doubt be considered as the inevitable sequel to the Dawes report of April. But it was quite outside the power of financial foresight to picture such complete reversal of the agricultural position as has followed the spectacular rise in the price of wheat, for a crop which is turning out to be both abundant and of the highest quality; the advance having quite unmistakably resulted from disappointing harvests elsewhere than in the United States. Yesterday's market brought corn for the September delivery to the remarkable price of $1.10⅝ per bushel, much the highest since the price-inflation days of 1920, while wheat, although not moving up for the day, remained at a figure nearly 30 cents a bushel above the $1.02⅝ price of March and higher, except for two or three days of July, 1921, than any price since 1920. Traditions of Presidential politics being what they are, it is not strange that this wholly unlooked-for harvest outcome should largely have removed the political campaign as a deterrent influence on financial cheerfulness.

Attention is likely to converge hereafter on the business situation, which has thus far been admittedly unresponsive. Even the iron and steel trade, usually an early indicator of the trend of things, reports little change from its long apathy, although such other "barometers of trade" as rising commodity price averages and high-record bank exchanges for this season are already in plain evidence. Possibly Wednesday's monthly iron-production report will throw some light on the position.

MONEY.

MONDAY, AUG. 4, 1924.

Market opened just where it left off last week, no change in rates or conditions being discernible, except, perhaps, that there was less 1½ per cent. money in the "outside" market than previously. The board rate continued 2 per cent. Fixed period trading was in renewals, little new money being placed. Six to eight months' accommodation was freely bid at 3¼ per cent., but none offered at this figure. Short maturities were maintained at 2½@3 per cent. Commercial paper market was dull and steady at 3¾@4¼ per cent., with a few outstanding bills, short maturity going at 3 per cent. Acceptances were featureless.

POUND AT $4.45 5-8 MAKES YEAR'S HIGH

Upward Movement Is Attributed to Optimism as to Results of the Dawes Plan.

Further advances in foreign exchanges and in foreign Government bonds were registered yesterday, the advances, as on Saturday, being attributed chiefly to favorable interpretations of the results of the Interallied Conference. For the first time since the proposed German loan was mentioned more than a year ago, bankers in New York took out paper and pencils yesterday and busied themselves in a study of probable offering prices, syndicate arrangements and other details. Moreover, the "vacationing" bankers in Europe have spent most of their play season in conferences with European political and financial experts on the possibilities of a German loan.

Features of the day were the rise of sterling, francs and Scandinavian bills; the bidding up of British and French Government and city bonds, and especially, although less trustworthy as an evidence of investment sentiment, the sharp run-up of German Government, city and industrial bonds.

Sterling moved up 1⅝ cents net to a closing price of $4.45⅝, the highest since last November, and at one time the bill sold at $4.45⅝; French francs advanced to a closing price of 5.39½ cents, up 12 points net, or virtually ½ cent, and up nearly 2 cents from the low point of last March. The advance of sterling into new high ground for the year was accompanied by advances to new highs for the year by Swedish kroner at 26.68 cents and by Swiss francs at 18.76 cents. Belgian, Italian, Holland, Spanish, Norwegian and Danish bills also moved higher. Price movements in the bond market were less pronounced than on Saturday, the gains having been of a fractional nature in nearly all instances. The most conspicuous strong spots were the French city issues.

Banking opinion on the probable offering time for the German loan favored September. A principal factor yet to be provided, it was said, is adequate security and the placing of this security back of the issue in such a way that it can be used for no other purpose. More important still, it was declared, would be assurances that the German nation would show no hesitancy in accepting the Dawes plan. The matter of earmarking the way in which loan proceeds should be used was also stressed, bankers saying that investors would not care to buy bonds unless it was shown in black and white how their money was to be used.

Reports as to the probable coupon rates on a German loan in the American market indicated either 8 or 7½ per cent. If the coupons were 8 per cent., it was said, the issue would be sold probably at par; if at 7½ per cent. the issue would be sold at sufficient discount to net 7.70 per cent. or more.

One banker, who is regarded as particularly skillful in "dressing up" a loan so as to attract buying, suggested that a sinking fund provision would probably be written into the contract so as to give the added stimulant of speculation to the purchase. "If the German Government were to redeem each year a small amount of bonds for the sinking fund, paying, say, 110, many buyers would be attracted who otherwise would remain out.

PUBLIC BONDS SCARCER.

Volume of Both State and Municipal Off in July.

After reaching a new high record for the first six months of 1924 the volume of State and municipal bonds offered in the month of July fell off sharply, according to The Daily Bond Buyer in its review of the month.

The price of old municipal bonds advanced steadily and it was said that the scarcity of new issues contributed to these increases. The following tabulation from The Daily Bond Buyer gives the offerings of State and municipal bonds in July and for the seven months' period ended July 31 for ten years:

STOCK ISSUE ANNOUNCED.

United States Hoffman Machinery Corporation to Retire Its Bonds.

Directors of the United States Hoffman Machinery Corporation have authorized the issuance of 13,000 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and 30,000 shares of common stock for the purpose of retiring the remaining $1,645,000 of 8 per cent. debenture bonds still outstanding. The 7 per cent. preferred stock is convertible into common stock at $30 a share. The common stock is expected to be offered to stockholders at $20 a share, and the preferred stock is expected to be offered to the public by the company's banking representatives.

Eugene D. Stocker, President of the company, says "business is averaging slightly better than last year, and we are looking forward to an improved business for the balance of the year. The retirement of the debenture bonds and the issuing of the preferred stock will clear the way for a probable declaration of dividends later in the year."

JULY CAR LOADINGS LIKELY TO SHOW GAIN

Car loading figures for three railroads in the western part of the United States, made public yesterday, showed an increase in July compared with the same month of 1923. This is a definite change from the recent trend throughout the country, as the loadings for the country at large in recent weeks have been approximately 10 per cent. less than in the corresponding weeks of last year. Not since the month of March have the total cars handled been ahead of the same month of 1923. The loadings for the last week in July for the country at large will not be made public for more than a week.

A large part of the increase by the three railroads which reported yesterday was accomplished in the second half of the month. For example, the forwarded movement in the Detroit territory of the Pere Marquette for the last week in July was 58 per cent. in advance of the same week of 1923.

Grain accounted for the favorable conditions reported by the Rock Island and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé. In its report for the month of July the Rock Island showed that it handled a total of 143,444 revenue cars, compared with 129,107 for the month of June, and 134,518 for July of 1923. Heavy grain movement accounted for half of the increase. Other commodity comparisons were as follows: Grain products, 5,653, against 5,511; fruits and vegetables, 7,364, against 5,086; stock, 3,453, against 10,016; packing house products, 3,632, against 3,607; oil, 7,294, against 7,420; coal, 6,935, against 6,499; lumber, 4,642, against 4,641; quarry products, 12,843, against 13,141; cement and plaster, 2,080, against 1,951; autos and implements, 3,561, against 3,506; miscellaneous, 19,031, against 18,738; merchandise, 29,791, against 26,098; switch cars, 21,319, against 18,446.

On the Santa Fé system a grain movement running 3,189 cars ahead of last year more than counterbalanced some of the losses in other products. During the month the road moved 31,449 cars of grain. The total number of revenue cars handled was 156,443, against 139,359 in June, and 153,180 in July of last year.

The report of the Pere Marquette showed 54,660 cars loaded and received in July, compared with 53,695 in the same month of last year.

LIGHT COMPANIES REPORT.

The balance of net earnings available for dividends on the common stock was equivalent to $7.25 a share on the $72,000 shares outstanding, which is 60,000 shares more than were outstanding Dec. 31, 1923.

The Continental Gas and Electric Corporation reports gross revenues of $12,860,030 for the same period, compared with $11,950,129 in the preceding year. Net revenue after deducting operating expenses, taxes, maintenance and interest was $5,621,338, an increase of $580,211.

Examining Your Investments

Number One

Effect of a Change in a Company's Financial Structure

New financing by a Corporation may alter the position of a particular issue of bonds or stock. You should know whether the new issue constitutes a charge against the assets and earnings prior to the security you hold or whether it increases your equity by providing additional junior capital.

OTHER IMPORTANT ISSUES

Two Banking Groups Announce the Sale of $25,000,000 Worth of Securities.

Offering of a $25,000,000 loan for the Kingdom of Norway will be made today in the American market following the signing of a contract last Saturday in Christiana by representatives of an American banking syndicate and of the Norwegian Government. Proceeds of the loan will be used for payment of short-term indebtedness and for the establishment of balances in New York for the benefit of Norwegian-American commerce.

The bonds bear 6 per cent. coupons, are dated Aug. 1 last, mature Aug. 1, 1944, and are priced at 97½ to yield 6.22 per cent. The offering is made by the National City Company, J. P. Morgan & Co., First National Bank, Guaranty Company, Harris, Forbes & Co., Dillon, Read & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., Bankers Trust Company, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Brown Brothers & Co. The bonds are non-callable except at par for the sinking fund which becomes operative on a cumulative basis after five years, retiring the entire issue by maturity.

In connection with the financial condition of Norway, which is given a high credit rating by bankers, figures were adduced to show that the total national debt of Norway, as of June 30 last, was $423,333,720, and offsetting this debt the State was shown to own properties worth $335,000,000, while the total wealth of Norway was estimated in excess of $3,350,000,000. Of 2,211 miles of railroads operated within the kingdom, 1,721 miles, or 85 per cent., are owned and operated by the Government, and, as of June 30, 1923, the capital investment in Government-owned railroads, telegraph and telephone lines and hydro-electric developments stood at $221,-904,000.

A new issue of $3,500,000 W. A. Wieboldt & Co. first mortgage 5½ per cent. sinking fund gold bonds is offered by A. G. Becker & Co. at 100. This company owns two department stores in Chicago and a third store is now under construction. The bonds will be secured by a first mortgage on all fixed property, with a value of $9,040,388.

J. S. Bache & Co. are offering a block of $670,000 St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company equipment trust 6 per cent. gold notes, dated 1920 and due 1930-1935, at prices to yield 5.85 per cent.

Offering of $500,000 Norfolk (Va.) 4½ per cent. public improvement bonds, due July 1, 1947, is made by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., at 100.

W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc., are offering a new issue of $330,000 Nassau County (N. Y.) 4¼ per cent. gold bonds, due Sept. 1, 1935-1946, at prices to yield 3.95 per cent.

A new issue of $100,000 Cuyahoga County (Ohio) 5 per cent. water supply bonds, due Aug. 1, 1925-1944, is offered by Stranahan, Harris & Oatis, Inc., at prices to yield 3.50 to 4.25 per cent.

The sale of $25,000,000 of new issues was announced yesterday by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., as managers of the group that offered $15,000,000 Commonwealth Edison Company first mortgage collateral 5 per cent. bonds, Series B, and by the National City Company and the Guaranty Company, in behalf of the group that offered $10,000,000 Canadian Pacific Railway Company 4 per cent. consolidated debenture stock.

BIG PURCHASE OF OIL.

Atlantic Refining Company Contracts for 7,000,000 Barrels.

The Atlantic Refining Company, which recently contracted with the Sinclair oil interests for the purchase of 7,000,000 barrels of Wyoming crude oil, will ship the oil by pipe line to the Gulf, and thence by water to Atlantic refinery plants near Philadelphia, according to reports in oil trade circles yesterday. The oil is now stored in tanks on the Sinclair Pipe Line Company tank farm in Wyoming. This is one of the largest sales reported in the oil industry for some time.

Heretofore most of the oil shipped from the Wyoming fields was transported east by way of the major trunk lines of the big pipe line system, but recently there has been an increase in the volume of oil shipped by water from Gulf coast ports.

Livingston Oil Changes Hands.

Control of the Livingston Petroleum Company has been acquired by the Lorrain Petroleum Company of Tulsa for a consideration of $500,000 for 52 per cent. of the stock of the former company, according to reports in oil trade circles yesterday.

RAILROADS' INCOME DECLINES FOR JUNE

REPORT ISSUED BY BUREAU

Shows Net Return of 4.13 Per Cent. for Six Months on Investment Claimed by Roads.

June net income of the class one railroads of United States was $65,528,960, compared with $88,267,500 in June last year and $80,653,877 in May, 1924, according to the reports compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics and made public yesterday. This represents a net earning of approximately 4.09 per cent. on the tentative valuation of the property figured on an annual basis compared with 5.47 per cent. in the same month of last year.

For the first six months of this year the net operating income of the railroads totaled $390,963,355, or 4.13 per cent. on the property investment claimed by the railroads, which is considerably in excess of the tentative valuation, compared with $446,449,700, or 4.94 per cent. for the same period of last year.

Declines in the month of June reported by most of the railroads was caused by the sharp declines in the gross traffic, which amounted to $465,655,450, a decrease of $75,722,280, compared with the same month a year ago. Operating revenues for the first six months of 1924 showed a decline of 7.3 per cent., while the decrease in the operating expenses was 7 per cent., the report shows.

Class one railroads operating at a loss in June totaled thirty-eight, of which fourteen were in the Eastern, four in the Southern and twenty in the Western districts. In May, forty railroads operated at a loss.

Decrease in the net income for June, compared with the same month of last year affected the Eastern district the most seriously, the Northwestern district next, and the Southern district scarcely any at all. The net income of the Eastern district was $32,027,300, compared with $52,906,600; for the Southern district $8,087,000, compared with $9,851,000; and the Western district $23,514,570, compared with $26,529,-870.

Earnings by districts for the first six months with the percentage of return on property investment, as estimated by the railroads, on an annual basis in each district, follows:

		Per.
New England region	$15,407,068	3.82
Great Lakes region	80,929,075	5.08
Central Eastern region	52,465,718	4.35
Total Eastern district	$200,702,162	4.62
Total Southern district	68,113,088	5.35
Northwestern region	97,849,810	3.39
Central Western region	63,562,785	3.60
Southwestern region	80,575,515	3.69
United States	390,982,855	4.13

Expenditures for maintenance during the first half of 1924 totaled $1,024,802,-250, a reduction of $81,412,440, or 7.4 per cent. under the same period of last year. For June alone expenditures by the Class one carriers for maintenance of equipment showed a reduction of $25,-284,300, or 20.3 per cent. compared with the same month of last year.

COPPER MARKET FIRMER.

A firmer tone again prevailed in the copper market yesterday, despite the fact that business was restricted due to the holiday in London. Copper metal was quoted here at 13¼ to 13¾ cents a pound for domestic delivery, an advance of ⅛ cent compared with last Friday. Small dealers who were willing to sell at 13 cents last week also advanced their prices a fraction yesterday.

Export market was quiet. Only nominal prices were quoted. Improvement in export demand is expected, however, due to the more favorable developments abroad.

First Mortgage 5½% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Dated August 1, 1924 — Due August 1, 1939

Authorized $3,000,000; to be presently outstanding $2,500,000

Principal and semi-annual interest (August 1 and February 1), payable at the office of A. G. Becker & Co., in Chicago or New York. Bonds in coupon form in interchangeable denominations of $1000, $500, and $100, registerable as to principal only. Redeemable on the option of the Company in whole or in part on sixty days' notice at 103 and accrued interest to August 1, 1927, premium thereafter decreasing ½ of 1% for each year or part of year thereafter. Illinois Merchants Trust Company, Chicago, Trustee.

History and Business: W. A. Wieboldt & Co., owns and operates two large department stores in important outlying retail sections of Chicago and a third store is now under construction. The business, which was incorporated in 1907, was established in 1883 in a store twenty-four by sixty feet. Sales for the first year were $17,000; in 1923 they were over $15,000,000. Popular priced merchandise is featured, and about 90% of sales are made for cash.

Upon completion of its third store, the Company will occupy approximately twenty-three acres of floor space in three of the most important retail sections of the city.

Property: The Company owns in fee simple all the land and buildings occupied by it with the exception of a small structure 46 x 100 feet which is under a very favorable long term lease having about twenty-five years to run.

The West Town Store buildings, with an adjoining warehouse, have a total area of approximately 338,000 square feet. The North Town Store, which is principally a seven-story and basement brick and concrete building, has a total area of approximately 225,000 square feet. A two-story and basement reinforced fireproof addition is now being built to this store.

The Mid-West Store, now under construction, will be a five-story and basement steel and concrete fireproof building over the major portion of a site fronting 400 feet on Ashland Boulevard, 154 feet on Monroe Street, 147 feet on Ogden Avenue and 90 feet on Adams Street. It will have a total area of about 368,000 square feet.

Sinking Fund: The mortgage securing these bonds will provide for a sinking fund beginning August 1, 1927, into which the Company will pay $62,500 annually to be used for the purchase of bonds at or below the redemption price, or under conditions specified in the Trust Deed for their redemption if not available in the open market.

Earnings: Net earnings, after all charges including interest paid, but before Federal Taxes, for the five years ended January 31, 1924, as certified to by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst, certified public accountants, averaged $780,805, or over 5.6 times the maximum annual interest requirement of $137,500 on this issue. For the twelve months ended January 31, 1924, such earnings were equivalent to over ten times this annual requirement.

The business has earned a net profit in every one of the forty-one years since it was established. In every one of the last twenty-five years, although the second store has been in operation for only six years, net earnings exceeded the maximum annual interest requirement on this issue of bonds.

Security: These First Mortgage 5½% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds will be a direct obligation of the Company and will be secured, in opinion of counsel, by an absolute first mortgage on all the fixed property of the Company now owned (with the exception of several small pieces of realty not being used by the Company, the aforementioned leasehold and delivery equipment in the total amount of $340,871,38), on the North Town Store addition and Mid-West Store now in process of construction, and on all hereafter acquired property to be used or operated in connection with any of the property now mortgaged. The value of the property covered directly by the first mortgage securing this issue, according to an independent appraisal as of May 1, 1924, plus the proceeds of this financing which are being applied to the completion of present construction, is $8,699,516, equivalent to $3,479 for each $1,000 bond of this issue. The balance sheet of the Company, audited as of January 31, 1924, but after giving effect to this financing, shows net assets, after deduction of all liabilities and reserves, applicable to the payment of these bonds, of $11,179,960, equal to $4,471 for each $1,000 bond of this issue.

The Chicago Title & Trust Company will issue its Mortgage Guarantee Policy for $2,500,000, the amount of this issue, insuring the Company's title to the mortgaged property.

These bonds are offered subject to prior sale, when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of counsel. All legal details in connection with this issue will be approved by Herbert A. Friedlich, Esq., Chicago, as counsel for the Bankers. Temporary bonds will be deliverable in the first instance.

You Can Buy Bonds That Pay More Than 5½%

But 5½% is the recognized standard of safety for first mortgage securities—it is the golden mean of stabilization, below which it is not necessary to go, and beyond which it is better not to go.

The remarkable thing is that PRUDENCE-BONDS should pay such a liberal rate of interest, and still guarantee both the interest and principal with its entire resources.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

European exchanges forged higher again yesterday, in continuance of the trend which has been in force since the Allied Conference accepted the French security plan. London was closed because of the bank holiday there, but its cables were warm, nevertheless, with heavy buying orders from that point, Paris and the Continent. Purchases by our own institutions, together with an increased commercial inquiry, sent three of the major documents—London, Sweden and Swiss—to new high points for the year, and in the case of the French and Belgian francs, Italian, Holland and other remittances put them at substantial gains over Saturday.

Sterling started a full cent higher at $4.4432, which was finally a half-cent before the buying turned it up to $4.45%, a gross gain of two cents over Saturday. Paris opened 3 points up at 5.30½ cents, with a later price at 5.40¼ cents. Belgian improved 7 points to 4.80 cents; Italian exchange was 4 points up at 4.39¾ cents, and the Swiss franc 8¼ points up to a new high at 18.76 cents, with Sweden also at a record for the year at 26.98 cents. Norway, Denmark, Spanish and Holland were all strong. Chinese and India rallied, with the Canadian dollar at a discount of ⅛ per cent., or the value of 99.87 cents, a new high.

GENERAL ELECTRIC WORKERS GET BONUS

27,412 Employes Share Distribution of $1,172,000 for Half Year to June 30.

STOCK AT NEW HIGH RECORD

More than $1,000,000 was paid out yesterday by the General Electric Company to employes who have been with the company continuously for five years or more.

The bonus was for the six months to June 30 and amounted to 5 per cent. of the earnings of the employes during that period. A total of 27,412 employes shared in this distribution, which was paid largely in bonds of the General Electric Employes' Securities Corporation. The amount paid was approximately $1,172,000.

Payments were as follows: Schenectady, $466,000; Lynn (river works), $143,000; Pittsfield, $107,000; Erie, $53,000; Fort Wayne, $56,000; West Lynn, $56,000; Bloomfield, $19,000; Edison Lamp Works, $54,000; National Lamp Works, $70,000; all other works, general offices and district offices, $148,000.

With nothing more to account for the further advance in the General Electric shares than was apparent three or four months ago, the stock went to the new high price of $281 a share yesterday and closed higher by nearly seven points than on Saturday. In the last two weeks these shares have risen more than thirty points. The close yesterday was at 277 and total sales for the day were 23,500 shares.

Despite the growing impression that the General Electric Company directors must eventually be forced to declare a stock dividend, transactions in the shares on the New York Stock Exchange as yet have shown no signs of diminishing. According to officers of the company, no such action with respect to the stock is contemplated.

Two hundred thousand dollars was distributed by the Chandler Motor Car Company yesterday to its 1,000 factory and office workers in the form of a bonus representing a percentage of the annual wages. This is the ninth consecutive annual bonus paid by the company.

Reopen Paris Grain Market.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—The grain market, which the Government closed on Feb. 18 to stop the rapid rise in the price of wheat, was reopened today. Market officials said the closing had not improved conditions but that, with freedom restored, they hoped the prices gradually would be stabilized.

COTTON IRREGULAR ON SMALL TRADING

LIVERPOOL MARKET CLOSED

Prices Move Over 40-Point Range and Lose 29 to 37 Points for Day —Mere Crop Estimates.

Cotton prices moved around over a 40-point range and wound up 29 to 37 points lower than Saturday. Scattered Southern selling combined with speculative liquidation supplied contracts and absence of the Liverpool market curtailed the volume of business. High temperatures and dry weather continued throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana. Several private crop reports appeared during the session, two with a condition of 69.6 and an indicated yield of 12,600,000 and 12,716,000 bales. A prominent Memphis publication reduced its last month's condition of 71.4 to 67.6, which pointed to a yield of 12,275,000 bales.

With Liverpool closed yesterday for the English Exchange holidays, American markets churned about under a restricted volume of general business. Over-Sunday weather served to contrast conditions existing east and west of the Mississippi River. Throughout the greater part of July steady improvement had been reported in most sections in the East, with deterioration starting in the West owing to deficient moisture. For the past four days excellent rains have occurred in many parts of Tennessee, Georgia and the Carolinas, a region that has been the least in need of rain of any part of the cotton belt. But over the greater portion of Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and the Southern section of Alabama very little moisture fell and temperatures over Sunday were in excess of 100 degrees at most stations. The appearance of several private crop reports, all indicating a yield in excess of that contained in the last Washington document, increased liquidation and brought half a cent loss in prices. On the decline around 27 cents for both December and January, demand for those months again served to steady the market, as was the case last week, and absence of relief in drought regions brought nervous price recoveries from time to time. There was not sufficient general demand to sustain these rallies. October lost ground when compared with later positions as a result of additional liquidation in that month.

CHICAGO BANKER DIES ON SHIP BOUND HERE

When the Munson Line steamship Pan America arrived yesterday from Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro Dr. R. M. Whitehead reported that A. W. Seabrease, a banker of Chicago, Ill., died at 4 A. M. of heart disease as the vessel was nearing the Scotland Lightship. The surgeon said that Mr. Seabrease had gone to South America on July 6 on the Western World for the benefit of his health and was put ashore at Rio de Janeiro suffering from pneumonia. He regained some of his strength and was put on board the Pan-America to return to his home in the care of Miss Ethel Beckler, a trained nurse from Chicago, who was at the hospital. Mr. Seabrease is a brother of N. Seabrease, banker in the Land Title Building, Philadelphia, who was notified of his death by radio from the ship and came to Hoboken to make arrangements for the removal of the body.

Mr. Seabrease is survived by his widow.

Dr. Rodrigo Octavio, who was head of the Brazilian delegation to the Paris peace conference, arrived on the Pan-America on his way to Mexico City to be President of the Mexican-American Claims Commission, which is to convene there on Aug. 15.

When asked about the revolution in Brazil, Mr. Octavio said that it was no revolution at all as he saw it. "A revolution," he continued, "is a rising of the people against the Government. What there was simply a revolt by a small number of soldiers in a small section of the country. The people were not interested except to get it over with."

Pork Prices Rise Further at Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Receipts of 34,000 hogs were below expectation and with urgent shipping orders prices moved up 15@50c to a top of $10.40 with an average of $9.35, the latter being 30c better than on Saturday. Packers were slow in taking hold and their purchases later were generally 15@25c higher than at the close last week. Lambs dropped 10@25c on large receipts, 27,000. Top wethers brought $13.90 with bulk of sales at $13.50@13.80. Best fat ewes were $7.75. Cattle were uneven, with good to choice steers 10@15c lower, and some of the poorer kinds off as much as 50c. Receipts were 18,000 head. Top steers were $11.65 and best yearlings $11.

Sees Better Business by Fall.

J. Philip Bird, President of the Manufacturers' Association of New Jersey, in the current issue of the official bulletin of the organization, says "signs and portents" indicate that the business depression, if not now at an end, will have given way to a pronounced upward swing by Fall or early Winter.

WHEAT OFF A TRIFLE, WITH HALT IN BUYING

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The wheat market is feeling the effect of hedging pressure; and, while black rust damage reports came from parts of Manitoba and also from North Dakota, there was a noticeable lack of aggressive buying on them and the market settled back quickly and closed ⅝@⅞ cents lower while Winnipeg was off ¼@1 cent.

Le Count, a local expert, estimates the crop of the three Provinces at 225,000,000 bushels, or half of last year, despite the recent rains. Murray's report estimated the crop this side of the international line at 307,000,000 bushels, or 67,000,000 bushels more than the Government July returns and compares with 786,000,000 bushels harvested last year. Winter wheat yield of 597,000,000 bushels was suggested with 220,000,000 bushels of Spring.

With Liverpool closed, there was a noticeable lack of aggressive buying for seaboard account, and export business for the day was estimated at 300,000 to 400,000 bushels with Germany a buyer. Of the 903 cars received here during the day, about half were applied to arrive contracts and about 250 cars were received in addition too late for today's market. Country offerings were held slightly above the market and the purchases for the day were light.

An increase of 5,375,000 bushels in the visible was due partly to the inclusion of Wichita, Kan., for the first time. That market had 1,536,000 bushels. Total stocks are 41,734,000 bushels, against 36,436,000 the previous week and 36,693,000 last year.

Primary arrivals for the day were 5,359,000 bushels; week ago, 4,183,000; last year, 3,377,000. Shipments were 2,093,000 bushels; last week, 583,000; last year, 1,299,000.

Sensational advances continue to characterize the corn market. At one time December jumped more than 2 cents per bushel in less than a minute, due to scattered buying orders finding the market bare of offerings, and, with stop orders uncovered, December was rushed up to $1.07¾, or 13 cents above the low of last week. On the advance there was extensive profit taking and a reaction followed, but the finish was at net gains of 1⅝@2 cents on the deferred futures, with September up ¼ cent. No. 2 yellow on spot sold at $1.13, also a new high on the year, prior to Conditions in parts of Indiana are said to be sensationally poor. On the other hand, an official Oklahoma report suggested a yield of 74,313,000 bushels, compared with 66,000,000 a month ago, and is double last year's final returns.

Murray's report made condition 72.3, indicating a crop for the country of 2,635,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,515,000,000 a month ago, and 2,040,000,000 last year. The visible supply increased 1,022,000 bushels and is 4,887,000, against 3,865,000 the previous week and 2,737,000 last year.

Primary arrivals were 721,000 bushels; week ago, 1,200,000; last year, 1,637,000, and shipments, 533,000 bushels; week ago, 622,000; last year, 568,000.

PULP CONSUMPTION NOW 8,000,000 TONS

EXCEED REST OF THE WORLD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—A report on pulpwood paper and pulp conditions, with particular reference to requirements of American paper manufacturers and newspapers, just compiled by the Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture and made public today, shows that these requirements have nearly quadrupled since 1899. They now exceed 8,000,000 tons a year, which is greater than that of all other countries combined. On a per capita basis the United States, the report declares, has double the paper consumption of any other country.

In a comprehensive way the report deals with the present paper requirements of the United States and its probable future requirements. It points out ways and means of meeting the demand for pulp timber and stresses the existing situation arising from the fact that less than half of the pulp timber required for American needs is furnished by native forests.

Commenting on this state of affairs, the report says:

"The forests of nearly every region in the United States are being cut much more rapidly than they are being replaced by growth, and in many regions the original timber supplies have been greatly reduced. The regions from which pulpwood supplies are now being chiefly secured fall within the latter class. This situation is the background of the problem of increasing the domestic pulpwood cut sufficiently to meet the nation's requirements.

"The most urgent phase of the pulp and paper problem of the future," continues the report, "is to secure annually an additional 870,000 cords of spruce, hemlock and fir, and 180,000 cords of aspen or poplar pulpwood from our own forests to offset pulpwood imports. Other important but less urgent phases of the problem are to increase the cut of our own forests to offset the large pulp and paper imports.

First—Increased production of pulp timber on the forest lands of the United States.

Second—The reduction of all manufacturing wastes and the development of new or modified pulping processes which will increase the number of timber species suitable for pulping and make more efficient use of all pulpwood.

Third—The material development of the pulp and paper industry in new regions.

"All of these methods," says the report, "have a distinct and important place in the solution of our pulp and paper problem, and full advantage must be taken of them. Through some of them immediate results can probably be secured to relieve critical situations. The main reliance in ultimately and permanently meeting pulpwood requirements must, however, be placed upon the growing of timber crops on forest land within the United States."

Fraud in an Ice Cream Cone Deal.

The traffic in ice cream cones is tainted by swindlers, Inspector Thomas F. Morgan of the Bureau of Weights and Measures, told Magistrate George W. Simpson in Essex Market Court yesterday, and as a result the Magistrate held Abraham Udasin, 59 years old, of 77 Ridge Street, in $300 bail for trial. The inspector said that he paid $2.10 for 500 cones—without ice cream in them—at Udasin's store and received only 437.

SAYS WOMAN URGED HIM TO KILL HUSBAND

MIDDLEBURG, Pa., Aug. 4.—The alleged confession of 17-year-old Ralph Shadle that he killed Harvey Willow, a farmer, last December after he had been repeatedly urged to do so by the farmer's wife, led to the arrest of Mrs. Willow on the charge of being an accessory to the shooting. She was held without bail for a hearing tomorrow. The mother, who is the mother of two young children, denied any connection with the alleged crime.

"She urged me to do it so that we could be together," Shadle was quoted by the police as having said.

"She kept after me and after me, and finally I shot him. He was ahead of me in a thicket looking for rabbits, and I shot him in the head. I went home and told Mrs. Willow what I had done. She planned the whole thing and made me do it."

The case had puzzled the authorities for eight months and Shadle was arrested yesterday by the State police on suspicion. His alleged confession was obtained by Sheriff Knuckle and Presiding Judge Miles Potter.

TRADE BOARD URGES NEW COTTON RULES

URGES SOUTHERN DELIVERY

Believes Small Dealers Would Be Benefited and That Puts and Calls Should Be Barred.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The Federal Trade Commission, in a report made public today on the cotton trade, in response to a Senate resolution, recommended that some form of Southern delivery on New York contracts be adopted, that cotton contracts be confined to three grades, that consideration be given to a reduction in the size of the contract delivery of 100 bales, and that cotton puts and calls be abolished by a prohibitive tax.

The commission contended that the three-contiguous-grade contract should not be adopted unless Southern delivery were also adopted. The report declared such a contract would prove a valuable adjunct of Southern deliveries by offsetting in part the decreased value of the contract arising from the additional option given to the seller of contracts as to place of delivery.

It would further counteract the depressing effect on future prices of deliveries of varying grades on each contract, which tends to be emphasized by the number of delivery points, the report held. This form of contract also would make it more practicable for the smaller merchant to take delivery of cotton on future contracts, thus reducing the tendency to run from delivery notices, the report added.

Another valuable feature of the three-contiguous-grade contract, the report said, would be the increased serviceability of the future market for hedging by improving through the increased merchantability of the delivery the relationship of spots and futures.

The commission recommended that only a few Southern delivery points be selected and that they be confined to the Atlantic and Gulf ports; that the delivery, inspection and certification of cotton at Southern ports be under rigid Government supervision and that deliveries be only from warehouses licensed under the Federal Warehouse act and that the tender of cotton on futures at New York be no longer permitted.

A reduction in the size of the delivery would render the contract more merchantable, and at the same time would permit closer hedging, the report said. The commission pointed out that cotton puts and calls are prohibited by the rules of both Cotton Exchanges, those at New Orleans and New York, and should be eliminated by a prohibitive tax, like that now in force for grain puts and calls.

To establish accurate spot quotations, the commission recommended that uniform procedure be adopted for determining quotations and differences; that all pertinent price information be reported for every spot sale and be made the basis for spot quotations, and that this information be verified by a committee of competent classers, preferably not engaged in the trade. In view of the disparity in volume of sales among the several markets, the commission suggested consideration of the feasibility of taking a weighted average of their differences instead of a simple average for use in the settlement of the future contract.

The commission advised against abolishing the New York futures market on the grounds that New York has important advantages over any other city and that it is the financial and trading centre of the world.

DUTY RISES ON TEXTILES.

Advance in Exchange Also Increases Levy on Other British Goods.

The rise in sterling exchange yesterday to above $4.45 marked a point where higher duties must be paid on imports of textiles and other merchandise from Great Britain, according to Herbert B. Lederer of the Herbert B. Lederer Corporation, importers of textiles, 11 West Thirty-second Street. When the pound sterling was quoted within 10 per cent. of its normal of $4.86½, Mr. Lederer pointed out, the customs regulations provided for the duty to be levied on that exchange basis and not on the rate of exchange prevailing on the day of entry of the merchandise.

This meant an increase of 10 per cent. in the rate of duty, as compared with the percentage levied when the pound sterling was more than 10 per cent. below normal, Mr. Lederer said. On British cotton goods, for example, assessed at 30 per cent., the increase is 10 per cent., bringing the duty to 33 per cent. So far as textiles are concerned the swing of sterling within the 10 per cent. range will affect duties on linens, broadcloths and warp sateens most, as large quantities of these are being imported from Great Britain.

AMERICAN CREDITORS PAID.

Liquidator Files Report on City Equitable Fire Co. of London.

James A. Beha, Superintendent of Insurance of the State of New York, filed in the New York County Clerk's office on Aug. 1 a report covering the liquidation of the City Equitable Fire Insurance Company, Ltd., of London, England, from Feb. 6, 1922, when the company was taken over for liquidation, to June 30, 1924.

The report shows that the liquidator has assets of $1,046,664.06, after having disbursed $1,508,667.74. All American creditors who have proved their claims have received 100 per cent. and interest. For a few claims pending the liquidator has reserved $470,689.57. The remaining $531,000 will be remitted to the order of the British liquidator in accordance with a decision recently rendered by the New York Court of Appeals.

It will be remembered that the City Equitable failed in England in February, 1922, with a deficit of $3,000,000, due largely to the investment of a substantial part of the reserves in non-liquid securities, among which was the Ritz Hotel in Paris.

Record Wheat Receipts in Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 4.—A new one-day record for wheat receipts was established here today when 770 carloads were received, as compared with the previous high mark of 676 cars on July 31, 1918. Prices remained firm with Saturday, despite the heavy receipts, No. 1 hard selling at $1.23. Today's shipments will mean a return to the farmers of about $1,250,000, according to Frank Taylor, President of the Omaha Grain Exchange.

Lafayette Sails Despite Strike.

HAVRE, France, Aug. 4.—The steamship Lafayette, whose sailing on Saturday was postponed because of a strike of members of the crew, sailed today with the help of French naval seamen.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Conn-Hall-Mark Company have added a silk upholstery department to their business. They will manufacture a wide range of staple and novelty fabrics.

Owing to the holding of a meeting of buyers and merchandise men, the office of C. A. Cook, 270 Fifth Avenue, will not see salesmen today or Wednesday.

The Taubel-Scott Company, hosiery manufacturers, is to resume the name of William F. Taubel, Inc., separate its production and sales departments and standardize its products. Rufus W. Scott will retire as Chairman and concentrate on the sales end of the business as head of the company bearing his name. William F. Taubel, founder and former owner of the company, will return to active management of the business and succeed Mr. Scott as Chairman.

Meetings of buyers of notions, toilet goods and leather goods will be held today, tomorrow and Thursday in the office of the Dry Goods Union at 462 Fourth Avenue.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Conditions in Broad Silks.

Conditions in the silk trade have been improving for a fortnight and it is believed that this improvement will continue for at least two months. Dress manufacturers are calling for crêpe satins, charmeuses and satin cantons, and as the season goes on these materials are expected to become scarcer and higher in price. In taffetas there is only a limited activity. Novelty silks have lost their favor after a fine ride on the tide of popularity. About half the silk goods sold now are blacks, nearly a third are browns and the remainder range through navies, cocoas—which had a good day yesterday—fallows, some grays and almond green.

Women's Coats Not Yet Active.

Business in women's coats is ten days or two weeks behind, but manufacturers and jobbers are looking for a big rush when cooler weather sets in, probably in September or October, which will make up for the slowness of the early part of the season. The general conservative policy on the part of retailers is thought to be largely responsible for the present lack of enthusiasm. Sport coats continue to hold their own in the business that is being done, with tan, gray, reindeer and brown as the most popular colors. Both fur trimmed and self trimmed models are in demand. Straight line coats are also going well. Shades which are selling well include black, brown, taupe gray, green, lipstick red and reindeer. Squirrel, Jap mink and beaver trimmed garments are going well.

Capes Not Taken Up.

Though it is reported from Paris that the cape is coming back strong there, the local market does not reflect this return to popularity as yet. Few are being shown here and there is hardly any sale of them, the condition being much the same as for the last two seasons. A few cape coats are being sold.

Designs in Umbrellas.

Women's umbrellas to match garments are going strong. The predominating model for the Fall and holiday trade is the short "country club." The styles are changing toward smaller size, with new designs in handles. The handle style which is selling best is of natural wood, with amber effects and cord wrist loop. Colors, especially navy, purple, a lot of brown and considerable garnet red, are doing better than blacks. Business has not been active since June, but has been gaining recently, and a marked acceleration in ten days or so is looked for. Retailers are said to have been in a position of advantage of late because of the dullness and to have been able to buy very low owing to the desire of manufacturers to do business. Prospective further advances in silk prices and the natural increase due to a heavier demand which is expected soon lead the trade to believe that prices will be higher in a month.

Skirts That Are Selling.

Wrap-around skirts are going best in the sports line. A good demand for pleated skirts is reported, but is affected by the heaviness of the materials which are being used, it being found that they cannot be pleated very well. Novelties are the big thing for what promises to be a good skirt season. Flannels are among the most favored materials. The trend is toward a moderate style and color tone, with a certain degree of snap in effect. Plaids and stripes are both selling well. Buying is fair, with indications of a lively business by the middle of this month. Popular prices prevail and seem due to remain at about the same levels as last year.

Will Not Open Lines This Week.

Despite reports to the contrary, the American Woolen Company will not open its Spring lines this week. This was stated definitely yesterday by a leading official of the local office. The probabilities are, however, that an announcement will be made within a couple of days setting the date of the opening for some time next week. At present, the details of price making are still being worked out, together with the arranging and checking of sample pieces. The first goods to be shown will be men's wear staples and semi-staples.

Add American to Silk Committee.

A cablegram from Shanghai telling of the election of Charles J. Huber of the United States Testing Company, Inc., as a member of the International Committee for the Improvements of Sericulture in China was received yesterday by the Silk Association of America. This increases the American membership on the committee to two, which is equal to the representation of other nationalities. The international committee was organized in 1918 and has played an active part in improving the quality and increasing the size of China's silk crops. A most important feature of its work deals with the production of disease-free eggs. The supply of such eggs has been increased to the point where it now totals millions of layings. H. Madier is Chairman of the committee and P. Viell is its sericultural expert.

Gray Goods Trading Was Dull.

Yesterday was rather a dull day in the gray goods market. Buyers were more interested in watching the trading in raw cotton, and the drop in this commodity yesterday was their guiding influence. On some important constructions it was possible to shade the levels of the close of last week by an eighth or a cent. There were sales reported of 38½-inch 60-48 printcloths at 5⅝ cents for spot, off an eighth from Saturday's close. Buyers paid 10⅝ cents for 39-inch 68-72s for late August delivery and 9⅝ cents for 38-inch 64-60s for the same delivery. Sales of 48-square 7.15s were made at 7¼ cents for spot goods. Sheetings generally were inactive. For 37-inch inch 48-square four-yard goods the best that could be done was 11¼ cents. In drills there was a transaction in 37-inch 3.85 goods at 11¼ cents for quick delivery. Sateens were quiet, but some activity was noted in imported warp goods.

Opens Wash Goods for Spring.

Printed silk and cotton crêpes and broadcloths feature the line of Spring novelty wash goods which the Herbert B. Lederer Corporation is opening. A wide variety of printed patterns, as well as woven effects, are shown in the crêpes, artificial silk being used extensively for decorations. In the printed broadcloths, tinted grounds are employed, the patterns being of small English design and of the vari-colored Roman stripe order. In the woven novelties, an artificial silk is employed that permits of cross-dyeing, and through this a large variation in patterns is obtained. Voile grounds with plaid and stripe patterns, crêpe mixtures having large blocks and open-work effects are also featured. Diversity of patterns characterizes the line of printed voiles, new flock dot and plaid effects standing out.

Await Cotton Condition Report.

While buyers of cotton goods have a feeling of something like confidence in the purchase of goods for immediate delivery, the recent advances in the prices of leading cloths have not encouraged them to change their views with respect to forward business. Some buying is being done at the new levels, according to representatives of leading Worth Street concerns, and to this extent the situation is progressing. For the time being, however, the tendency of the trade and buyers is to mark time until the next Government report is issued. This will be on Friday and will be an estimate of the condition of the crop as of Aug. 1.

DR. COOK KEPT IN JAIL.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 4.—The case of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, former explorer and convicted oil promoter, for release on a writ of habeas corpus, was refused today by Federal Judge Wilson.

Judge Wilson said the plea was refused because of lack of jurisdiction, and announced that he would have stapled to the writ if such action had come within his authority. The court of jurisdiction, he said, was the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Dr. Cook is facing a prison term of fourteen years and a fine of $13,000 for his oil promotions. He has appealed from the sentence and sought release on bond in the meantime. This caused the filing of the habeas corpus writ.

CANADA ASKS BELCOURT TO BE MINISTER HERE

LONDON, Aug. 4.—It is learned here that the Canadian Government has offered the newly created post of Canadian Minister to Washington to Senator Belcourt, who is now representing Canada at the London Conference.

Napoléon Antoine Belcourt was born in Toronto in 1860. He was educated at St. Joseph's Seminary at Three Rivers and also at Laval University, was called to the Quebec bar in 1883. Two years later he became a member of the Ontario bar and since that time has frequently pleaded before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council of England.

He was clerk of the Peace and Crown and from 1894 to 1896 was Crown Attorney of County Carleton. Since 1891 he has been an examiner in law at Ottawa University, which conferred upon him the degree of LL. D. in 1895. Although he failed to be elected to the House of Commons for Ottawa in 1891, Senator Belcourt was chosen to the house four years later and followed this term with re-election in 1900 and 1904.

From 1904 to 1906 he was Speaker of the House of Commons and a year later was called to the Senate. Through a movement which he sponsored in 1906 Canada invited the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra to visit the Dominion.

Among other offices he has held are the Presidency of the French-Canadian Congress of Ontario in 1910, and the Presidency of the French-Canadian Educational Association of Ontario. He was also a delegate of the Sixth Congress of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire in 1906. He is President or director of a number of financial and industrial corporations.

SEEKS KLANSMAN'S ARREST.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Under-Sheriff C. Fred Close and Deputy Sheriffs late this evening invaded a meeting of the Ku Klux Klan at Rupert Park in search of a guard, charged by Simon King, a hotel man, with assault in the second degree.

Mr. King complained to the Sheriff's office that he had been admitted to the grounds on an invitation, and had later been ejected when he refused to leave. He said that a guard had clubbed him on the head, and he exhibited bruises in support of this contention.

A John Doe warrant was sworn out before John F. Hoppe, Justice of the Peace, by Mr. King shortly after 10 o'clock, an hour after he had been put off the park. In the crowd of 3,000 persons who attended the meeting the officers were unable to find the guard, whose name was unknown to Mr. King.

The meeting was attended by Klansmen from all sections of the Hudson Valley and was addressed by Dr. J. A. Hawkins.

SOO CANAL TONNAGE DROPS.

SAULTE STE. MARIE, Mich., Aug. 4.—A decrease of more than 3,000,000 tons passing through the Soo canals during July of this year as compared with July, 1923, is in the monthly report of the St. Mary's Falls Canal, issued today.

The total freight registered at the American and Canadian locks last month was 11,138,030 tons. During the same month last year it totaled 14,888,908. The cargoes showing the greatest decrease were soft coal carried West and iron ore carried to the lower lakes.

The report indicates that there has been a considerable increase in the amount of grain carried from the Northwest.

Colorado Officers Plan to Use Gas Against Post Office Robbers.

GRAND JUNCTION, Col., Aug. 4.—With twenty members of a Sheriff's posse guarding the two airshafts and main entrance of an abandoned mine near Palisades, a vigil to force the surrender of three alleged bandits who are believed hiding in the mine was under way today.

The three are suspected of being the men who early on Saturday morning broke into the Palisades Post Office, removed the safe and blew it open, obtaining $15,508.71 in stamps and cash.

Chlorine gas and dynamite have been moved to the entrance of the mine to be used to force the three suspects from their hiding place.

It is the belief of the Sheriff that the three men have become lost in the maze of underground passages. There is no water within the mine workings, and those on guard are confident that the men will be forced to surrender soon.

The ceremony was performed on the platform of the Santa Fe Railway station here before a crowd dressed in cowboy, Spanish don and señorita costumes of seventy-five years ago in New Mexico.

The Coogan party arrived here this morning for a stop of six hours on its way east on the children's crusade, which will take the young movie star to the Near East with food relief.

Insists That He Slew a Girl.

Charles Flynn, a railroad clerk of Bridgewater, Pa., who last Tuesday told the Brooklyn police that he had killed a young woman in Steubenville, Ohio, and had thrown her body into the Ohio River, was held without bail yesterday in Adams Street Police Court by Magistrate George H. Folwell until Aug. 15, pending an investigation of the truth of his statement. Detective Robert J. Kelly told the Magistrate that the police in Ohio had been unable to find any record of a crime such as described by Flynn. The latter, however, told the Magistrate that his story was true and that he wished to be punished.

He is in St. Joseph's Hospital, Yonkers. He was bending over the tire in front of the Woodland Garage at the corner of McLean and Central Avenues, Yonkers. He let too much air be forced into the tire and it exploded. He was hurled against the pavement and suffered a fractured skull.

FINDS AUTOS KILLED 8,100 IN HALF YEAR

NO DEATHS IN 25 CITIES

Figures made public last evening by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce indicated that in the first six months of this year 8,100 persons were killed in motor vehicle accidents in this country. The figures were obtained in connection with a campaign against automobile accidents due to reckless driving. It is shown that reports received from 217 newspapers throughout the country show that in many places where the automobile fatalities previously had been reported as high there had been considerable reduction in June, compared with the preceding month.

Among the cities from which reports of a decrease were received were Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Baltimore, Philadelphia and this city, the organization announced.

In a statement received from Robbins B. Stoeckel, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles in Connecticut, in connection with a campaign being conducted in that State against reckless motor vehicle driving, he said: "Every conviction for reckless driving will result in suspension. The person convicted may then have to appear before the hearing officer of the Motor Vehicle Department to get his license restored."

No Deaths in Twenty-five Cities.

The Chamber of Commerce explained that in the reports from the 217 newspapers it was revealed that 680 persons were killed in June in the cities in which the papers were located and that a total of 2,918 persons were reported to have been killed in the first six months of the year in those localities. The newspapers are in cities of over 100,000 in population, and the reports include motor vehicle fatalities in suburban communities. The total toll of 8,100 deaths for the entire country was estimated on these reports.

Twenty-five cities, according to the figures of the body, reported that there had been no automobile fatalities in their localities during June. These cities were Tucson, Ariz.; Berkeley, Cal.; Pasadena, Cal.; Lynn, Mass.; Flint, Mich.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Nashua, N. H.; Albuquerque, N. M.; Reno, Nev.; Passaic, N. J.; Albany, N. Y.; Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Watertown, N. Y.; Winston-Salem, N. C.; Dayton, Ohio; Springfield, Ohio; Portland, Ore.; Altoona, Pa.; Scranton, Pa.; San Antonio, Texas; Salt Lake City, Utah; Tallahasee, Fla.; Evanston, Ind.; Richmond, Ind.; Hutchinson, Kan.

The statement added that speeding too fast for road conditions and ignoring the rules of the road were the dominant causes of fatalities reported. Other causes were attributed to "insufficient guarding against unexpected moves by pedestrains and by children playing in the streets." Forty-four of the deaths in June were laid to collisions between trolley cars and motor vehicles.

Want More Safety Zones.

Among the remedies suggested by the organization for cutting down the number of automobile fatalities was the impounding of cars of careless operators, and the declaration was made that "the motorist who disregards the rights of others has no business on the highways." It further explains that the driver convicted of recklessness should lose the privilege of his car, in addition to other punishments prescribed by the courts, for a time commensurate with the carelessness of the offense.

Citing the exceptionally well developed manner in which Buffalo handles its traffic problem, the organization states it is necessary for all cities to approach the problem in a scientific manner and bring about agitation through the newspapers for severe punishment of offenders. Safety zones are endorsed in the statement as a protection against accidents in cities and a demand is made that they be increased in number at every opportunity.

HOLD UP MERCHANT IN BROADWAY SHOP

Three men robbed Jack Levy, proprietor of a modiste's shop at 2,185 Broadway, of $800 in money and jewelry shortly after 10 o'clock last night after they had held him up with pistols and bound him with ropes in the rear of his establishement. Levy was alone in the store when the men entered. One of them asked to be shown silk stockings.

When the proprietor turned to reach for the box containing the stockings the three robbers ordered him to throw up his hands, one of them shoving his pistol across the counter against Levy's body. Levy hesitated about complying with the command and a second robber jumped over the counter and struck him in the face.

After they had led him into the rear room they stripped a diamond ring from one of the fingers of his right hand, took a diamond pin out of his tie and a gold watch from his pocket. On the way out of the place the robbers gathered up a quantity of silk garments and stockings and took $215 from the cash register. A friend found him in the rear of the store a few minutes after the thieves had left. Levy gave detectives from the West Sixty-eighth Street Station good descriptions of the robbers.

Fonseca, Rebel, Is Operating Near Nicaraguan Frontier.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Advices regarding a new revolution in Honduras were received at the State Department today, Franklin E. Morales, American Minister, reporting that General Fonseca was operating near the Nicaraguan frontier, and that he captured San Marcos in the State of Choluteca on July 31. A three-cornered revolt in Honduras was recently ended through the mediation of the United States.

The dispatch said that General Fonseca is now proceeding with his forces, which are not believed to be large, toward Choluteca.

General Demas Alvarado and his forces were operating near the Nicaraguan frontier, and Mr. Morales said he has been informed that these movements have no connection with the political situation in Nicaragua, where preparations are being made for Presidential election, and that Fonseca and Alvarado are in accord with General Ferrara, who took a prominent part in the recent revolution. General Julio Peralta, State Department dispatches said, has been permitted to leave Nicaragua and is now with Fonseca.

The whole situation, officials of the State Department said, is rather obscure, as the meagre reports received give no general view of the whole affair. Little is known of General Fonseca reported as heading the new revolution, except that previous to the last revolution he had been imprisoned and was released by the late President Gutierrez.

BILLIKOPF UMPIRE IN GARMENT TRADE

BOTH SIDES ARE PLEASED

Speedy Stabilization of the Industry Expected by Both the Union and Employers.

It was announced yesterday at the office of the New York Clothing Manufacturers' Exchange, 225 Fifth Avenue, that Jacob Billikopf, former Executive Director of the American Jewish Relief Society and in charge of the campaign for the $10,000,000 fund for Jewish war relief, had consented to act as temporary "impartial chairman," under the terms of the contract entered into last month by the union and the cloak and suit manufacturers when peace was declared in the garment industry strike.

General satisfaction was expressed yesterday by the union and the cloak and suit makers over Mr. Billikopf's acceptance of the post and it was stated that his action would undoubtedly result in bringing about a speedier and more practical stabilization of the industry.

It means also the successful carrying out of one of the four principles upon which the union and the three largest factors in the cloak and suit industry agreed at their meeting at the Hotel McAlpin on July 17. This was to the effect that in case the employers and union should fail to agree on any disputes that came up, the question or dispute would be referred to a trial board, consisting of one member from each organization and a permanent umpire to be known as the "impartial chairman."

Two weeks were set from the date of the execution of this agreement for the selection of a chairman, and failing in this, it was agreed that the Advisory Board appointed by Governor Smith should name one.

During this time Mr. Billikopf has been urged to accept the responsibility, and a delegation called upon him a short time ago at his home in Philadelphia with this aim in view, but no definite answer was forthcoming until yesterday when he telegraphed from Knollwood, Saranac Lake, N. Y., where he is the guest of his father-in-law, Louis Marshall, that he would be "happy to accept."

His telegram stated further that he hoped to give the cause at least two or three days weekly during the Summer, beginning about Aug. 5.

Mr. Billikopf has long been a student of social and economic problems, and in the Summer of 1919 he went to Poland as a personal investigator for the American Jewish War Relief Committee. Some time previous to this he had been presented with a set of resolutions, engrossed on parchment and bound in book form, expressing the appreciation of the Polish members of the Executive Committee of the Relief Committee. The presentation took place at the home of the late Jacob H. Schiff, 965 Fifth Avenue.

Two letters were given out yesterday at the Fifth Avenue office of the clothing manufacturers' exchange by David Drechsler of Drechsler, Orenstein & Leff, counsel to the manufacturers, which were sent to Mr. Billikopf at Saranac Lake presenting the existing conditions in the clothing market and urging him to accept the responsibility of impartial Chairman. One was from Mr. Drechsler and the other from Sidney Hillman, General President of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Mr. Drechsler's letter, written on July 15, to Mr. Billikopf on behalf of the Exchange, made clear the pressing importance of the call which the Exchange had made upon him to accept the responsibility of the impartial chairmanship, and told how his name was immediately acclaimed at a joint conference as possessing that "cementing influence of individuality and character in which the public, labor and capital will have faith."

"The needle industry has been the forerunner of all labor reforms in this country," the letter went on, "and proper interpretation of the rights and obligations of employer and employe in the needle industry is therefore of first importance to the whole question of capital and labor in this country."

At the time the contract was entered into Morris Hillquit, counsel for the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, declared that the favorable result was due largely to the efforts of the Advisory Committee appointed by Governor Smith.

Will Erect Six-Story Apartment on the Grand Concourse, to Cost $600,000.

Trading was light in the realty market yesterday, what little activity there was being confined to apartment house and suburban deals.

An interesting transaction adjacent to Times Square involved the old Amsterdam Opera House on West Forty-fourth Street, famous as a landmark and a dance hall.

Recently the old hall was turned into a moving-picture studio by the Tilford Cinema Corporation, which leased the property, which is at 332 to 344 West Forty-fourth Street, from the Schmuck estate.

It has a frontage of 172 feet and a depth of 100 feet and consists of the old hall and a row of two and three story buildings. Directly across the street is the new home of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

The Tilford Company has now sold its lease to the recently organized Forty-fourth Street Studio Corporation for a long term of years.

E. Petigor represented the purchasing company, which has a directorate consisting of M. McDermott, D. Starr and I. Mellikin.

It is to be six stories, of brick, limestone and terra cotta and is estimated to cost $600,000. The designs for the building have been completed by Aymar Embury 2d.

CONFERENCE IS HELD ON WRECK INQUIRY

NEWCOMBE FILES REPORT

Harkness Issues Statement Replying to Criticisms of Long Island Railroad Investigation.

Acting on the belief that an Extraordinary Grand Jury will be called by County Judge Humphrey to investigate the accident on the Long Island Railroad in the Sunnyside yards, Long Island City, on last Wednesday night, county officials in Queens yesterday began preparations for the investigation.

Representatives of Judge Humphrey, District Attorney Newcombe and Sheriff Smedley conferred upon the steps that would have to be taken. A panel of twenty-four jurors will have to be drawn, as the Grand Jury which convened in June and was continued until July was discharged a week ago.

District Attorney Newcombe went over information gathered by his staff. He sent a report to Governor Smith and said he would take no further action until he heard from Governor Smith and from Judge Humphrey.

Le Roy T. Harkness, Transit Commissioner, who has directed the commission's inquiry into the wreck, issued a statement in which he said:

"The appearance of any misunderstanding about such a matter is always regrettable, and I have no intention of engaging in any controversy with Mr. Newcombe. In view of his own rather surprising remarks, I do feel it necessary, however, to state that after Major Mathewa, the commission's chief executive officer, had, at my direction, consulted with Assistant District Attorney Froessel, and asked whether, in his judgment, there were any reasons why the commission should not, according to its custom, publish these reports, at once Mr. Froessel answered: 'The District Attorney's office doesn't care what the Transit Commission publishes.' He followed with a proffer of thanks for the cooperation the commission had already rendered his office and for the assurance of Major Matthews that whatever technical aid it might still require would be promptly placed at its disposal. If District Attorney Newcombe, who was out of town at the time, had any contrary requests, they would, of course, have been honored. In their absence, it was assumed that Mr. Froessel's statement stood.

"It should be added that the duty of investigating accidents and of reporting upon their circumstances is laid by law upon the Transit Commission and upon no other authority, although any District Attorney naturally is at liberty to make an independent investigation where there is any suggestion of criminal responsibility.

"The commission at the present time has no amendment to make to the report of its engineers or to its suggestion that in the matter of culpability not only were the towerman and the switchman responsible, but apparently and to some degree the company itself."

BANS FROM JAIL RADIO USED FOR SMUGGLING

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Radio sets have been banished from the Eastern State Penitentiary following a discovery that convicts were utilising them to receive dot and dash code messages detailing how narcotics would be smuggled into the prison, Alfred W. Fleischer, President of the Board of Trustees, said today.

The discovery was made when a visitor was called in by a convict to fix a set in one of the cells. Having a knowledge of code, the visitor, upon adjusting the apparatus, heard a message stating that a rubber ball, filled with drugs, would be tossed over the penitentiary wall on the day the message was received.

Upon leaving the prison he informed Mr. Fleischer, and shortly afterward guards placed on watch saw a rubber ball pop over the wall and land on the grass plot inside the prison. When opened it was found to contain a quantity of narcotics, according to the officials.

Delegates from California and Canada were present yesterday at the Hotel Continental, Broadway and Forty-first Street, when Arthur O. Litt opened the three-day convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans.

Dr. J. Brace Chittenden, Secretary of the Collectors' Club, who is widely known for his researches in the postal history of Austria and Spain, welcomed the delegates to New oYrk City, and referred to the enormous increase in postage stamp collectors since the European war. With the King of England, who has one of the greatest collection in the world; former Senator Frelinghuysen, Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, Charles Lathrop Pack, the forestry expert, and Arthur Hind, the textile manufacturer of Utica, who has spent more money for rare stamps in the last three years than any other American, numbered among the philatelists, stamp collecting has passed beyond the hobby stage and has become a scientific study, said Dr. Chittenden. In the avoidable absence of President V. M. Rotnem of Minneapolis, the forid's authority on pre-cancels, Joseph Hoffman of this city was appointed permanent chairman. Among the other speakers yesterday were W. C. Henry of Los Angeles, J. Moerl of Canada, William Lycett, Secretary; N. R. Hoover of New Rochelle, J. Murray Bartels and Guy Camp.

In the evening the collectors went to Coney Island. This afternoon there will be an auction sale conducted by M. Ohlman and a dinner will close theconvention tomorrow.

Are you one of the "light sleepers" who start awake whenever a latch clicks, a light glows, a curtain flaps or a car roars by in the street? Does your night's rest begin with counting sheep and end, perhaps, with some disagreeable dream? Do you hear the clock strike two? Dull brains, weary bodies, lack of energy and low spirits follow such fatiguing nights. Yet their commonest cause is often overlooked because it is so common.

An uncomfortable bed, a spring that sags and creaks, or a mattress mostly "hard spots" may provoke a fit of restlessness and banish sleep for many miserable hours.

Take ten minutes tonight to examine the mattress and spring you try to sleep on. Then compare them with the Simmons springs and mattresses your dealer will show you in many types at the lowest prices they can be built of safe, new, sanitary materials.

Think what long, restful nights will do for you. Aren't health, energy and success cheap at the cost of Simmons sleep equipment?
